DESPERATE LAST-HOUR PLEA TO TEXTILE WORKERS EXPECTED IN TALMADGE EFFORT TO AVERT DEFEAT

F. D. R. Sounds Call for Economic Democracy

WILL KEEP RELIEF UNTIL ALL WORK AT 'DECENT WAGE'

President Forcefully Illustrates How New Deal Spending Is Not Waste and Will Save Greater Expenses in the Future.

SPEECH IS REPORT ON DROUTH TOUR

Multiplicity of Benefits From Policy of Work for Stricken Is Listed; Steady Prices Sought.

Text of Address in Page 5.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(UP) President Roosevelt said tonight that the nation needs to build "an orderly economic democracy in which all can profit" to avoid class dissension "which in other countries has led to dictatorship."

He promised the wage earner that his administration would not lessen its relief efforts until "all workers have decent jobs in private employment at decent wages."

He pledged farmers that he would strive for an agricultural policy that would maintain prices through drouths as well as bumper crops. He suggested the possibility of saving the surpluses of fat years for use in lean.

"All American workers," he said, "brain workers and manual workers alike, and all the rest of us whose well-being depends on theirs, know that our needs are one in building an orderly economic democracy in which all can profit and in which all can be secure from the kind of faulty economic direction which brought us to the brink of common ruin seven years ago."

The President saw no class distinctions in this country. One essential

George Will Deliver Radio Address Today

A spirited address in defense of the Roosevelt administration will be delivered at 11 o'clock this morning by Senator Walter F. George at Fort Valley.

In the address, the senior Georgia senator is scheduled to answer attacks on the administration which have been made during the present campaign by Governor Talmadge and his followers. Talmadge, the opponent to Richard B. Russell Jr. for the United States senate, has renewed his attacks on the President in campaign speeches in his race against Russell.

A large crowd of citizens of Fort Valley and the surrounding section is expected to be present and the speech will be broadcast over the state over station WSB.

Senator George is expected to draw thousands of listeners from the middle Georgia section, with a large delegation from Vienna, his own town. The senator is known as a staunch supporter of the President and has been active in fostering New Deal measures in the senate.

Fascist Coup Plans Charged in France

PARIS, Sept. 7.—(Monday.)—(AP)—The Communist party newspaper Humanite asserted today Colonel Francois De La Rocque, head of the former Croix de Feu veterans' organization, was actively organizing a fascist coup to overthrow the government of Socialist Premier Leon Blum.

The paper declared De La Rocque at a secret meeting of 30 "regional chiefs" of the organization—dissolved as a military group by the French government but permitted to exist as a political party now called the Social party—outlined a plan of civil war.

LOYAL SPANIARDS REGAIN CONTROL IN SOUTHERN AREA

Rebels Routed at Vital Key to Madrid; Fighters Are Heartened by Change in Government.

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press.)

MADRID, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Spain's defending armies, in a seemingly decisive turn in the bloody civil war, announced today the recapture of the vitally important Talavera de Reina sector—key to the southern door to Madrid.

Talavera is approximately 70 miles southwest of the capital—the scene for days of the fiercest fighting between government militiamen and Rebels advancing from western Estremadura.

While reports from farther south told how a bridgeful of Rebels had been destroyed by dynamiters led by a 19-year-old boy, more than 4,000 "Militia Ironsides" at Talavera hurled themselves against the Fascist insurgents' finest army of Foreign Legionnaires and Moors.

REBEL LINES PUSH ON SAN SEBASTIAN

Defenders Split Over Defense With Socialists Advocating Surrender.

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press.)

HENDAYE, France, Sept. 6.—Eager Spanish Rebel armies, their red and gold flags flying from Irun and Fuenterrabia, fought their way to San Sebastian today from the east and south.

In the Bay of Biscay resort, eight miles west of smoking, fallen Irun, the defenders split. Basque nationalists among the government forces were reported seeking to surrender the city, virtually encircled by insurgent troops and under the guns of Rebel warships. Anarchists and Communists declared they would fight to the death.

The battle on the San Sebastian front began this morning with a fight for control of the highway at the village of Ancho, near Pasajes.

Advancing Rebel columns, with machine guns mounted on armored cars, drove the government militiamen back toward Fort Trincherpe, in the hills surrounding Pasajes.

Hundreds of militiamen who had re-

PACT WITH POLAND SEALED BY FRANCE

Military Agreements Are Part of Plan To Match German War Machine.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—France sealed tonight a military pact with Poland as part of the program for strengthening both her foreign alliances and army to match Germany's war machine.

Franco-Polish financial and military agreements, described as of great importance, were signed after a dinner given by President Albert Lebrun in honor of Polish General Edward Rydz-Smigly.

The inspector-general of the Polish army, from whom military circles said, "the French army has no secrets," concluded negotiations with diplomats, generals and bankers before returning tonight for Warsaw.

He came to France for extended conferences following a similar visit to Warsaw by the French army's chief of staff.

Sources close to the government said Poland will be given credit in France to purchase war supplies and possibly a direct loan to build up her army.

Reinforcement of the Franco-Polish alliance of 1923, they said, would "end" Berlin's influence over Warsaw.

General Rydz-Smigley dined at

Cobb Says: I Know How To Reduce

By IRVIN S. COBB.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Sept. 6.—Ever since the day when I was known among friends as Thyroid Deficiency Irvy, the Human Detour, I've fought the losing fight against overweight.

I tried dieting and became the best friend the American spinach industry ever knew, yet had only to turn my head to brag and I regained, practically instantaneously, what I'd lost. I exercised until I had the jitters, but when I'd taken off half a pound, it bounced right back while the doctors were reviving me.

I'd get rid of one extra chin—the third one from the bottom—and then if I relaxed vigilance for one week, I'd be so plumped out again that only Bobby Jones could go around me in four strokes without using the mashie niblick. So finally I said, what's the use of resisting fate (the "e" silent)?

But now I've found the absolutely certain cure for reduction. It's working in a moving picture with little Jane Withers. When she sets the pace, you can track yourself back home by your own perspiration. Another engagement with Janie and I could be rented out as my own living skeleton.

Urge to 'Go Places, See Things' Boosts U. S. Passenger Traffic

Survey Reveals New High Since 1929 in Travel; Railroads Lead Upturn With Auto Trailers Occupying Major Role for Long Trips.

By MAX L. BROWN.

Copyright, 1936, by United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—A travel renaissance is sweeping America this year. The public's desire "to go places and see things" is lifting the nation's passenger traffic to a new high since 1929, a survey disclosed today.

This week-end is marking a new pre-depression high in Labor Day holiday travel, according to authorities. Railroads are pressing into service thousands of extra cars. Steamship bookings are at capacity with business being turned away. Bus and air lines are prepared to handle the largest crowds in history. Auto travel, too, will reach new highs.

The movement will be featured by extended trips, both from a mileage and time standpoint. Of the approximate 1,750,000 persons leaving New York city, about 250,000, the largest number in many years, are enjoying at least a two-day vacation.

Railroads Lead Travel.

Railroads are leading the travel upturn for the year, many roads carrying the largest number of passengers in more than a decade.

Ocean trips, although restricted by limited ship tonnage and schedules, are at the best pace since 1930, while coast line and cruise tours—ocean-going and inland—are up to new records ranging back to 1927.

PLANE WRECKAGE YIELDS 10TH BODY

'Joy Hopping' Ship's Last Victim Is Removed as Officials Launch Probe.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Charred and tangled wreckage of a "joy-hopping" airplane yielded the body of the tenth victim of a crash and roaring flames in isolated Buttermilk Hollow today.

A gay party of sightseers boarded the ship last night, promised by operators:

"A thrill or your money back."

They had hoped to soar over the rugged hills and valleys surrounding the Allegheny county airport, look down on the brilliant lights of the county fair.

They rode only a mile or two—died on the crest of a little knoll near a peach orchard in the little hollow.

Only the framework of the big ship remained, twisted and tangled by the flames.

All the bodies were burned beyond recognition. The pilot died clutching the wheel of his ship, his charred body slumped in his seat.

Only one of the party survived—Linda McDonald, of Miami, Fla., too ill from shock to talk of the crash.

Unanxious to Go Up.

Before going to the hospital, the 17-year-old high school graduate, who planned to enter college this fall, said:

"There were six in our party and we weren't particularly anxious about going up.

"But the man in the plane—he was from Miami, too—promised us a thrill or our money back."

Miss McDonald told, too, of trying in vain to pull her escort, John A. Powers, 19, of Miami, from his seat in the ship, and attempting to arouse other passengers before clambering from the wrecked plane and escaping the flames.

Airport attaches said there was

SUSPECT TO VIEW BODY OF AMOTT

Alabama Police Take Step in Effort To Solve Slaying of U. S. Agent.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 6.—(AP) The mutilated body of Wesley Amott, government worker and former Mormon missionary, may be viewed tomorrow by Frank Greene, held for investigation, in a police effort to crack the mystery of a brutal killing.

Greene was arrested last Wednesday night, driving Amott's car.

The body of the 32-year-old Amott, native of Salt Lake City who vanished Tuesday, was found yesterday, the skull battered, in a clump of chinaberry brush flanking a little traveled road through cotton fields near Fay's Station, Ala.

Amott, an investigator for the Federal Resettlement Administration, disappeared after his superior in the Birmingham office sent him on an official trip to Montgomery, Ala., 100 miles south.

Overtake Greene.

State police, without knowledge the man had vanished, overtook Greene, 29 and lanky, in a spirited chase after they were given reports the man had driven away from a Demopolis (Ala.) filling station without paying for gasoline.

A quick check revealed the car he drove belonged to Amott.

Brought to a Birmingham jail, Greene steadfastly denied he knew anything about the government worker and authorities said he claimed he had stolen the automobile near a Birmingham hotel Tuesday.

The arrest precipitated an intense search for Amott, in which Department of Justice agents joined.

Birmingham's detective chief, G. C. Giles, said today Greene had not yet been told the body had been found, but that he will be taken tomorrow or Tuesday to Wetumpka, Ala., where

JEWS, CATHOLICS FEAR NAZI SESSION

Additional Repression Expected To Be Result of Nurnberg Convention.

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Nazi Germany moved on its Nurnberg shrine tonight, officially united in a glowing hatred of Communism, but with thousands of Jews and Catholics anxiously awaiting the repercussions.

National Socialism's annual party convention begins Tuesday. A million Nazis, and the sympathizers they left at home, will hear the shouted words of the fuehrer and chancellor, Adolf Hitler. Scores of lesser lights will review the past year of party power and outline the program for another 12 months.

Dr. Robert Ley, leader of 25,000,000 members of the German labor front, has co-ordinated the addresses—"the fight against Communism will be the central theme," he says. The Spanish civil war, in which Socialists, Communists and other factions of the united left are opposing army Fascist rebels, may provide a new vehicle for the familiar crusade.

But the Jews, remembering the Nurnberg racial laws of 1935, are saying:

"Last year they took away our citizenship. This year they will deprive us of our passports."

And Catholic circles have voiced fears the convention may be featured by repressive measures against lay

Constitution To Give Returns by Radio

From the newsroom of The Constitution the last-minute election returns will be broadcast Wednesday night over a statewide radio hookup in which stations WATL, Atlanta; WRBC, Columbus, and WGPC, Albany, will participate.

The broadcasts will start at 6 o'clock Wednesday night and will continue without interruption until long after midnight. In addition to the down-to-the-minute returns, The Constitution will provide a commentary on the trends in the various races in order that the listener may keep posted on all developments as they appear.

The broadcast will be one of the most elaborate election returns broadcasts ever put on the air in Georgia and the public is urged to refrain from calling The Constitution for election returns, as all telephones will be in constant use.

All persons not employes of the radio stations or The Constitution will be barred from the news rooms on the fourth floor, as all available space will be occupied by Constitution and Associated Press return gatherers, compilers and writers and broadcast station employes.

Edward Concludes Cruising Vacation

(Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.)

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 6.—(AP)—King Edward VIII concluded his cruising holiday and left for Vienna tonight on President Kemal Ataturk's personal train.

His Majesty may fly from Vienna to London by way of Paris, it was reported.

A flight from London to Calais, August 8, started Edward's one-month vacation which took him on an extended cruise on the yacht Nahlin, in the Adriatic sea, along the Dalmatian coast.

CITY AND NATION WILL UNITE TODAY TO HONOR LABOR

Parade, Afternoon Program of Speaking and Play at Grant Park on Well-Rounded Schedule.

Labor will marshal its forces today to display its far-reaching legions in a colorful and brilliant parade through the granite canyons of downtown Atlanta, a tribute themselves to the daring, power and skill of the workmen.

In one of the most impressive and extensive parades of all the years of Labor Day celebrations, men, women and children will march forward in a colorful phalanx in memory of the spirit which built a civilization in this country from a wilderness. Gaily-decorated floats will add their color in pantomimes of the service of labor to the people. Bands of numerous Atlanta organizations will play to the rhythm of marching feet.

NEW YORK GREETS BRITISH AIRWOMAN

Mrs. Markham, "Overwhelmed" at Reception, Met by Crowd of 5,000.

FLOYD BENNETT AIRPORT, NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(UP)—Whistles, sirens and the shout of "Hello, Blondie," greeted Mrs. Beryl Markham, 31-year-old English society matron today as she arrived by plane from Nova Scotia—first woman to fly the Atlantic westward.

Mrs. Markham arrived in a plane piloted by Arthur Bussey, which landed here at 4:16 p. m., after stopping at North Beach airport by mistake. Her own blue ship is a wreck in the Nova Scotian swamp where she landed after she ran out of fuel.

Her golden hair whipped in the breeze as she hopped out of Bussey's plane. There were patches of adhesive tape on her forehead where she was injured in the forced landing, but she smiled at the crowd of 5,000.

A welcoming committee rushed forth to greet the woman who alone

MILL EMPLOYERS TO PUT ON 'HEAT,' REPORTS INDICATE

GOVERNOR PLANS GAINESVILLE TALK

Junior Senator Urges Hall Countians Not To Permit Demonstrations Against Foe in Race.

By L. A. FARRELL.

Believed by observers to be hopelessly defeated as his campaign for the United States senate draws to a close, Governor Talmadge today will begin a last desperate effort to stem the rising tide against him and his candidates.

In a move designed to bolster the faltering Talmadge-Redwine cause, it was learned last night that today and tomorrow every textile mill operator will call on his employes to back the Talmadge-Redwine ticket. Reports reaching Atlanta from the mill centers, where Talmadge and Redwine are being supported by the operators and vigorously opposed by the workers, said hand bills, issued in the names of the employers, and imploring the employes to rally to Talmadge and Redwine, will be placed in the hands of every worker, man and woman, today and tomorrow.

Basis of Appeal.

It is understood the "heat" put on the mill workers by their employers will not be in a threatening sense but will be more or less a plea to help save Talmadge and Redwine. The handbills prepared for distribution to the workers are said to claim that improved mill conditions in the last several years are due to Talmadge's efforts and the employers believe the workers should "let well enough alone."

Supporters of Senator Richard B.

Detroyat Is Winner Of $10,000 Air Race

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Lieutenant Michael Detroyat, pride of France, won a smashing victory in the $10,000 Louis W. Greve trophy race at the National Air races here today.

The Frenchman flashed into an immediate lead over a field of six American fliers and his supremacy never was in doubt during the 100-mile race, flown over a 20-lap five-mile course.

First place prize money was $4,500.

Detroyat is the son of the French air minister and the French government is reputed to have spent $5,000,000 in developing speed planes for the aviator. His plane today was the fifth built for him.

Detroyat broke the Greve speed record with an average of 247.300 miles per hour. The old mark was 215.257 miles per hour, set by Roy Minor in 1934.

Harold Neumann, Kansas City, was second and Art Chester, third.

Two contestants, Joe Jacobson, Kansas City, and Rudy Kling, Lemont, Ill., crashed and nosed over in the race, but escaped with cuts and bruises. The two accidents followed completion of the race and the ships were wrecked.

HIT, DUCKED IN RIVER, SAYS RIDE-ROB VICTIM

Man Tells Police He Was Forced To Pray Before Each Dousing.

A ride-rob victim who dragged himself into police station shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday morning with his clothes dripping and his head bruised, told police of having been forced into a car by two white men, struck over the head, ducked a dozen times in the Chattahoochee river and forced to say his prayers with each ducking.

Clarence Holland, the victim, of 2426 Piedmont road, reported to police he was stopped by two men in a car about 9:30 o'clock Saturday night at Marietta and Spring streets. They seized him and forced him into the car, the victim reported, and drove out Marietta street.

Robbed and Ducked.

The abductors stopped for gas at a filling station he was told was in Bolton and the men bought three bottles of beer, forcing him to drink one, Holland said. Then they drove on to the river, where he reported he was taken from the car and struck on the head by one of the men, who then took $5.85 from his pockets.

"I was dazed by the blow," Holland said, "so they ducked me in the river."

After the initial ducking, he reported, the holdup men seemed to take a fancy to the little exercise and ducked him 12 times, making him say a prayer with each ducking.

Holland was then placed in the car again and was driven back to Bolton, where he was thrown out. He described one of the men as being about 18 years old and the other about 24.

Two Bandits Get $19.

Another robbery, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning, cost W. G. Dickson, of 420 Adams street, N. E., a total of $19 in cash. Dickson reported to police two men he met at the Carnegie library asked him to go to their room at a downtown hotel, where they forced him to give them the money.

Arthur Crowell, of 111 Raymond street, was another robbery victim early yesterday morning. He reported to police he was delivering papers at 5:10 o'clock on Fort street when he was accosted by four negroes, two of them carrying pistols and the other two brandishing knives. A small amount of cash, a raincoat and a watch were taken from him.

Robert Spector, operator of a second-hand supply company at 220 Peters street, S. W., told police yesterday morning his place had been entered during the night and the safe rifled. The intruders entered through a rear door, he said, and took $1,000 worth of bonus bonds from an unlocked safe. They also took two gallons of white paint, valued at $3, he reported.

Awakened at 5 o'clock yesterday morning by a negro man in her room, Mrs. J. B. Young, of 299 Spring street, N. W., routed the burglar from the house by her screams. He fled through a rear window, by which he had gained entrance to the house, taking with him $5 in cash and a watch.

Day's Receipts Stolen.

An undetermined amount of cash was taken from a soft drink stand at 40 Forsyth street during Saturday night by burglars who entered the building through a rear door. Patrolman N. E. Vaughn found the door forced open on his round of inspection at 3:20 o'clock yesterday morning. The day's receipts had been taken, but the amount was not determined.

Angus Jones, of 270 Central avenue, reported to police yesterday his house had been entered about noon Saturday and between $95 and $115 taken. The intruders entered by forcing the front door. Neighbors who saw a man and woman leaving the residence supplied police with the suspects' names and a man was placed under arrest for questioning.

MAN HIT BY TRUCK DIES OF INJURIES

Roy Wright, 46, Succumbs; Death City's 42d Traffic Fatality.

Roy Wright, 46, of 470 Whitehall terrace, S. W., died yesterday in a private hospital of injuries suffered Thursday when he was struck by a truck at Peters and Fair streets.

Wright, a former service man, stepped into the path of a furniture company truck, witnesses informed police in absolving the driver, Linton Hailes, of 430 Chamberlain street, from blame. Wright's death marks the forty-second fatal traffic accident in the city limits of Atlanta since the first of the year and is the first auto death reported here since August 28.

Hailes was charged by police with reckless driving, but was released with a copy of the charges.

Wright is survived by his wife; four daughters, Louise, Olivia, Rudell and Ira Faye Wright; a son, Roy Wright Jr.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wright, Moultrie, Ga.; a sister, Mrs. Lona Jordan, Moultrie, and five brothers, Herbert Wright, Atlanta; Luther Wright, Macon; Gordon Wright, Albany; Orice Wright, Lakeland, Fla., and J. C. Wright, Moultrie.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Cornish Mountain Baptist church, near Covington, Ga., with the Rev. E. L. Crowe officiating.

Burial will be in the churchyard with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.

HAMILTON THANKS HIS SUPPORTERS

Ousted State Treasurer Is Confident Voters Will Re-elect Him.

George B. Hamilton, Talmadge-ousted state treasurer, who is seeking re-election to that office, yesterday issued a statement thanking the people of Georgia for their support in his race against J. B. "Toby" Daniel, appointed by Talmadge to the office following Hamilton's ejection.

Mr. Hamilton said:

"I cannot help but take this opportunity to express to the great number of my friends all over Georgia my deep and heartfelt gratitude for the splendid support they are giving me in my race for re-election to the office of state treasurer. I believe a vast majority of the citizens of Georgia feel as I do, that I was forcibly ousted from my office simply and solely for the reason that I refused to violate what I honestly believed to be my duty under the constitution and laws of this state. I could not then, and cannot in the future, bring myself to the point of stultifying my conscience by blindly being a 'yes man' when I know that to do so is contrary to my conception of what is right and legal.

"I have visited in nearly all of the counties of the state and believe that on next Wednesday the voters of Georgia will return me to the office of state treasurer by an overwhelming majority. I can but promise you in the future the same honest and faithful service I have rendered in the past. To the many hundreds of my friends who have volunteered their services to help me, knowing that I am compelled to run this race with no large campaign funds, I wish to give my thanks and appreciation.

Miami Drunken Drivers Face Rigid Jail Rules

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Hereafter, motorists arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated must remain in jail here for four hours before telephoning for aid.

Bondsmen and attorney must have written permission from the police captain on duty before being allowed to interview prisoners.

These were a part of the new regulations cutting down visiting hours at the city jail. They became effective today.

Guards will rigidly inspect all packages sent in from outside, and food cannot be sent to prisoners except in the case of sick persons.

ALLEN CHANDLER, 88, DIES IN EAST POINT

Allen Chandler, 88, pioneer East Point resident and Confederate veteran, died yesterday at his home, 222 Hendricks avenue, East Point. Until forced to forego physical activity by ill health, Mr. Chandler had been a leading planter of East Point.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. M. N. Lewis, Fairburn; Mrs. S. U. Slayton, Palmetto; Mrs. G. A. Cooper, East Point, and Mrs. J. M. Fambro, College Park, and two sons, T. A. Chandler, Atlanta, and W. A. Chandler, East Point.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the Hopewell Methodist church, near Fairburn, with the Rev. S. F. Griffin, assisted by the Rev. J. L. Waddell, officiating.

Confederate veterans and members of the East Point American Legion post will have charge of services at the grave. Grandsons will serve as pallbearers and burial will be in the churchyard with A. C. Hemperley & Sons in charge.

Training of Child at an Early Age Sets Character Mold, Says Expert

"With the opening of school at hand, parents to a certain degree will turn over their parental duties to the school teacher, and it is in the classroom that the early training of your child will show true results," yesterday said Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the State Department of Public Health.

"During a child's early years, he is being molded into a character pattern. Parents can do a great deal in babyhood and early childhood to determine what this pattern shall be, later they can do little," the health director stated.

Dr. Abercrombie pointed out that the first and most important task of childhood is to form good habits.

"A child learns through much effort the habit of balancing himself on his two feet, of putting one foot in front of the other, of shaping his lips and placing his tongue in certain ways to form sounds we call words. Most children are given much help and encouragement in building up these habits, yet in forming certain other habits, no less important, they receive little help."

Proper supervision of these stages of walking and talking is important, the health director stated, but equally important is to use care in seeing that the child learns to be even-tempered, obedient, friendly with others, and speaks the truth.

Born to Imitate.

The fact that children are born imitators is important for the parent to know, Dr. Abercrombie said, in view of the fact that the child reflects to a high degree the habits of his father and mother.

"If a child sees his parents even-tempered, calm, courteous, kind, fair-minded, honest and courageous, he is likely to have these qualities. If on the other hand, they fly off the handle, disagree violently, are unfair in dealing with him and with each other, lie to him and each other, and worry in his presence, he may follow their example," Dr. Abercrombie pointed out.

The forming of good habits and bad are also important, Dr. Abercrombie said. Suggestions as to how a parent should go about encouraging desirable habits and discouraging undesirable ones include the serving of meals as attractively as possible at a regular time; acting as though you enjoyed eating all kinds of foods and expected your child to do so; making mealtime a pleasant time; avoiding scolding or any disagreeable discussions at the table; not talking about the child's likes and dislikes before him; to not coax or try to force a child to eat; giving him 30 minutes for his meal, and then if it is not eaten, to take it away. Do not give him food between meals, and never feed him when he is old enough to feed himself."

Preventing Tantrums.

Preventing temper tantrums is also important in the early training of your child, Dr. Abercrombie advised.

"In handling children with temper tantrums, it is best to find out first what is the cause of the outburst of bad temper. Sometimes more sleep is needed, as many a child has been unjustly thought ill-tempered when he really was only a tired child. Improper food, overexcitement, or lack of play and exercise are other causes. Children need plenty of play."

"Never give into a child or let him have what he wants during a temper spell. Ignore him when he loses his temper and make it clear that he gains nothing by it. Do not shout at him or show any anger, as the more he loses his temper, the more important it is for you to keep yours. Children often develop the habit of flying into fits of bad temper as a means of attracting attention or of obtaining their desires," the health director said.

Train to Obey.

Training in obedience should start in the child's first year of life, and the child should quietly be shown that obedience is expected, the health director advised.

"Never frighten, tease or shame him into obeying and do not bribe him. Make him understand that there are certain things he must do, and certain things he must not do. The intelligent child should expect reasons for your commands, so be sure you are right and then be firm.

Keeping fears from taking root is equally important in child rearing, Dr. Abercrombie said. "Most children are born without fear, so it is important that you never terrify him by unpleasant experiences, threats or stories. Never threaten a child who has done wrong with witches, bogies or wild animals, and do not suggest that thunder, lightning or the dark is to be feared, if they are afraid of the dark it is usually because they have been made to fear it by thoughtless adults."

Backwardness, while usually the result of mental limitations or bad mental adjustments, may have its origin in physical troubles such as diseased tonsils or ademoids; defects of hearing or sight; malnutrition or habitual mouth breathing, Dr. Abercrombie stated.

"Any such physical causes should be removed at the earliest possible moment."

MRS. LAMAR PRAISES RUSSELL'S SERVICE

Dignity and Modesty of Junior Senator Warmly Commended.

Introducing Senator Richard E. Russell Jr. at the Macon Russell rally Friday, Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, historian-general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, declared the present junior senator has shown himself a worthy and intelligent statesman by serving his first term in the senate with dignity, modesty and observing quietness.

"When a new man goes to the United States senate it behooves him to walk softly, to observe studiously the ways of his colleagues, to try to learn and not endeavor to lead," Mrs. Lamar said. "Forced feading of his ego to a long-suffering public stultifies him and arrests his development."

Russell, the speaker said, typifies in his beliefs all the principles for which the south has stood through the years, and has conducted himself with commendable southern dignity and intelligence on the floor of the senate.

"Some grave and reverend seniors still maintain the traditional dignity of the senate, still make it an august body, and it has been a source of pride to his fellow Georgians that the junior senator, after many political triumphs in his state, recognizes the need of conservatism and modesty during his initial services at the capitol of the nation."

In her introductory speech, Mrs. Lamar flayed southerners who show sympathy with Republican beliefs, platforms and legislation, declaring they always have been biased against the south.

COOK IS CONFIDENT OF BALLOT VICTORY

Candidate for Secretary of State Thanks His Supporters.

Lawrence D. Cook, seeking the office of secretary of state, issued a statement Monday that, having visited every section of the state, and practically every county, he feels "very confident of an overwhelming victory in the primary on Wednesday."

"My friends throughout the state," Mr. Cook said, "have assured me of their loyal and staunch support and I am deeply grateful for their expressions of confidence and their very active and unselfish interest in my candidacy. Since the day of my announcement in July, we have been kept busy answering letters, telegrams and communications of all kinds from people all over the state, hundreds of whom I have never had the pleasure of knowing before, but who realize, along with the thousands of others, that the time has come for a change in the administration of the duties of this office.

"A true Democrat of the old order, it is my sincere belief that I shall have an overwhelming victory on the ninth of September, thereby giving me the privilege of attaining for the office of secretary of state the highest plane of efficiency and public service possible.

"I do not bear the indorsement, nor have I had the assistance of any other candidate or group, during my campaign. Following my original announcement, I have conducted an absolutely independent campaign and have refrained from the usual political falsehoods, insinuations and trickery."

'I'm Wholeheartedly for Russell,' Says Jacksonville's Mayor Alsop

Former Georgian Visits City on Good Will Tour for Florida.

John Alsop, now serving his fifth term as mayor of Jacksonville, Fla., reached Atlanta last night on the first lap of his twelfth annual good-will tour.

Alsop is an alumnus of Mercer University and was captain of the football team at Mercer in 1894. For 10 years he has been bringing the Florida hosts to Atlanta to attend the annual Florida-Tech football games.

Before going to Florida to live 38 years ago, Alsop practiced law in Cordele, and he is a great admirer of Senator Walter George because they started their careers as lawyers together in old Dooley county.

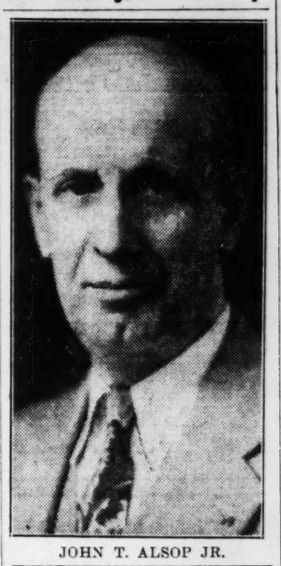

Alsop is one of the most earnest and sincere boosters of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and his administration, and while most of the addresses which he will deliver on his tour through Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio and New York will be for the purpose of creating good will between the citizens of these states and his own state of Florida, he also will make speeches in some of the key cities in behalf of the President.

Alsop says while he does not want to crash into the political fight now raging in Georgia, he and thousands of other former Georgians residing in Florida are tremendously interested in the fight between Dick Russell and Governor Talmadge. Alsop says with great earnestness that he is "wholeheartedly for Dick Russell for the United States senate and not only for Russell, but against Talmadge." He says that as a Democrat, though living in Florida, he feels he has a right to express his views frankly in the fight between Russell and Talmadge. "Because of Talmadge's unwarranted attacks on the President and the administration," he asserts, "this fight has become a great national issue. The eyes of the entire nation will be on Georgia Wednesday."

In answer to Talmadge's assertion that Russell talks in Georgia but doesn't talk in Washington, Alsop says. "Dick Russell's whole record shows he has been a man of action in the United States senate, loyally supporting the administration, and, as a patriotic Georgian, he has supported and fought for all measures which have had for their objective the building of a bigger and better southland."

Alsop says that having lived in Georgia and having many relatives and friends all over Georgia, he has an abiding faith in the integrity and loyalty of the people of the Empire state of the south, and he says, further, that "it is unthinkable that the good people of Georgia will forsake the President and Dick Russell and send to Washington a man who will, if he can, tear asunder the whole Democratic party."

Mr. and Mrs. Alsop will leave for Chattanooga this afternoon over the Dixie highway. Mayor Alsop made speeches in Atlanta and Chattanooga in October, 1929, when the new Dixie highway between Atlanta and Chattanooga was officially opened.

War Vet, 95, Issues Foot Race Challenge

TAVARES, Fla., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Tomorrow is the 66th wedding anniversary of T. A. Hux, 95-year-old veteran of the War Between the States. But that is only part of the story.

Hux, who wore the gray of the Confederacy, challenged Adam Hazelwood to a foot race as part of his anniversary celebration. Hazelwood, a Union veteran, of Mount Dora, declined the challenge.

"Hux is too young for me to whip in a foot race and have his whole future spoiled," Hazelwood stated.

"Huh," countered the former Confederate soldier: "I'll bet the Yankee is afraid of me."

He then made his challenge an open one to any person over 90 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. Hux were married in Lake county, Florida, 66 years ago had have lived in Tavares ever since.

A. F. OF L. CHIEF URGES SUBSTITUTE FOR NRA

Green, in Topical Message, Says Employment Must Be Open to All.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 6.—(AP) William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, tonight called for a new national effort to regulate hours of work and increase purchasing power.

Emphasizing the "mental and moral deterioration" cause by unemployment he declared in a Labor Day radio address there was an inescapable duty of so organizing our production plans and rules that no one shall be crowded out or normal employment."

"Substantial progress had been made toward this end under the National Recovery Act until that progress was halted by the supreme court," he said. "New ways must be found to accomplish this purpose along the lines of regulation of the hours of work and increasing purchasing power for the lower income groups so that production can be expanded to a scale that would provide the comforts of life for all."

Green made no mention of the rift in the American Federation of Labor.

He urged "government assistance for low-cost housing, both as an investment in national welfare and as a method of putting building tradesmen back to work."

Proclaiming a need for "social security," Green asserted although "present provisions may be inadequate and incomplete," they represented an important advance on the part of labor. He added:

"The passage of the Social Security Act authorized the development of income reserves to provide against emergencies likely to happen to all wage earners. Gradually these provisions must be strengthened and expanded."

The labor leader termed the right to collective bargaining "the only key to those fundamental liberties that mean ownership on one's own labor power."

"The degree to which there is freedom for wage earners to organize in unions of their own choosing and that freedom is accepted by employers and the agents of organized society, to that degree has fundamental freedom been established in the country," he said.

"Where there are free unions, freedom of speech and press are also unmolested. If labor would be free, there must be freedom for all and democratic freedom that makes possible the greatest opportunity for the greatest number."

AIR OFFICIALS PROBE CRASH OF FAIR PLANE

doubt whether the pilot, Eric Beckley, 35, of suburban Hazlewood, and his nine passengers died from the crash or the flames.

Colonel J. Carroll Cone, assistant director of the Bureau of Aeronautics, Department of Commerce, came from Washington today to conduct an inquiry. He will work with the Allegheny county coroner's office and airport officials in an effort to determine what caused the ship to swerve suddenly from its accustomed circular course about the airport and plunge to the ground.

Formal Report Made.

John Herron, on watch in the airport tower directing traffic over the big field used by Transcontinental Transport Lines, gave this formal report:

"Fatal accident occurred at 9:15 eastern standard time. The Stinson tri-motor N. C. 11175, piloted by Eric Beckley and owned by Howard-Borandi, was sighted traveling toward east-south-east, wind was southeast five. Tower cleared Pilot Beckley for west-east takeoff at 9:12 p. m. "Signed off T. W. A. flight seven and glanced to see where Beckley was. He was heading west approximately 400 feet above ground, northeast of the field. He seemed to be losing altitude rapidly. Approximately five or six seconds later, the ship disappeared from view, and instantly a burst of flame became visible. The siren was blown several seconds before the ship actually crashed at 9:15."

Meade Cunningham, inspector for the Bureau of Aeronautics, said the ship had been given inspection regularly, and it wasn't time for another check-up yet.

"We are getting its log books and will go into the affair thoroughly."

Aid Rushed.

Fire-fighting apparatus from the airport dashed toward the wreck immediately upon the sounding of the siren, but was unable to reach the scene quickly over narrow lanes through an orchard.

Crowds at the airport and nearby fair grounds, too, rushed over the winding lanes. They scattered in terror after a gasoline tank in the shattered ship exploded and hurled flames high in the air.

Today, other crowds pushed over the narow dirt roads seeking a glimpse of the wreckage.

One farmer posted signs along a lane beside his fields:

"25 cents to cross field and see wreck."

SPAIN'S REDS REGAIN VITAL SOUTHERN AREA

one, the serried militia battalions drove the insurgents back nearly 15 miles west of the town in a series of smashing forward and flank attacks from the hills bordering the main road.

"Every one of our boys down there is like a devil incarnate," Major Carlos Contreras, nigh staff officer directing the militia operations, told the Associated Press.

"After six weeks in the mountain front lines, they fight like furies, determined not to let a single Rebel escape alive."

An Important Victory.

He added:

"Our victory eliminates the hitherto imminent danger of a march on Madrid. Now that we have got Talavera—the nerve center of our communications between Madrid and Toledo in the south and Madrid and Merida in the west—we can sweep every rebel out of the Tagus valley.

"They made it easy for us in their eagerness to march on Madrid. They were foolish enough to leave guerilla bands of the armed peasants, loyal to the government, roaming the country at their rear and continually harassing their flank."

With the victory, government officials said they believed it was impossible for the Rebels to reach Toledo, where hundreds of Fascists and their families are barricaded in the famous Alcazar, under continual shellfire.

All bridges on the road to Toledo have been blown up, the government declared.

Stemming of the Rebel advance up the Tagus, Major Contreras said, was of enormous significance when it was remembered this was the traditional route of all the conquistadores of history, seeking to subdue Castile.

We Would Burn Madrid!

"Not that the rebels would ever have found any Madrid to capture, even if they had broken through our lines," he added in measured tones.

"We would have burned it!"

He laughed shortly and added:

"We would have utterly destroyed it, just as our militia commits suicide rather than surrender to the Rebels and their torture.

"But now we will have no need to go that far."

Some 1,800 Talavera sector refugees, harbored in a deserted Madrid church, prepared to return to their homes, assured by the government they could re-enter the district in perfect safety.

But before the Rebels lost the city of Talavera, official quarters stated, they took the loyal commander, 23-year-old Andres Martin, and 75 of his men prisoners, whipped them almost unconscious with bevolver belts and then shot them in the market place.

Major Contreras dwelt at length on what he said was the immense moral effect on the militia produced by Francisco Largo Caballero's assumption of the premiership last week.

Fighters Take Heart.

"They know now that they are being directed intelligently, for they trust Caballero and they trust General Jose Asensio, whom Caballero has named commander for central Spain.

"They know that if they die it will not be the fault of the haphazard and weak-kneed command which characterized the last administration.

"We shall now take the offensive and attack the Rebels where they are weak; where we want to attack them instead of, as before, attacking where they are strong and able to repel us."

Oviedo Next.

Oviedo, capital of the mining country in the north, is likely to be the next Rebel stronghold which the government will make a determined effort to seize, he added.

"We want Oviedo because its capture will leave 20,000 grim Asturian miners free to give their attention to other Rebel districts," the major declared.

Asked whether the government might stay its hand to save the lives of some 600 Madrid supporters who have been held hostage in beleaguered Oviedo, he answered:

"We will do all we can to save them, but we cannot play with the lives of 24,000,000 Spaniards for the sake of 600."

The bridge dynamiting, as well as the Talavera offensive, was part of a new and fierce drive to "exterminate" the Fascist rebels in the south and west.

Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, dynamic new Socialist minister of state, today demanded a full report on the incident involving an attempted bombing of the United States destroyer Kane. That was one of his first jobs when he arrived at his desk in the old palace of Plaza Las Provincias.

(Editor's Note: Thirteen words of the dispatch were here deleted by the Madrid censor. So far, both the Spanish government and the Rebels have disclaimed responsibility for the bombing.)

Alvarez Del Vayo, who in dress, at least, is the Anthony Eden of the new Largo Cabellero government, also warned all countries that Spain expected to receive from them the same respect it was ready to accord to foreign powers.

His remarks were interpreted as a specific reference to Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany.

Thrusting aside his revolver, open-necked shirt and khaki overalls, the young and bespectacled minister reached his office in a suit that might have been tailored in Saville Row. He wore suede shoes.

Change Censorship.

Other ministry officials, who had been lounging with their shirts open at the necks, hurriedly donned neckties and smartened up to receive their new chief.

He declared Spanish foreign relations were good, and said the government had no intention of breaking relations with Germany and Italy.

The government's cause, he added, has been "grossly misrepresented abroad." Hence, the new minister said, he was determined to make press censorship "more intelligent."

Alvarez Del Vayo indicated Spain would remain pacifist, a firm supporter of the League of Nations covenant.

Alcazar About to Fall.

With the Rebel advance on both Toledo and Madrid believed definitely stopped, and with planes and artillery pouring devastation into the retreating insurgent ranks, the fall of the Toledo Alcazar appeared possible at any moment. Government forces were making final preparations to storm the building.

Fresh columns of militia were rushed to Talavera tonight to relieve the victorious troops, wearied from 70 hours of intense fighting.

The government announced the forces of General Emilio Mola at Talavera broke into disorderly retreat, unable to resist the withering fire of the militia.

Officials were unanimous in terming the victory "magnificent."

Commander Experienced.

Largo Caballero's action in placing General Jose Asensio at the full command of loyal forces was regarded by observers as the most sane measure taken so far to co-ordinate government defenses.

Up to now, lack of co-ordination has been one of the government's biggest drawbacks.

Asensio, elevated to the rank of commander upon taking over his new post, is an outstanding military figure.

He is 42 years old, the same age as the Rebel commander-in-chief, General Francisco Franco, and entered the military service two days before the insurgents chieftain, in 1907.

His wide experience as a member of the general staff plus a deep knowledge of military tactics gained in African campaigns, made him particularly well qualified for his new comma l.

Tall and rugged, he has a jovial but commanding personality. He is a stickler for discipline and believes in rapid decisions.

An apparent immediate effect of the appointment was a general tightening up of the militia units.

Before the full importance of the Talavera victory became known, the government had announced a successful assault on Rebel fortifications in Malaga province.

Column Annihilated.

The column which was dynamited, after a point near Montefrio, 25 miles west of Granada, was on its way to Malaga to reinforce Rebels besieging that southern seaport.

Slipping through insurgent lines, the 19-year-old boy planted dynamite under the span, just before the Rebels were to cross. When the entire bridge was occupied by marching rebels, he pressed a distant detonator, blasting the structure to bits and killing many.

"Survivors were attacked by the militiamen with hand grenades," the government said. "The whole column was annihilated. Only one militiaman was killed."

In the northwest, a column of government reinforcements, maintaining communication with northern war zones, reached Pola de Gordon, about 19 miles north of Leon.

Syndicalists, announcing they had refused to accept representation in the new cabinet of Premier Francisco Largo Caballero because the government was not in keeping with their "spiritual revolutionary character," agreed to support the regime to avoid any break in the united leftist front.

They did, however, demand equal representation with Socialists and left Republicans on all executive juntas.

JEWS AND CATHOLICS FEAR NAZI CONGRESS

activities of the church. They were apprehensive lest the church's influence over its youth be curtailed; lest the assembled Nazis seek to make capital of the recent arrests of nuns and priests on charges of smuggling money from the country.

Jews based the "passport" hint on the increasing difficulty met by them in leaving the country.

Many signs pointed to possible drastic restrictions of Jewish activity in the business field.

Seven Restrictions Seen.

There were seven restrictions which many believed would become law after the convention either by simple decree of Der Fuehrer or, as last year, by vote of the Reichstag in special session. They were:

No non-Aryan may be administrator of property or manager of an apartment house or houses.

No non-Aryan may engage in the real estate business.

Jews whose property is encumbered by first mortgages must submit to foreclosure in favor of the Gentile mortgage holder.

Non-Aryans may no longer be professional advisers on taxation, foreign exchange and business law matters.

Loan and mortgage brokerage may be forbidden to non-Aryans.

Non-Aryans may no longer function as experts in courts or before arbitration boards.

May Bar Non-Aryans.

The Reich's federation of brokers may exclude non-Aryans from membership.

First big display of Nazi power will be the march of 50,000 tanned, hardened and militarily disciplined members of the Hitler youth organization on Fuerth, a suburb of Nurnberg, from 25 directions to attend the convention.

Arranged in 380 groups from every part of the Reich, they started July 23 on a six-week hike to Nurnberg. Graduall, the 380 groups merged into 25 bands which will reach Fuerth at the same time tomorrow.

They will move into a tent city and await the moment Thursday when the dream of their young lives is fulfilled.

Will Hear Hitler.

That dream will be the privilege of appearing before Adolf Hitler in the vast Nurnberg stadium and listening to his admonition for them to become real Nazis and carry on Der Fuehrer's work.

The marching distance from Berlin to Fuerth is 385 miles, and the Berlin boys did 11 to 12 miles each day on marching days. Every third day was set aside for sightseeing in cities or sports programs in the country.

In many ways the youths resembled an army. The discipline was strict, rations were prepared in field kitchens and they made under army-type of regulations.

There even were guard mounting ceremonies, pass words and furloughs.

MRS. BERYL MARKHAM ARRIVES IN NEW YORK

in a tiny monoplane without a radio, took off from Abindon airdrome, England, for a 3,700-mile non-stop flight to New York city and almost made it.

"I am overwhelmed at this marvelous reception which I feel I do not deserve," Mrs. Markham said. "But I do wish I could have come here in my own plane."

She was thinking of her blue 200-horsepower Gull which still lay near the swamp at Baleine Cove, its propellor torn off, the motor broken, the left wing smashed and the landing gear shattered. It had carried her for 24 hours and 40 minutes.

She wore a blue blouse and gray trousers. Everybody shouted as she was taken to the cocktail room of the administration building. She turned frequently and waved back. A few minutes later she was taken to Manhattan in a large black automobile decorated with United States and British flags. A motorcycle escort preceded the car.

Escorted to City.

With her went Lord and Lady J. C. Carberry, of the British Kenya colony in East Africa, where Mrs. Markham tamed wild horses during her girlhood and later learned to fly. Also in the party were Commander James Bayliss, of the United States coast guard; Harold Fowler, acting police commissioner, who represented Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia; Kenneth Behr, airport manager, and Harry Bruno, her agent.

Mrs. Markham flew down from Louisburg, N. S., with stops at Halifax, Portland, Maine, and Boston. Crowds greeted her everywhere. Premier MacDonald met her in Halifax. She had spent the night in Louisburg after trudging three miles through mud to get aid.

Applies Powder, Lipstick.

As 100 persons laughed and jostled her, Mrs. Markham expertly applied powder and lipstick. Then, smiling, she turned to answer questions.

"What do you thing of it all?" she was asked.

"Well, I'm terribly happy to be here. I'm only sorry that I couldn't have flown all the way."

"Do you expect to fly back?"

"I may possibly go back by plane."

Asked about her injuries, Mrs. Markham pointed to the adhesive tape and said: "It is a bit painful over the left eye here."

She had been thrown against the instrument board when her plane landed. As she raised her hand, reporters saw she wore two wrist watches, one given her by Captain James Mollison just before she took off in England. She smiled gaily as she talked.

Cocktail Prepared.

She said she was thirsty and someone suggested orange juice.

"Something a bit stronger, I think," she answered.

"How about a champagne cocktail?"

"That would be fine."

As the drink was being made, she said her plane had not been damaged beyond repair. Asked about her biggest thrill, she answered:

"It was a vision of settling down on the Atlantic when I noticed that my petrol was giving out about 200 miles off Harbor Grace."

The weather, she said, was "lousy." She referred to the strong headwinds which buffeted her tiny monoplane until she was covered with bruises, the rain and fog which prevented her from seeing land until she had crossed Newfoundland and the terrific storm through which her ship had to fight, using far more gas than she had planned.

After the crash, she telephoned her husband that "another five minutes in the air would have meant disaster and almost certain death." He quoted her as saying she would not fly the Atlantic again "for a million sterling."

As the car bearing her rolled away from the airport, Mrs. Markham tossed a cigaret from the window and waved again.

BLUM FLATLY REFUSES TO AID SPANISH REDS

Premier Scorns Big Strike Call and Hecklers at Celebration.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Facing down shouts of "airplanes for Spain!" and the call of a one-hour strike of 230,000 Paris district metal workers, Premier Leon Blum flatly refused tonight to yield to Communist pressure for an end to non-intervention in Spain.

Before a Socialist mass meeting at Luna park, the Socialist premier made it plain he was determined that France maintain an attitude of strict neutrality.

Militant Socialists, even before the close of his speech, filled the hall with the roar: "Long live Blum!" the premier had been greeted earlier with cries of "Airplanes for Spain!"

Blum also warned the metal workers that their strike, if prolonged, imperil France's own defense.

The strike was called for tomorrow in protest against the neutrality policy.

This policy, the Communists argue, has contributed to "suicide of the Spanish people" because, they contend, Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany are arming the Rebels.

No Proof of Violation.

Blum, however, told his followers that "no proof exists" that any nation has "violated its word" since acceptance of the French neutrality plan, which both Italy and Germany have subscribed to.

"If I am being asked to go back on the word of my government and on our signature," the tall premier shouted, "I shall reply today, as yesterday, no!"

He stood on a platform under giant pictures of Robespierre, Mirabeau and Marat. The occasion was the celebration of the 66th anniversary of proclamation of the third republic.

He reminded the Socialists that Soviet Russia had joined the international neutrality agreement.

Fighting to keep the Spanish war from wrecking his regime, the premier, in a conference with Leon Jouhaux, head of the general labor confederation, was reported to have asked the labor leader to keep Communists from fomenting a wave of strikes to back up their demand that France help arm Madrid.

The Communist organ, Humanite, asserted France was a "powerless dupe," standing idly by while "Germany and Italy send boatloads of arms and planes to Spanish Fascists."

What About Russia?

Blum's newspaper, Populaire, replied with the tart suggestion that the Communists ask Soviet Russia to lift its own arms ban against Madrid.

In an open letter to the metal workers' union, Blum stated:

"Your cessation of work, if prolonged, will only delay the manufacture of material indispensable for national defense.

"The strike cannot make me change my mind on the conduct I believe is imposed on the government by present circumstances.

"If this stand places me in opposition to your organization's on the grave question (of neutrality), the strike is still useless.

"The general confederation of labor has only to let me know its position. The government will immediately examine the consequences."

URGE TO 'GO PLACES' JUMPS U. S. TRAVEL

year is at an all-time peak and has exceeded hopes of operators.

Bus transportation is at a new record, but the increase in some sections of the country is less than the "normal" anticipated, largely as result of more aggressive rail competition.

Auto travel has established a new high for seven years, with the new trailer fad playing a major role in longer trips.

Most significant factors in the general pick-up are that little of the gains in the different modes of travel has been made at the expense of competing carriers, that the working men and women actually are "seeing America first" and that revenues are holding up well or even showing gains despite widespread rate slashes.

Improvement Sensational.

The improvement, called "sensational" by travel agents, is attributed to four major factors. They are:

1. The business recovery and the subsequent increased national income which provides the public with funds for other than necessities.

2. Reduced rates on railroads, air lines, buses and some types of ship travel and lower food and hotel costs as result of co-operative efforts of travel agents.

3. New equipment which is general on all carriers, adding to comfort and safety of passengers and making for speedier travel.

4. Increased advertising expenditures; many carriers making the first concerted effort in years to merchandise their services to the public.

American railroads, which witnessed a steady recession of passenger business from 1923 to 1934, are reaping major benefits from the revival.

Charles A. Melvin, of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis railroad, told the United Press that passenger traffic in the east is "up to the best in a decade." He attributed the rise largely to the new 2-cent-a-mile rate.

Gain Despite Cut Rates.

Hugh H. Siddal, chairman of the Transcontinental & Western Passenger Associations, said western roads this year probably will receive $120,000,000 in passenger receipts, despite the rate cuts, an increase of about $30,000,000 over the depression low.

He said he expected western carriers to show a gain of 20 per cent in passenger revenue this year. That, authorities claim, should indicate an increase of about 40 per cent in number of passengers transported.

"Many people who never before have been on trains now are traveling," Harry A. Lawrence, general agent for the Union Pacific here, said. He predicted the road will show 1936 revenue 35 to 40 per cent ahead of 1935, on a better than 100 per cent increase in passenger traffic. July witnessed a 129 per cent increase in passenger travel on that road, he said.

He attributed the gains to new "super" equipment, the low rates, the fact that air-conditioning and other innovations has made upper berths as comfortable as "lowers" and increased mechandising efforts. Special coaches and smoking cars for "ladies only" and meals scaled between 25 and 35 cents also has helped, he claimed.

A spokesman for the New York Central said passenger revenues for the first seven months were $3,963,236 over the 1935 period and that the passenger numerical increase probably was 25 per cent. Further expansion is expected, he said. The company's experiments with new Pullmans, featuring double-tiered bedrooms, was successful, he pointed out. The bedrooms, he contended, are real rather than berths. The upper rooms are reached by a staircase.

Little Recession Expected.

Other roads reported gains for the first seven months ranging from 11.3 per cent to 18 per cent, with July travel up as much as 37 per cent over 1935. Little recession was anticipated. Ali pointed to the progress in new equipment as a major factor, but the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe and the Chesapeake & Ohio placed emphasis on their efforts to sell their services to the public. Elimination of the Pullman surcharge aided also.

Fred H. Dietz, editor of Travel Agent, said European travel is at the best rate since 1930, but considerably below that year and 1929. Total number of passengers eastbound the first seven months this year was approximately 229,000, the best for the recovery, but 140,000 below the 1929 and 1930 movement.

He explained that many lines were operating at or near capacity because 89 ships totaling 1,488,787 tons have been withdraw.. since 1929, while in the same period only 38 ships totaling 673,614 tons were placed in service. Also in the first seven months this year, the 95 ships considered a factor in the trade made only 520 eastbound voyages, compared with 150 ships and 600 trips in 1929.

Dietz said American ships were making a good showing and that he believed more American ships should enter the field.

England Travel Heavy.

More than 300,000 tourists will visit England this summer, according to the Travel Agent. Among the unique items of English travel are the advance hotel and steamship reservations for the coronation celebration next year.

Passenger activities on the Great Lakes this season were distinguished by many extra cruises and the largest number of July voyages since the "Lakes" boom of 1927, the publication said. River traffic has increased sharply, and several inland steamship lines are contemplating additional equipment to handle overflow crowds.

The Cunard White Star line with the Queen Mary and the French line with the Normandie, both the "ultra" in ocean travel, are establishing new records for five years, but greatest increase has been created by the steady advance in traffic on the United States lines cabin ships, the Manhattan and Washington. The latter two vessels, Dietz said, are making inroads on foreign flag ships, a significant factor in maritime history.

The Grace line, carrying bulk of the movement to the South American continent, reported capacity bookings in the face of recent rate increases. Shipplying to other continents told similar stories.

Air Travel Increased.

Air travel both here and abroad is the heaviest in history. In July, official statistics showed, 110,690 passengers were carried on scheduled airlines, an all-time high. May and June also established records. Vacation business featured the rise this year and was in excess of anticipations. Increases ranged to over 100 per cent. Growing confidence in the safety of airplanes, partly as result of new airlines and partly as result of the favorable records set up by the leaders, has been a stimulant in such travel.

Motor buses were operating at record rates, but pick-up in some sectors was less than expected. One large company said business was the best in its history and that revenue was holding up although prices had been cut 30 to 40 per cent on short hauls. Buses generally carry capacity loads, the new coaches featuring safety, comfort and speed attracting new business.

Bus Lines Experiment.

One line, it was learned, is experimenting with a new coach which carries the motor in back of the vehicle. The advantages include, additional safety margin since drivers have a better view of the road, elimination of gasoline fumes and reducing vibration and noises. Other lines said business was at records, but that rail competition had tempered gains over previous years.

Preliminary estimates indicate that approximately 40,000,000 auto tourists will spend about $4,500,000,000 this year, a 10 per cent gain over last year and the best since the depression. More than 3,000,000 Americans entered Quebec this year, many of whom were motorists. July over-the-border traffic was up sharply, pulling volume for the first seven months up more than 15 per cent over last year.

Even better results are expected for 1937 as result of the heavy purchasing of automobiles this year and the high rate of production which is the best since the 1929 boom.

Every majo federal highway in the nation today is distinguished by the growing number of auto trailers. Special camps have been designed for them. The public is going in a big way for the "house on wheels" and 1937 expectations are for a sensational rise.

FRANCE AND POLAND SEAL MILITARY PACT

President LeBrun's chateau with Premier Leon Blum, Minister of Defense Edouard Deladier, Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos, Minister of the Navy Alphonse Gasnier-Du Parc, and scores of French and Polish diplomatic and military experts.

Delbos received the British ambassador and the Czechoslovakian and Yugoslavian ministers to tell them details of the Franco-Polish agreement.

Daladier prepared to put into action his program of building up the arms efficiency of the natiou approved yesterday by the French cabinet.

More than 40,000 troops gathered at Draunguignan for maneuvers which started nearly two weeks ago with a mock battle between defending forces and invaders marching from the Mediterranean cost or the Italian border.

Daladier announced creation of a superior college of national defense which will combine courses in military strategy, and political, financial, economic and normal subjects.

A decree which constituted the college will be presented tomorrow to President Lebrun for signature.

Daladier declared: "It was indispensable that we unite in one group the high officers of the three defense branches—army, navy, air force—with leaders in civilian life as well as prominent men in foreign affairs, finance, national economy and public works."

Vice Admiral Raoul Caste was named director to supervise the four-month term of study.

SUSPECT WILL VIEW WESLEY AMOTT'S BODY

the body is held pending its removal to Salt Lake City.

"I feel," said Giles, "we have a case against Greene that will stand up."

On the docket besides Greene's name were only the two words: "For investigation." Chief Giles said the man will be turned over to authorities of Elmore county where Amott's body was found.

Meanwhile, the government worker's associates, describing him as a man of fine character, said Amott's kindness may have been responsible for the fate that befell him. They and authorities said he probably gave a hitch-hiker a ride in his car, thus unwittingly exposing himself to a death trap.

C. R. Amott, of Indianapolis, brother of the slain man, said the body will be taken to Salt Lake City probably tomorrow.

A letter from
CLAUD H. HUTCHESON

As a citizen of Clayton County, I am asking my friends—and all fair-minded voters—of Fulton County to support Mr. W. V. Whaley for Senator of the Thirty-fifth District, composed of Fulton, Henry and Clayton Counties, in next Wednesday's Primary.

We have been working under a gentleman's agreement for the past 36 years as follows: Fulton to furnish the senator for two terms, Clayton and Henry, one each.

Fulton has furnished the senator for the past two terms.

Mr. Everett Millican, who was the senator for the last session, is now a candidate for senator, to be voted upon September 9.

Mr. Millican came to Jonesboro in May of this year to see Mr. P. K. Dixon, one of the members of the Executive Committee of the Thirty-fifth Senatorial District, appointed by Mr. Millican.

Mr. Millican asked Mr. Dixon to seriously consider the advisability of Clayton waiving her claim, to which we were entitled under the gentleman's agreement, to Fulton and that Clayton could furnish the senator two years later. He also stated to Mr. Dixon that should there not be unanimous consent that Clayton waive its claim to the senatorship at this time, that he would not be a candidate, but should another candidate offer from Fulton that he, Mr. Millican, would vote for the Clayton County candidate.

He has denied making this statement, but Mr. Dixon, who has been Clerk of Court for our county for the past 12 years, and of unimpeachable character, has made affidavit of the above facts.

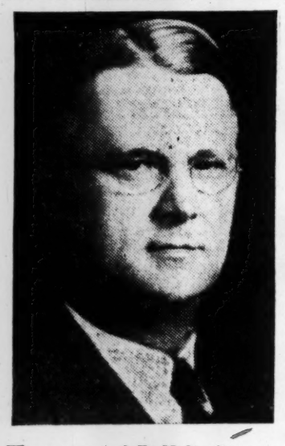

We also have an affidavit made by Mr. E. J. Wells, Chairman of the Board of Commissioners of our county, that Mr. Millican made the same statement to him. Mr. Wells is an uncle of Mr. Jere Wells, Superintendent of County Schools of Fulton.

Mr. Whaley was senator from Thirty-fifth District eight years ago and is numbered as one of our outstanding citizens and would make an acceptable senator to Fulton and the other counties of the district.

We are appealing to the voters of Fulton County to support Mr. Whaley, to maintain the gentleman's agreement that has been in vogue for the past 36 years.

I will personally appreciate anything you can do for Mr. Whaley in this race. Sincerely yours,

CLAUD H. HUTCHESON

BOARD OF EDUCATION and LOCAL TRUSTEES

THEY URGE VOTERS TO SUPPORT W. M. RAINEY

The undersigned, members of the Board of Education of DeKalb County and the Trustees of the School Districts of DeKalb County, have seen the unsigned pamphlet apparently issued by the J. M. Collier campaign committee.

We are familiar with the DeKalb County Schools and we know that the people of the entire county, regardless of where they live, are interested in the schools and contribute to county-wide taxes for their support; that our county schools could not run without the taxes paid towards their support by the citizens of Decatur and Atlanta.

We know that the statements contained in the above-mentioned pamphlet are misleading and many of them untrue and we believe that the people of this county will resent a candidate running for such a high office pitching his campaign on such a low level and depending on misstatements of fact and prejudice to carry him into office.

Knowing as we do that W. M. Rainey has made an efficient superintendent for our schools in every way, we therefore urge all citizens who are interested in the continued improvement of our school system, and the welfare of DeKalb County children to vote to return W. M. Rainey to office on September 9.

RUSSIA BETWEEN THE PINCERS

News of a secret conference in Bavaria between Adolph Hitler and Admiral Horthy, Hungarian regent, at which the nazi chieftain pledged German co-operation with Horthy's campaign to create a strong anti-soviet front across middle Europe, has been followed quickly by predictions that this step brings closer the long expected war between Germany and Japan on one side and Russia on the other.

Only three weeks ago the Russian press made the direct charge that an alliance has been secretly negotiated by Germany and Japan for concerted action against Russia, the arch enemy at this time of both the former nations.

The announcement by the Hitler government that the time of compulsory military service will be doubled because of "Russian militarism" has served to intensify the belief that an anti-bolshevik drive may soon be started by Japan on the east and Poland, Germany and the smaller middle European nations on the south and west.

Dewitt MacKenzie, veteran correspondent of the Associated Press, in commenting in a recent dispatch upon the relations between these nations, points out that—

Whether such an alliance exists or is in prospect, it is obvious that Russia is sitting between the jaws of a powerful vise which might start squeezing at any time.

Both Russia and Japan have been talking openly of the probability of war between them, and just as openly have been rushing military preparations to meet any eventuality. Each country is well set for trouble if it comes.

Karl Radek, the Russian writer who frequently reflects Soviet government views, said the other day that the only question was when the war would break out.

Both Germany and Japan have more real grievances against Russia than exist between any of the other nations of Europe, this being true even with respect to France and Germany.

Japan's imperialistic ambitions, based on the necessity for economic expansion and the disposal of her excess population, have moved her front lines, both in a military and trade sense, across the new state of Manchukuo to the edge of Siberia and Outer Mongolia. As a result, there have been frequent clashes between Japanese and Russian troops. In addition, the continued spreading of Soviet propaganda throughout the western provinces of China constitutes a threat which Japan fears more than anything else.

Germany has largely the same objectives in her apparent purpose to come to grips with Russia—the elimination of what the reich calls the communistic menace to Europe, and territorial expansion in the rich agricultural area of the Ukraine at the expense of Russia.

Whether or not Germany wants a part of the Ukraine so that she may swap it off to Poland in return for the Polish corridor, which now splits east Germany from the mother country, or whether she wants this rich wheat-growing area as her own granary, is not definite—but there is no doubting that she wants to take it away from Russia.

Russia will not be caught napping, either on the east or the west. She has concentrated troops and the requisites of war on her far-away eastern seaboard, creating great air and submarine bases and perfecting her communications system over the thousands of miles of Siberia. On the home front, she is supposed to have the most powerful standing army and the greatest fleet of war planes in Europe. She certainly has the greatest manpower of any country.

What the attitude of France would be should Germany, Japan and some of the lesser European nations go to war with Russia is problematical. She has a hard-and-fast defense treaty with the Soviets, but it is hardly probable that either she or her close ally, Czechoslovakia, would become involved and thus invite invasion by the armies of Germany and Poland. Italy would probably side with Germany, in view of the new understanding between Hitler and Mussolini, with Great Britain remaining on the sidelines.

All of which is supposition, but one which reveals the extent to which the alignments are constantly changing in the European picture.

CHEERFUL FACTS

Current report of the Federal Reserve Board discloses that industrial production throughout the nation had reached the high point of 108 in July of this year, as compared with the peak of 125 in June, 1929, and the bottom of 67 in July, 1932.

This provides irrefutable evidence of the ever-increasing prosperity of the nation under provisions of the New Deal.

Industrial production is one of the outstanding barometers of a nation's economic status.

It should be apparent to all, even the most obstinate foes of the New Deal, that the "pump-priming" of the past three years is worth all that it has cost, since it has lifted the nation off the rocks of economic disaster.

Particularly gratifying is the report that Georgia is one of eight states which shows a percentage of over 100 in the purchase of automobiles for the first six months in 1936, as compared with the first six months of 1929, which is arbitrarily rated at 100 per cent. The report shows Nevada first in percentage of sales with 130.6, Oregon second with 126.2 and Georgia third with 121. Florida is reported at 104 and Alabama with 101.2 per cent. Nine states have percentages in the 90's, a larger number in the 80's, with North and South Dakota, drouth states, rating lowest, being in the low 40's.

No better indication could be offered of the prosperity of the people than that of the purchase of new automobiles. During the height of the depression sales of new cars slumped badly; owners made the "old bus" take more and still more mileage. If it finally quit on them, they purchased a "good used car." But with returning prosperity—money in hand, and excellent prospects of ample funds in the future—those needing new cars felt safe in making the investment.

OFFICIAL SALARIES

On November 3 Texas will vote on a constitutional amendment, provisions of which would fix the salary of the Governor at $12,000; that of the attorney general at $10,000; those of the comptroller, land commissioner, treasurer and secretary of state at $6,000. Present salaries of these officers are: Governor and attorney general, $4,000; comptroller, treasurer and land commissioner, $2,500, and secretary of state, $2,000.

These salaries were fixed by the state constitution adopted in 1876, and while probably fair 60 years ago, are inadequate today when Texas has a population of more than 6,000,000; an assessed valuation for taxation purposes of more than $3,000,000,000, and a total wealth estimated at $10,000,000,000.

With taxes mounting, economy in government is one of the crying needs of the day; equally important, however, is competent high officials charged with the executive details of managing the affairs of a state.

In the present period competent, honest individuals command salaries far greater than those paid the Governor and attorney general of Texas, while those paid the other high officials are but a mere pittance compared with what those men could make by following their regular avocations.

Low salaries to high state officials have one of two effects: The men elected to these offices must already have acquired sufficient wealth, or have an established, paying business, that the salary paid is a matter of no consequence; the other alternative is the election of individuals who anticipate "getting theirs" by devious methods not consistent with good government.

Texas has been fortunate in many of its high officials during the past 60 years, but unfortunate at other times.

Only ten states stand above Texas in total wealth, but only three others pay as small salaries as Texas—North Dakota, South Dakota and Tennessee. Every business executive realizes that it is always economical to engage good, capable men; if that is true of private enterprise, it is equally true of the people's business; and the money spent in increased salaries will be offset many times by the economies effected by competent officials.

Sports experts can't account for it, but, as far back as Eliza crossing the ice, the colored race has produced sprinters.

A European dictator who is looking for trouble is in the right hemisphere for it.

Silhouettes

I looked in my mirror

Some hair, skin and bone
That's labeled me:
I looked in my dreams
And saw therein,

Unsuccessful Treasure Hunt.

Seeking something which might bring a modicum of interest to you on a Monday morning, I've opened eight bulky envelopes of publicity material sent out by various motion picture studios. Not a thing worth telling in 'em all.

Next read large sections of the latest issue of the London Era. Only item found there is a report of the advertising of a double feature theater which, the reporter states, made him think of Mary Astor. The marquee announced:

"LADY OF SECRETS"
"GUARD THAT GIRL."

An Invitation That Is Hoodooed.

At least half a dozen times a dear friend who lives an easy auto drive from Atlanta has invited self and family up for a visit on a Sunday. And each time something unavoidable has prevented.

Had intended going yesterday, but received word at the last minute that certain members of the family, who have been on holiday, would return Sunday afternoon and please meet 'em at the terminal.

So the long-deferred visit is postponed once more.

Popular Spot of Call.

Drove around by Techwood yesterday, just to see what could be seen.

Noticed, chiefly, the large number of others who, apparently, had the same idea. From the stream of sightseers should image those tenants already installed feel something like the animals on display in a menagerie. Or, say, goldfish in an aquarium. But they are nice apartments and, after the novelty has worn off, should prove pleasant places to live.

And after the contractors have completed the job.

Don't think I ever saw a place so slow in reaching completion. There are great holes and obstructions in the roadways, places where the paving hasn't even been laid yet and all sorts of signs of work left undone for the time being.

When the place is finished it will probably be a proud acquisition for the city but in the meantime—the debris of construction should be cleared up. Please.

Strange Humanity.

Read a book the other night that is one of the strangest ever to come to my attention. It is supposed to be the true autobiography of a person who was one of those strange freaks of humanity, a flagellant. One who enjoyed sensual pleasure out of enduring pain.

This peculiar creature had been whipped, by her own contrivance, numerous times, and confessed she enjoyed the sensation and longed for other similar experiences.

Said she attributed her peculiarity to incidents in her childhood and youth, when she was frequently whipped by a stern father and an old-fashioned school teacher.

That there are people with this odd quirk is a well-established fact and their existence is just another illustration of how strangely and remarkably we humans are made.

It was people of this classification who established the churchly orders of flagellant monks in the Middle Ages and it is attributable to the same oddity that there are, in some parts of the world, women who weep and bemoan the fact that their husbands haven't beaten them for months. They feel their mates are losing interest when there is no whipping.

Most Interesting Of Studies.

If you cannot comprehend the existence of people who take pleasure in feeling the sting of the lash upon their own bodies, find some student of peculiarities of human conduct and get him to explain to you. Queer psychologies provide fascinatingly interesting study and, like all facts that exist, should be known and understood. Only by knowledge can cure be effected, you know.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Thursday, September 7, 1911:

"Griffin wants a new depot and wants it bad. This was made known to the railroad commission yesterday by a large delegation of officials and citizens from the progressive central Georgia city."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Tuesday, September 7, 1886:

"United States Marshal Nelms will sell seven hundred gallons of corn whisky this morning at eleven o'clock before the door of the county courthouse. The whisky was made at Duke's distillery, in Jackson county, and is sold to pay the revenue."

Cites Farmers' Plight In 1932 and Their Present Condition

Editor Constitution: "Notice—We the farmers of Jenkins county ask that you close down your gin at once. We pray to God that you will cooperate and help save the women and children from hunger and cold until something is done to lift the present depression. Be governed accordingly. (Signed) Farmers of Jenkins County."

The foregoing is an exact copy of notices which, in the early fall of 1932, were nailed on every ginhouse in Jenkins county.

The farmers of this county, in common with those of every cotton-growing county in America, has seen the fruits of their labors go for nothing in 1930 and 1931, and they faced the pitiable and heart-breaking prospect of a similar experience in 1932.

At this dark and desperate hour in the life of our nation, there was called to its head that bold, resolute and sympathetic leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt, who, with the unbounded loyalty and aid of Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. and others, has enacted laws and promulgated policies which have lifted our people from the depths of gloom and despair which formerly prevailed, and given to them a new outlook on life.

As a tyrant and dictator Talmadge has no rightful place in public life in this state! As one who has grown rich while in office, as disclosed by his more than $20,000 spent for land in Monroe county alone, he presents a sordid picture of a politician at his worst, and makes every man and woman who loves Georgia feel like hanging his head in shame!

Shall we humiliate and punish our great President and Senator Russell for providing work for those who had no work, for clothing the naked and feeding the destitute and hungry, and for kindling afresh in our people faith and hope in the future by electing to the senate the betrayer of the President and the Democratic party.

Talmudic Tales

BY DAVID MORANTZ.

NUMBER 412.

(Based upon the legends and philosophy found in the Talmud, which work contains the civic and canonical laws and traditions of the Jewish people, dating back as far as 3,000 years.)

SOLOMON AND THE ANTS.

One day when Balkis, the Queen of Sheba, was visiting King Solomon he invited her to go riding with him so he could show her some of the beauties of his country before she returned to her land.

He presented her with a beautiful, snow-white steed and he mounted his spirited black charger. They started off, followed closely by a company of attendants. After riding some time enjoying the invigorating air and the scenery, Solomon reined in his horse suddenly and the whole party did likewise.

The king bent over and gazed intently for a moment at something on the ground ahead of him. Then with a faint smile on his face and an understanding nod of his head, he turned his horse off the path and continued in a different direction.

His actions puzzled them all but no one dared question him except the queen. "Why did you stop so suddenly and take this different course?" she asked.

"As we rode along," he replied, "I noticed all of a sudden a commotion in our path just ahead of us. Looking closer I found it was a colony of ants who had built their homes there and had heard our approach.

"In great fear that our horses would trample over them, they scurried about in utmost confusion.

"Rather than harm them and destroy their homes I changed our course, because even the lowly ant is as much entitled to life as any of us."

The queen was deeply moved.

"Long have I heard of your great wisdom," she said, "but I now pay homage to your kindness of heart and your humility. They are even greater than your wisdom and I honor you for them."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

EVEN STEPHEN WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Those who watched President Roosevelt's meeting with Governor Landon closest called it a draw.

The Kansas governor used it to establish the fact that he shaves every morning, and Mr. Roosevelt discovered that what all the governors want out of him is cash. Every state authority met by the President, except the Kansan, mentioned what a great drouth relief job he could do if only furnished with some of Mr. Morgenthau's inexhaustible funds.

The result was that everyone went home satisfied with having told his side of the story, but nobody got any money.

FRIENDLINESS Counselors of both Mr. Roosevelt and Governor Landon told them no good would come of their meeting. Little incidents, they said, would be played out of all proportion to proper significance. Either Mr. Roosevelt or Governor Landon would emerge, they contended, with superior honors, and the one who lost would suffer political ignominy. They were wrong. Governor Landon ran into Mr. Roosevelt with his hand outstretched and vice versa. The amicable feelings on both sides were really as strong as expressed. Des Moines authorities felt they had witnessed a spectacular political show without a climax.

COINCIDENCE Most publicized development of government is not the Roosevelt-Landon conference or the war in Spain. It is a meeting of a couple of people here under the title of the "third world power conference." Every newsman in Washington has received upwards of eight million words of authoritative analyses of the gathering, which is officially subheaded as "second congress on large dams."

The explanation of all this extensive mimeographing apparently is that there is a presidential campaign under way and the subject of power is an issue.

Ordinarily the second congress on large dams is held in June.. September this year is nearer November.

Note—If you wish any further information regarding the "third world power conference and second congress on large dams," all announcements advise you to call District 1820, Extension 1231, which is Mr. Ickes' Interior Department, and the answering voice will inform you she is in charge of publicity for the TWPC and SCOLD'S.

INTRODUCTION Father Coughlin and his vice presidential candidate are virtually strangers. Coughlin met O'Brien only a week before the head of the ticket, Mr. Lemke, decided to run.

The microphone padre went to his good friend, Whitney, of the railroad brotherhood, and asked him to suggest someone who would appeal to the labor vote. Whitney mentioned O'Brien. Coughlin went down to Boston a week before the announcement to inspect his candidate.

What made O'Brien presentable to Coughlin was mainly the fact that he was an enemy of Governor Curley. It seems that Curley and Coughlin once were close friends. Coughlin used to visit the Massachusetts political maestro frequently. They differed, however, regarding a political appointment and both have been gunning for each other ever since.

NO INTRODUCTION A fellow who is running for the presidency by the name of William Lemke was having dinner with his following, numbering at least five persons, at Manchester, N. H. The subject of discussion was what an unsatisfactory senator George Moses had turned out to be when he was a senator.

To the surprise of Mr. Lemke and the other five persons, in walked no other than Senator George Moses. He threw his political arms around the culprit and said: "Well here is my old friend, Bill."

Bill impersonated silliness.

CORRECTION The agriculture department officially sent out an announcement signed by Dr. L. H. Bean, economic adviser, which started off as follows:

"Food prices, in spite of the record drouths of 1934 and 1936, continue to keep pace with earnings of employed factory workers. Employed consumers can still buy more food with their present earnings than they were able to buy in 1928 and 1929."

Fortunately the Commerce Department issues a statement monthly regarding factory pay rolls. It shows that factory employment in 1929 averaged 93 per cent and today it is 80 per cent.

As a result, the agriculture department has issued a correction and a kill. It wants Dr. Bean's announcement to start out: "Employed consumers can still buy more food with their present earnings than they were able to buy in 1928 and 1929."

So be it.

Flint To Support Democratic Candidates Against Slate of 'Undemocratic Talmadge'

Editor Constitution: I shall vote for the re-election of Senator Russell and for Speaker E. D. Rivers for the governorship.

I have delayed until now my decision as to who I will support for the governorship until I could finally decide in my own mind which of the three anti-Talmadge candidates, Speaker Rivers, Judge Fortson or Judge Larsen would be the stronger before the people, and therefore most likely to defeat Talmadge's annointed candidate, C. D. Redwine. My decision thereon has been facilitated by the candidates themselves as well as by the expressed approval of the people generally, as Judge Larsen has withdrawn from the race, while Judge Fortson has apparently lost sight of the purpose of Dr. Weltner in calling the Macon convention which was to remove Talmadgeism, and has spent his time and effort in denouncing Speaker Rivers and state Democratic executive committeeman. Clark Howell, instead of denouncing the misrule of Governor Talmadge and his "me too" candidate, Redwine, who promised Governor Talmadge at McRae when he put on the red suspenders, that if elected Governor he would continue the Talmadge policies.

The issue in Georgia today is drawn between the policies of the Democratic President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and those of the undemocratic Governor Eugene Talmadge. To my mind it is of the most vital importance to the welfare of Georgia and the entire south, that we have a Democratic victory in November under the leadership of President Roosevelt, who is the only President since 18[illegible] who has literally placed the south back in the house of our fathers, and to now lose this prestige of political power and influence in the nation, would be nothing short of a great disaster for our people, while this is exactly what would occur if Governor Talmadge should have his way about it.

Talmadge has evidently forgotten the traditions and rightful heritage of the south in the Union by leaving the ranks of the Democratic party and seeking influence and position with the Republican party by his attempts at undermining President Roosevelt and the Democratic party. It is therefore but just and right that Georgia Democrats should bitterly resent his attempted betrayal of their party by denying him the senatorship which he seeks, as he would be a drawback and hinderance to Senator George if President Roosevelt is elected, and would be useless as a senato. if Mr. Landon is elected as the Republican party sought to destroy the south by destroying the Democratic party in 1860, and they have never done anything toward aiding our people since, and are not likely to change their attitude in the future.

In my opinion it is of equal importance to the integrity and success of Georgia and the Democratic party throughout the nation, that Talmadge's candidate, Redwine, should not be elected to the governorship, as this would be a direct affront to President Roosevelt in his efforts to aid Georgia, and would also perpetuate the banefulness of the Talmadge policies inherent in his outrageous dictatorship. It therefore becomes the bounden duty of all Georgians who are supporting President Roosevelt and the Democratic party to support that candidate best qualified to defeat Redwine.

From the information which I have been able to gather from all parts of the state, that man is Speaker Rivers whose entire campaign has been directed against Talmadgeism and the enemies of th President, and a victory under his leadership will eradicate Talmedgeism from Georgia and restore the government to the representatives of the people under the orderly provisions of our constitution.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Colleges Shun Liquor Tie-up. NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The colleges which have decided to peddle the radio rights to their football games are a little sanctimonious in their stipulation that firms in the liquor trade shall be ineligible to bid for the same. To be quite realistic about it, whisky and gin have been for some years an important item in the diet of the football customers, including the undergraduates, as you can learn from any boss-janitor of a big stadium, including Yale's who has had the duty of collecting the bottles and carrying out oblivious patrons in the dark after the big games. In fact, the Yale drunk has become a tradition of eastern football, an utterly abandoned figure in a raccoon coat who breaks loose and climbs over the barrier onto the field between halves to chase a squirrel among the evolutions of the band or score a touchdown for himself in solemn pantomime, using his traditional Yale iron hat for a football. I have seen this dignitary several times and there were some Yale-Harvard occasions when his performance was all that saved the day from total monotony because when Yale comes up with a bad team it is good and bad and the Harvard teams are almost always bad. The position seems to be one of the honorable competitive offices for undergraduates at Yale, like that of the class historian, but I am not very well up on my Yale stuff any more and could be mistaken as to that. I do know, however, that the appearance of this figure on the field between halves is always greeted by the cry, "There goes the Yale drunk," and that he invariably gives a good show.

Drinking Part Of Grid Picture. Let it not be thought, however, that the practice of consuming intoxicants is local to Yale or to any section of the country. It is part of the football scene and the cleaners will gather up as many empties and as many head of limp and soggy pass-outs, abandoned to the darkness by their friends, in California, Georgia or Texas as in the Yankee Stadium after an Army-Notre Dame game. It might be thought that the autumn weather is the explanation for this but the weather varies greatly and I am inclined to believe that football crowds drink for the same reason that baseball crowds eat hot dogs. They just like to. This leads to the belief that young people drink harder than persons of more experience who have learned something about timing and generalship and also reached the conclusion that there will always be more.

Of course it is customary to say that the old grads of middle age are the ones who do the heavy drinking of the football trains and in the stadia, but if you will take mental notes in a football crowd this fall you will see that the old grad behaves himself pretty well and seems to be out of the fun. By old grads I mean old grads, however, not young grads in their twenties, who undoubtedly do a generous share of the helling-around and hat-smashing and forward-passing in the crowded lobbies and railroad stations. Incidentally, the girls deserve credit for full co-operation and the most spectacular performance I have ever seen at a football game, next to the spontaneous triumphs of the Yale drunk, was that of a determined young female who determined to kiss a cop one afternoon at the conclusion of an Army-Notre Dame game and pawed the gallant officer until a couple of others came up and peeled her loose.

Football Fans 'Drinkingest.' Altogether, the football crowds are the drinkingest crowds we have in sport in this country, with the possible exception of the Kentucky Derby and it seems a little snide of the football people to snub the source of the crowd inspiration in this blunt way. The World Series is a proletarian fete, attended by some drinking to be sure, but they simply would not stand for the pestiferous, mauling, stumbling inebriates at a World Series who are commonly to be seen at football games, particularly the big games. The prizefight business, too which enjoys a rather sordid reputation by comparison with football, the favorite game of the flower of American youth, is remarkably fastidious about the conduct of its customers. Not often does one see a plastered spectator at a prizefight and anyone who undertook to make a nuisance of himself as many of the younger set do at football games would be firmly and quietly and none too ceremoniously heaved out of the joint for giving the racket a bad name.

I am no defender of the old demon who is always able to fight his own battles and win most of them, but fair is fair and the football promoters shouldn't do a pal of theirs that way. The old demon has made a place for himself in football. If the team loses the customers load up to forget and if it wins they load up to celebrate. But win or lose, they get loaded.

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

THE DOCTOR.

I was in one of the Atlanta hospitals at a late hour the other night and I saw one of our prominent physicians sitting in one of the chart rooms in a deep study. I knew he was distressed about a patient. He told me the story—a little boy struggling with complications following an operation. The doctor had done his best, the consultation had confirmed his course, the boy's life was in the balance—only God could turn the tide. He asked me to join him in prayer.

And then again my memory turned to that great painting which we all know and which countless hearts have come to understand—the painting called "The Doctor"—where we see the bedroom with the little child's body on the improvised bed, the mother sitting by the child, the father standing by the window, the doctor sitting near by, his noble face reflecting his deep concern about the little child. There is a bowl on the table, and something to indicate a poultice. Evidently, the child is suffering from pneumonia. It is daybreak. The crisis is on!

I came away from that scene in the hospital the other night, praying God's blessings upon the little boy, upon the anxious parents, upon the good doctor, thanking the Great Physician for these doctors and nurses, these hospitals, this great day of applied science, but most of all thanking Him for doctors and nurses, who, when they have done their very best, are ever looking to the Creator and Preserver of life to guide them and bless them. And the next morning my eyes fell upon this beautiful poem by Grace Noll Crowell, published in the August Christian Herald, which she calls "The Christian Doctor:"

Something of Christ is with him as he goes
Among the suffering to heal and bless;
Something of Christ's own comfort he bestows
Through his compassion and his tenderness.
Virtue goes from him through the pressing hours
To all who touch him down life's crowded ways.
Unselfishly he dissipates his powers
Through sleepless nights and long demanding days

He is first at birth to free the strangling breath;
Through intervening years he is a wise
And kindly counsellor, and then at death
His are the hands that close the weary eyes.
Surely, dear God, all Christian doctors share
Your mercy for mankind, Your loving care.

The Weed That Has a Tough Time Outlasts the Hothouse Plant

BY ROBERT QUILLEN.

Have you ever seen a man expose the yellowness of his soul? It is a sickening experience that you can never forget.

He may seem to be a man worthy of respect. In size, manner and general appearance, he may seem superior to the men about him. He may hold his head high and speak with the voice of authority.

But when another man threatens him with physical violence, he seems to collapse like a punctured balloon. His face turns gray and his voice changes to a whine.

Those who witness his shame despise him, yet the fault is rarely his. The chances are ten to one that the yellowness was kneaded into his character by his parents.

Some days ago a 10-year-old boy was taken to a doctor's office by his parents to have a boil lanced. The doctor "froze" the thing before touching it, and at no time did the boy feel any sensation of pain.

But he had a normal boy's imagination, and his parents did their best to frighten him. "Will it hurt very bad, doctor?" they asked. "Do you think he can stand it? Poor darling. I can't bear to see him hurt." They kept at it, moaning in sympathetic dread till the poor kid was scared frantic. He was screaming before the lancet touched him.

Another lad of fourteen, sent to a dentist's office, behaved that way until the disgusted dentist told him to get out of the chair.

"Go to some other dentist," said he. "I've got no patience to fool with babies." Then he added more gently: "It takes some guts to get along in this world, son, and you sure haven't got 'em. If you don't learn to be a man, you'll be kicked around all your life."

A week later the boy asked for another chance and sat through the ordeal without a whimper. Now he calls the dentist a "great guy," as he should, for a doting mother's petting had made him a coward and the dentist taught him manliness.

It is a strange perversion of parental love that shields and coddles a child's body only to cripple its spirit.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

Adequate daily rations of vitamin A, vitamin C and vitamin D are essential to assure strong, sound, regular, beautiful teeth.

A quart of fresh milk contains 1,000 units of vitamin A. The yolk of an egg contains more than 800 units of vitamin A. An ounce of tomato or tomato juice (fresh or factory canned) contains 170 units of vitamin A.

Evaporated milk contains 140 units of vitamin A in the ounce undiluted; so does condensed milk.

One ounce of spinach contains 1,400 units of vitamin A, either fresh or canned spinach. One ounce of escarole contains 6,000 units of vitamin A. One ounce of prunes or prune juice contains 300 units of vitamin A. One ounce of cooked liver contains 2,800 units of vitamin A. One ounce of butter contains 1,400 units of vitamin A. One ounce of orange juice contains only 20 units of vitamin A. One ounce of carrots contains 940 units of vitamin A.

The baby requires from 200 to 300 units of vitamin A for each 100 calories of food daily. A three months' old baby usually takes about 700 calories daily, and hence should receive at least 1,500 units of vitamin A daily.

One teaspoonful of cod liver oil or halibut oil or any other fish liver oil contains 2,000 units of vitamin A.

It would seem that no infant need suffer from deficiency of vitamin A.

The vitamin C requirement is about 20 units a day. One ounce of tomato juice (fresh or factory canned) contains the same amount of vitamin C as one ounce of orange juice or one ounce of lemon juice, 14 units. Each once of Raw milk contains 1 unit of vitamin C. One ounce of raw cabbage contains 14 units of vitamin C. One ounce of strawberry juice contains 14 units of vitamin C. One ounce of peach juice contains 5 units of vitamin C. One ounce of RAW spinach contains 25 units, canned spinach 10 units, and cooked spinach 2 units of vitamin C. One ounce of ripe banana contains 5 units of vitamin C.

The daily requirement of vitamin D for an infant a month old is about 3,000 units. Milk, cream, butter and egg yolk contain small amounts of vitamin D, but never enough for the growing infant. Fish liver oils and synthetic vitamin D (irridiated ergosterol, viosterol, condol) are the only available sources. Ten to 15 drops of condol daily, given mixed with the daily fruit juice or with a milk feeding, will meet the requirements with least difficulty and at the lowest cost. Each drop of condol contains 300 units of vitamin D. Each drop of viosterol contains 250 units of vitamin D. The vitamin potency of these synthetic vitamin D concentrates is determined by biological essay, so that, unit for unit they differ only in cost.

If the baby or temporary teeth are sound, the permanent teeth will be poor picking for the dentists.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Calcium.

A recent test showed my 14-year-old son deficient in calcium. Physician prescribed calcium gluconate. Friends say this is dangerous. Boy is normal but restless, over-active, inattentive.

(Mrs. B. G. W.)

Answer—Your physician is your best friend. Your friends are not physicians. Real friends do not intrude with their half baked notions. Certainly the administration of calcium in any form is harmless in any case. An adequate intake of vitamin D is essential to insure good calcium metabolism.

GuadarramaMountains

Repeatedly, the Guadarrama mountains have appeared in news dispatches concerning the civil strife in Spain. In and near the passes of this range has occurred some of the fiercest of the fighting.

The Sierra de Guadarrama is a natural palisade for Madrid's defense, 50 miles north of Spain's capital.

It is a mammoth granite blockade piled to a mean elevation of over 5,000 feet, with higher peaks rising in a jagged line. Because of the rough silhouette which these peaks form against the skyline, the range is called Sierra, or "saw-toothed."

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 6.—Unattached or unmarried screen stars will soon be as rare as silent pictures, and contracts containing clauses forbidding marriage as outmoded as prewar swimming suits.

Beginning with the amalgamation of Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone last October, many highly paid box office draws have married within the past year or have announced their intention of doing so at the earliest possible moment. Among them are Claudette Colbert, who became Mrs. Joel Pressman on Christmas Day; Myrna Loy, now Mrs. Arthur Hornblow Jr.; Fred MacMurray, Jack Oakie, Randolph Scott, Henry Fonda, Jeanette MacDonald, who shortly becomes Mrs. Gene Raymond; Maureen O'Sullivan, Joan Blondell, Dick Powell, George Raft, who weds Virginia Pine just as soon as he is freed from his first wife, and Charlie Chaplin and Paulette Goddard—their marriage is said to have been solemnized several months ago.

In addition, myriad rumors are linking in expected matrimony the names of Clark Gable and Carole Lombard, Robert Taylor-Barbara Stanwyck, Jean Harlow-William Powell, Loretta Young-Eddie Sutherland, Merle Oberon-David Niven, Ronald Colman-Benita Hume and Eleanor Powell-Jimmy Stewart.

It would be interesting to find out what the fans think of this wholesale renunciation of celibacy, whether they prefer their screen heroes and heroines married or single.

When Katharine Hepburn first arrived in Hollywood, prejudice of studio executives and screen-goers against married stars was so strong she concealed the fact of her marriage to Ludlow Smith, of Philadelphia, and denied it vehemently when questioned on this point by newspaper sleuths. Later, when her marriage became too well known for contradiction, she asked her mate to change his last name to Ludlow on the plea that Smith was too unromantic a cognomen to please her admirers. When this failed to agree with Miss Hepburn's idea of what she owed her public, she dissolved her marriage.

The popularity of Ginger Rogers bounded upward following her separation from Lew Ayres. Ronald Colman's fan mail increased many thousands a week when he was recently divorced by his wife.

In the days when Maude Adams was thrilling Broadway audiences in "Peter Pan," marriage among young, romantic actresses and actors was strictly taboo. In addition, Miss Adams was instructed by Daniel Frohman to wear a veil in public and on no account to be seen with an actor, on the theory that her male public disliked sharing her with one who had a better chance of ingratiating himself.

Maybe feminine screen fans feel this way about William Powell and Clark Gable. What chance have they of winning favor, even in the most fantastic day-dream, when in competition with Jean Harlow and Carole Lombard?

Of what use to be swept away by the tender screen love-making of Gene Raymond, when we know that, just as soon as he finishes work for the day, he calls on Jeanette MacDonald? In clothes alone, Miss MacDonald has us beaten at the starting post. Why bother to send a mash letter to Henry Fonda, telling him that he is the most thrilling person in the world, when he is saying that very same sentence to Mrs. George Brokaw? And everyone who reads fan magazines and newspaper columns is aware that, for the last year, Dick Powell has eyes and ears only for Joan Blondell, who has the added advantage of working on the same lot and in the same picture with the handsome singer.

On the other side of the argument, Gary Cooper's successful marriage to Sandra Shaw has not, apparently, impaired his popularity with feminine admirers. Neither has the recent ceremony between Fred MacMurray and Lillian Lamont, although it is too recent to show results on this score. Ditto for the Errol Flynn-Lili Damita nuptials, which cheated several thousand women fans of the greatest synthetic day-dream love affair since Valentino.

ECONOMIC DEMOCRACY URGED BY ROOSEVELT

of the American way of life, he said, was that the employer-employe relationship "should be one between free men and equals." He emphasized that not only were the interests of all classes related, but that the farmer and city worker were economically interdependent.

It is not labor, he said, "but those shortsighted ones" who would refuse the workingman the right to bargain collectively and acquire security "who threaten this country with that class dissension which in other countries has led to dictatorship and the establishment of fear and hatred as the dominant emotions in human life."

Addressing the nation from the diplomatic reception room of the White House in a "fireside chat" 12 hours after his return from a two-week tour of inspection in the drouth region, Mr. Roosevelt combined a report on his drouth plans with a Labor Day eve appeal for all employers to draw from relief rolls whenever business pickup required additional workers.

Fund for Job Service.

He announced allocation of $2,500,000 to the state-federal employment service for further efforts to connect the businessman in need of workers with the jobless now on government relief pay rolls. This supplemented an original $1,500,000 granted August 25 for a classification of relief workers.

The President emphasized a theme that appeared frequently in his talks in the drouth area—that the government is spending today to save greater expenses in the future.

The government's decision to put the drouth needy to work at subsistence wages not only helps them live through the winter but enables them to buy food for their stock and seed for next year's plantings. Meantime their work in building thousands of small ponds and reservoirs, drilling wells and preventing soil erosion carries out the drouth program initiated in 1934.

Spending Not Waste.

"Spending like this is not waste," he said. "It would spell future waste if we did not spend for such things now.

"I have, however, used the argument in relation only to a small area—it holds good in its effect on the nation as a whole."

The President said his drouth-work program had the approval of "every governor with whom I have talked." During his trip Mr. Roosevelt conferred with seven drouth state governors, including Governor Alfred M. Landon, of Kansas, Republican presidential nominee.

All the governors likewise agreed, he said, that "their individual states will take care of their unemployables but that the cost of making jobs for those able and willing to work must be borne by the federal government.

"The farmers of America," he said in summary of his remarks on the agricultural problem as reflected in the drouth states, "want a sound national agricultural policy in which a permanent land use program will have an important place.

"They want assurance against another year like 1932 when they made good crops but had to sell them for prices that meant ruin just as surely as did the drouth. Sound policy must maintain farm prices in good crop years as well as in bad crop years. It must function when we have drouth; it must also function when we have bumper crops.

Must Conserve Excess.

"The maintenance of a fair equilibrium between farm prices and the prices of industrial products is an aim which we must keep ever before us, just as we must give constant thought to the sufficiency of the food supply of the nation even in bad years. Our modern civilization can and should devise a more successful means by which the excess supplies of bumper years can be conserved for use in lean years."

Reminding his listeners that "dependable employment at fair wages is just as important to the people in the towns and cities as good farm income is to agriculture," the President turned to a discussion of the job situation.

Re-employment in private industry is proceeding rapidly, he announced.

"Government spending was in large part responsible for keeping industry going and putting it in a position to make this re-employment possible," he asserted.

He appealed for wider use of the state-federal employment service, but added that there will be no lessening of work relief programs "until all workers have decent jobs in private employment at decent wages."

"We do not surrender our responsibility to the unemployed," the President said.

Not a Class Holiday.

"Tomorrow is Labor Day. Labor Day in this country has never been a class holiday. It has always been a national holiday. It has never had more significance as a national holiday than it has now.

"In other countries the relationship of employer and employe has been more or less accepted as a class relationship not readily to be broken through. In this country we insist, as an essential of the American way of life, that the employer-employe relationship should be one between free men and equals.

"We refuse to regard those who work with hand or brain as different from or inferior to those who live from their property. We insist that labor is entitled to as much respect as property.

"But our workers with hand and brain deserve more than respect for their labor. They deserve practical protection in the opportunity to use their labor at a return adequate to support them at a decent and constantly rising standard of living, and to accumulate a margin of security against the inevitable vicissitudes of life.

"The average man must have that two-fold opportunity if we are to avoid the growth of a class conscious society in this country."

LANDON APPROVES NEW DEAL PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said tonight that all of the governors with whom he had talked—one of whom was Governor Landon, of Kansas, the Republican presidential nominee—were in accord with him on the New Deal drouth program.

"Every governor with whom I have talked is in full accord with this program of providing work for these farm families, just as every governor agrees that the individual states will take care of their unemployables but that the cost of employing those who are entirely able and willing to work must be borne by the federal government."

Full Text of Roosevelt's Report Upon Tour of 9 Drouth States

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP) The text of President Roosevelt's radio speech, delivered from the White House tonight, follows:

I have been on a journey of husbandry. I went primarily to see at first hand conditions in the drouth states; to see how effectively federal and local authorities are taking care of pressing problems of relief and also how they are to work together to defend the people of this country against the effects of future drouths.

I saw drouth devastation in nine states.

I talked with families who had lost their wheat crop, lost their corn crop, lost their livestock, lost the water in their well, lost their garden and come through to the end of the summer without one dollar of cash resources, facing a winter without feed or food—facing a planting season without seed to put in the ground.

That was the extreme case but there are thousands and thousands of families on western farms who share the same difficulties.

I saw cattlemen who because of lack of grass or lack of winter feed have been compelled to sell all but their breeding stock and will need help to carry even these through the coming winter. I saw livestock kept alive only because water had been brought to them long distances in tank cars. I saw other farm families who have not lost their everything but who because they have made only partial crops must have some form of help if they are to continue farming next spring.

I shall never forget the fields of wheat so blasted by heat that they cannot be harvested. I shall never forget field after field of corn stunted, earless and stripped of leaves, for what the sun left the grasshoppers took. I saw brown pastures which would not keep a cow on 50 acres.

IT IS OUR TASK TO AID FARMERS

Yet I would not have you think for a single minute that there is permanent disaster in these drouth regions, or that the picture I saw meant depopulating these areas. No cracked earth, no blistering sun, no burning wind, no grasshoppers are a permanent match for the indomitable American farmers and stockmen and their wives and children who have carried on through desperate days, and inspire us with their self-reliance, their tenacity and their courage. It was their fathers' task to make homes; it is their task to keep those homes; it is our task to help them with their fight.

First let me talk for a minute about this autumn and the coming winter. We have the option, in the case of families who need actual subsistence, of putting them on the dole or putting them to work. They do no want to go on the dole and they are one thousand per cent right. We agree, therefore, that we must put them to work for a decent wage; and when we reach that decision we kill two birds with one stone, because these families will earn enough by working, not only to subsist themselves, but to buy food for their stock, and seed for next year's planting. Into this scheme of things there fit, of course, the government lending agencies which next year, as in the past, will help with production loans.

EVERY GOVERNOR SUPPORTS PROGRAM

Every governor with whom I have talked is in full accord with this program of providing work for these farm families, just as every governor agrees that the individual states will take care of their unemployables but that the cost of employing those who are entirely able and willing to work must be borne by the federal government.

If then we know, as we do today, the approximate number of farm families who will require some form of work relief from now on through the winter, we face the question of what kind of work they should do. Let me make it clear that this is not a new question because it has already been answered to a greater or less extent in every one of the drouth communities. Beginning in 1934, when we also had serious drouth conditions, the state and federal governments co-operated in planning a large number of projects—many of them directly aimed at the alleviation of future drouth conditions. In accordance with that program literally thousands of ponds or small reservoirs have been built in order to supply water for stock and to lift the level of the underground water to protect wells from going dry. Thousands of wells have been drilled or deepened; community lakes have been created and irrigation projects are being pushed.

SPENDING LIKE THIS IS NOT WASTE

Water conservation by means such as these is being expended as a result of this new drouth all through the great plains area, the western corn belt and in the states that lie further south. In the middle west water conservation is not so pressing a problem. Here the work projects run more to soil erosion control and the building of farm-to-market roads.

Spending like this is not waste. It would spell future waste if we did not spend for such things now. These emergency work projects provide money to buy food and clothing for the winter; they keep the livestock on the farm; they provide seed for a new crop, and, best of all, they will conserve soil and water in the future in those areas most frequently hit by drouth.

If, for example, in some local area the water table continues to drop and the top soil to blow away, the land values will disappear with the water and the soil. People on the farms will drift into the near-by cities; the cities will have no farm trade and the workers in the city factories and stores will have no jobs. Property values in the cities will decline. If, on the other hand, the farms within that area remain as farms with better water supply and no erosion, the farm population will stay on the land and prosper and the near-by cities will prosper too. Property values will increase instead of disappearing. That is why it is worth our while as a nation to spend money in order to save money.

FARM RELIEF AIDS INDUSTRIAL WORKERS

I have, however, used the argument in relation only to a small area—it holds good in its effort on the nation as a whole. Every state in the drouth area is now doing and always will do business with every state outside it. The very existence of the men and women working in the clothing factories of New York, making clothes worn by farmers and their families; of the workers in the steel mills in Pittsburgh, in the automobile factories of Detroit and in the harvester factories of Illinois, depend upon the farmers' ability to purchase the commodities they produce. In the same way it is the purchasing power of the workers in these factories in the cities that enables them and their wives and children to eat more beef, more pork, more wheat, more corn, more fruit and more dairy products, and to buy more clothing made from cotton, wool and leather. In a physical and a property sense, as well as in a spiritual sense, we are members one of another.

I want to make it clear that no simple panacea can be applied to the drouth problem in the whole of the drouth area. Plans must depend on local conditions, for these vary with annual rainfall, soil characteristics, altitude and topography. Water and soil conservation methods may differ in one county from those in an adjoining county. Work to be done in the cattle and sheep country differs in type from work in the wheat country or work in the corn belt.

DEPRESSION HARM RIVALS DROUTH

The Great Plains drouth area committee has given me its preliminary recommendations for a long-time program for that region. Using that report as a basis we are co-operating successfully and in entire accord with the governors and state planning boards. As we get this program into operation the people more and more will be able to maintain themselves securely on the land. That will mean a steady decline in the relief burdens which the federal government and states have had to assume in time of drouth; but, more important, it will mean a greater contribution to general national prosperity by these regions which have been hit by drouth. It will conserve and improve not only property values, but human values. The people in the drouth area do not want to be dependent on federal, state or any other kind of charity. They want for themselves and their families an opportunity to share fairly by their own efforts in the progress of America.

The farmers of America want a sound national agricultural policy in which a permanent land use program will have an important place. They want assurance against another year like 1932 when they made good crops but had to sell them for prices that meant ruin just as surely as did the drouth. Sound policy must maintain farm prices in good crop years as well as in bad crop years. It must function when we have drouth; it must also function when we have bumper crops.

NOT ONE COMPLAINT AGAINST WORKS RELIEF

The maintenance of a fair equilibrium between farm prices and the prices of industrial products is an aim which we must keep ever before us, just as we must give constant thought to the sufficiency of the food supply of the nation even in bad years. Our modern civilization can and should devise a more successful means by which the excess supplies of bumper years can be conserved for use in lean years.

On my trip I have been deeply impressed with the general efficiency of those agencies of the federal, state and local governments which have moved in on the immediate task created by the drouth. In 1934 none of us had preparation; we worked without blue prints and made the mistakes of inexperience. Hindsight shows us this. But as time has gone on we have been making fewer mistakes. Remember that the federal and state governments have done only broad planning. Actual work on a given project originates in the local community. Local needs are listed from local information. Local projects are decided on only after obtaining the recommendations and help of those in the local community who are best able to give it. And it is worthy of note that on my entire trip, though I asked the question dozens of times, I heard no complaint against the character of a single works relief project.

The elected heads of the states concerned, together with their state officials and their experts from agricultural colleges and state planning boards have shown co-operation with and approval of the work which the federal government has headed up. I am grateful also to the men and women in all these states who have accepted leadership in the work in their locality.

TILLERS WILLING TO CO-OPERATE

In the drouth area people are not afraid to use new methods to meet changes in nature, and to correct mistakes of the past. If over grazing has injured range lands, they are willing to reduce the grazing. If certain wheat lands should be returned to pasture they are willing to co-operate. If trees should be planted as windbreaks or to stop erosion they will work with us. If terracing or summer fallowing or crop rotation is called for they will carry them out. They stand ready to fit, and not to fight, the ways of nature.

We are helping and shall continue to help the farmer to do those things, through local soil conservation committees and other co-operative local, state and federal agencies of government.

I have not the time tonight to deal with other and more comprehensive agricultural policies.

With this fine help we are tiding over the present emergency. We are going to conserve soil, conserve water and conserve life. We are going to have long-time defenses against both low prices and drouth. We are going to have a farm policy that will serve the national welfare. This is our hope for the future.

WORKERS NEED WAGES TO PURCHASE FOOD

There are two reasons why I want to end by talking about re-employment. Tomorrow is Labor Day. The brave spirit with which so many millions of working people are winning their way out of depression deserves respect and admiration. It is like the courage of the farmers in the drouth areas.

That is my first reason. The second is that healthy employment conditions stand equally with healthy agricultural conditions as a buttress of national prosperity. Dependable employment at fair wages is just as important to the people in the towns and cities as good farm income is to agriculture. Our people must have the ability to buy the goods they manufacture and the crops they produce. Thus city wages and farm buying power are the two strong legs that carry the nation forward.

RE-EMPLOYMENT SPURRED BY SPENDING

Re-employment in industry is proceeding rapidly. Government spending in large part responsible for keeping industry going and putting it in a position to make this re-employment possible. Government orders were the backlog of heavy industry; government wages turned over and over again to make consumer purchasing power and to sustain every merchant in the community. Businessmen with their business, small and large, had to be saved. Private enterprise is necessary to any nation which seeks to maintain the democratic form of government. In their case, just as certainly as in the case of drouth-stricken farmers, government spending has saved.

Government having spent wisely to save it, private industry begins to take workers off the rolls of the government relief program. Until this administration we had no free employment service, except in a few states and cities. Because there was no unified employment service, the worker, forced to move as industry moved, often traveled over the country, wandering after jobs which seemed always to travel just a little faster than he did. He was often victimized by fraudulent practices of employment clearing houses, and the facts of employment opportunities were at the disposal neither of himself nor of the employer.

In 1933 the United States Employment Service was created—a co-operative state and federal enterprise, through which the federal government matches dollar for dollar the funds provided by the states for registering the occupations and skills of workers and for actually finding jobs for these registered workers in private industry. The federal-state co-operation has been splendid. Already employment services are operating in 32 states and the areas not covered by them are served by the federal government.

We have developed a nation-wide service with 700 district offices, and 1,000 branch offices, thus providing facilities through which labor can learn of jobs available and employers can find workers.

ALLOTS $2,500,000 FOR JOB SERVICE

Last spring I expressed the hope that employers would realize their deep responsibility to take men off the relief rolls and give them jobs in private enterprise. Subsequently, I was told by many employers that they were not satisfied with the information available concerning the skill and experience of the workers on the relief rolls. On August 25 I allocated a relatively small sum to the employment service for the purpose of getting better and more recent information in regard to those now actively at work on WPA projects—information as to their skills and previous occupations—and to keep the records of such men and women up to date for maximum service in making them available to industry. Tonight I am announcing the allocation of two and a half million dollars more to enable the employment service to make an even more intensive search than it has yet been equipped to make, to find opportunities in private employment for workers registered with it.

Tonight I urge the workers to co-operate with and take full advantage of this intensification of the work of the employment service. This does not mean that there will be any lessening of our efforts under our WPA and PWA and other work relief programs until all workers have decent jobs in private employment at decent wages. We do not surrender our responsibility to the unemployed. We have had ample proof that it is the will of the American people that those who represent them in national, state and local government should continue as long as necessary to discharge that responsibility. But it does mean that the government wants to use resource to get private work for those now employed on government work, and thus to curtail to a minimum the government expenditures for direct employment.

Tonight I ask employers, large and small, throughout the nation to use the help of the state and federal employment service whenever in the general pick-up of business they require more workers.

LABOR DAY NO CLASS HOLIDAY

Tomorrow is Labor Day. Labor Day in this country has never been a class holiday. It has always been a national holiday. It has never had more significance as a national holiday than it has now. In other countries the relationship of employer and employe has been more or less accepted as a class relationship not readily to be broken through. In this country we insist, as an essential of the American way of life, that the employer-employe relationship should be one between free men and equals. We refuse to regard those who work with hand or brain as different from or inferior to those who live from their property. We insist that labor is entitled to as much respect as property. But our workers with hand and brain deserve more than respect for their labor. They deserve practical protection in the opportunity to use their labor at a return adequate to support them at a decent and constantly rising standard of living, and to accumulate a margin of security against the inevitable vicissitudes of life.

The average man must have that twofold opportunity if we are to avoid the growth of a class-conscious society in the country.

There are those who fail to read both the signs of the times and American history. They would try to refuse the worker any effective power to bargain collectively, to earn a decent livelihood and to acquire security. It is those shortsighted ones, not labor, who threaten this country with that class dissension which in other countries has led to dictatorship and the establishment of fear and hatred as the dominant emotions in human life.

All American workers, brain workers and manual workers alike, and all the rest of us whose well-being depends on theirs, know that our needs are one in building an orderly economic democracy in which all can profit and in which all can be secure from the kind of faulty economic direction which brought us to the brink of common ruin seven years ago.

There is no cleavage between white collar workers and manual workers, between artists and artisans, musicians and mechanics, lawyers and accountants and architects and miners.

Tomorrow, Labor Day, belongs to all of us. Tomorrow, Labor Day, symbolizes the hope of all Americans. Anyone who calls it a class holiday challenges the whole concept of American democracy.

The Fourth of July commemorates our political freedom—a freedom which without economic freedom is meaningless indeed. Labor Day symbolizes our determination to achieve an economic freedom for the average man which will give his political freedom reality.

TALMADGE REPORTED READY FOR MILL PLEA

Russell Jr., whom Talmadge is opposing, and Speaker E. D. Rivers, whom Redwine is opposing, learned of the efforts yesterday and even before the workers obtained the handbills they have urged them not to desert the Roosevelt candidates, pointing out that improvement in the mill conditions is due to President Roosevelt's program and not to anything Talmadge has done in Georgia.

As the campaign comes to an end, mills workers comprise the bulwark of the Russell-Rivers strength in cities where mills are located, and inasmuch as many of them are in four and six-vote counties the continued support of the workers is considered of great import to the cause of the Roosevelt supporters.

Columbus Program.

Meanwhile, Senator Russell and Speaker Rivers prepared to climax their long campaigns with speeches on a Labor Day program at Columbus, where one of the largest crowds in the history of that city, one of Georgia's chief labor centers, is expected to hear them.

The main program begins at noon, Columbus time, with an address by Speaker Rivers. It will be followed by a short address by O. E. Petry, of Columbus, secretary of the Georgia Federation of Labor, speaking in behalf of Rivers and Russell. Senator Russell will follow Petry. The Russell address will be broadcast to the state over station WSB.

Address by George.

Columbus will divide the spotlight with Fort Valley, where Senator Walter F. George is scheduled to make an important address, beginning at 11 o'clock, Atlanta time. This speech also will be carried over WSB.

Senator George has made only one previous public appearance during the campaign, at Adel early in the battle, and his speech today, in which he will discuss the Roosevelt administartion as it pertains to labor, is considered one of the most important events of the final stages of the state campaign.

From Malor George Mayo, of Sandersville, came word last night that everything is in readiness for the six-county Russell rally to be staged there tonight, at which time the senator will make his last speech to middle Georgians in the present campaign.

Gordon Chapman, president of the Washington County Russell Club, stated that brief speeches will be made by representatives of adjoining counties, and that 21 bales of cotton will be presented to Russell, one from each militia district in Washington county.

Talmadge in Gainesville.

Governor Talmadge will appear this afternoon at Gainesville. Russell leaders yesterday sent pleas to their friends at Gainesville not to permit any demonstration against the Governor there. Reports from Hall county assert that because of remarks credited to him immediately after the Gainesville disaster last spring Talmadge is extremely unpopular in Hall county.

A Hall county Russell leader yesterday said many voters in the county believed Talmadge had set up the speech there, knowing of the hostility against him, in the hope that a demonstration against his candidacy might be turned into something to help him. In Gainesville, the Gainesville Eagle carried a front-page editorial asking a "hospitable hearing" for Talmadge. The paper bitterly opposes the Governor.

A similar situation exists in Rome, where Talmadge speaks tomorrow. Russell leaders in that section of the state also called upon the senator's followers not to take any hand in the Talmadge meeting, and to do nothing which would reflect on them or their candidate.

Rivers Changes Speech.

Headquarters for Speaker Rivers announced yesterday that a plan to have Rivers speak from Grant park tonight had been cancelled, inasmuch as there would be an all-day meeting in the park and the Rivers address would come too late to make it a part of the regular Labor Day Grant park program. Instead, Speaker Rivers will make his regular 30-minute Monday night address from the Biltmore hotel studios of station WSB.

The speaker will close his battle for the governorship with addresses tomorrow at Douglas, Jesup, Waycross and Valdosta. From Valdosta he will go to his home at Lakeland to cast his ballot with Mrs. Rivers and E. D. Rivers Jr., Wednesday.

Senator Charles D. Redwine, the Talmadge gubernatorial candidate, will make four speeches today, at Crawfordville, Warrenton, Washington and Appling.

Judge Blanton Fortson, of Athens, the third candidate for governor, will speak at 11 o'clock this morning at Brunswick.

NEW NEUTRALITY LAWS PREDICTED BY CLARK

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 6.—(AP)—United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, told the annual convention of the Oklahoma American Legion today that revelations made by the senate munitions investigating committee "had their effect around the world," and forecast passage by the next congress of "drastic permanent neutrality legislation necessary to safeguard the nation."

"The revolutionary war in Spain," he said, "is just a minor example of the horrible slaughter that would be wrought in a general war today. The next war would be annihilation of the civilian population rather than a conflict between armies."

SOUTHERN PROVINCES RECOGNIZE NANKING

NANKING, China, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Chinese national government in a mandate tonight declared the recalcitrant southern provinces of Kwangtung and Kwangsi have agreed to recognize the nationalist authority vested in Nanking.

For more than three months the rebellion of the two provinces has threatened to plunge all of China into civil war.

The settlement, as reported here, concerned chiefly Kwangsi province which continued its move for independence from Nanking central government authority after the leaders in the adjoining province of Kwangtung accepted Nanking's overlordship.

The agreement apparently was a compromise under which General Li Chung-jen, first in command of Kwangsi forces, and General Pai Chung-hsi, second in command, will continue in positions of high authority within the province but will recognize Nanking leaders as China's national government.

General Chiang Kai-shek, generalissimo of the Nanking central government, was regarded as the author of the final agreement.

PRESIDENT TO TALK AT N. Y. CONVENTION

Roosevelt Will Deliver First Political Address September 29.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt will wind up the New York state Democratic convention in Syracuse September 29 with what party leaders expect will be his opening political speech of the national campaign.

James A. Farley, Democratic national and state chairman, announced today that he completed arrangements for the address in a telephone conversation with the President in Washington.

The President is expected by Democratic leaders to take direct issue with Governor Landon and the Republican party for the first time when he addresses the Syracuse meeting, two days ahead of the deadline he set for the beginning of his political campaign—the month of October.

It was asserted at Democratic headquarters that the President would not be "interfering" in state politics as the state ticket and platform will have been approved before he takes the rostrum.

Present plans are for the President to be the final speaker at the closing session Tuesday evening, September 29, immediately following Governor Herbert Lehman, whose nomination for a third term at Albany is regarded as virtually certain.

COMMUNIST PLAN FRONT.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Communist plans for a united popular front in Great Britain are likely to receive scant encouragement from organized British labor when the 68th Trades Union Congress opens here tomorrow. Five pages of the congress report are to be devoted to an outspoken attack on Communist tactics.

M. J. YEOMANS

For Re-election As

ATTORNEY GENERAL

"We will hazard one political prediction: No matter who runs, Judge M. J. Yeomans will be re-elected Attorney General." The Millen News.

"The Attorney General's office has never been better conducted than during the administration of Judge Yeomans." Walton Tribune.

"Judge Yeomans has made one of the most capable and efficient Attorneys General the State ever has had. The office has been administered economically by him at a great saving to the taxpayers." The Tifton Gazette.

"An able lawyer and a highly conscientious official, Judge Yeomans is a man of proven ability and character and is conceded to possess one of the keenest and shrewdest legal minds in the profession." Columbus Enquirer-Sun.

"Judge Yeomans is not only one of the best Attorney Generals Georgia has ever had but he is one of the State's very best men and citizens." The News-Gazette.

"The efficiency of the Law Department under Judge Yeomans is reflected in the record which shows that not a single case of importance has been lost by the State." Talbotton New Era.

"Georgia has never had a more efficient Attorney General than Judge Yeomans. The fact that not a single important case has been lost by the State evidences the ability of the Attorney General and that of his assistants." The Atlanta Constitution.

"No matter who is elected to any other office in the September Primary, the State will continue to need for Attorney General a lawyer of ability, experience, good judgment and sound common sense. Judge Yeomans fills the bill exactly. The interests of the State will be best served by his re-election." Hartwell Sun.

BANKING AND PUBLIC WELFARE NO. 19

The Worker's Contribution

Workers always have been a leading influence in the progress of America. The ambitious hands of labor have cleared the forests, tilled the land, built railroads, canals, highways, broadening and pushing ever forward the frontiers to make this a land of opportunity and independence for the average man.

Today, with the aid of the investor and business manager, the worker operates the farms and factories supplying necessities and comforts of life to more individuals than in any other nation. The workers in America receive 65% of the entire national income; 97% of the total payroll—money the worker is using not only to provide for his own and his family's welfare, but also to stimulate the trade of the nation.

The sound foresight and thrift of the American worker is demonstrated by over forty million savings accounts in American banks, the services of which are one of the chief factors enabling individuals of modest income to achieve personal financial security and independence and to live in a greater degree of comfort than citizens of any other nation.

Thousands of Voters Assure Judge Anderson of Support

Candidate for Re-election to Georgia Public Service Commission Makes Appeal for Votes of Those Whom He Has Been Unable to See During Intensive Campaign.

J. J. E. ANDERSON

In the conduct of my campaign for re-election to the Georgia Public Service Commission, I have traveled over the State, seeing as many voters as possible, and have received assurances of support from thousands of people.

To those that I did not see, I wish to use this method of soliciting their vote and influence on September 9th for the following reasons:

I have, as a member of the Georgia Public Service Commission, worked for and secured reductions in your electric rates, gas rates, freight and passenger rates, telephone rates and bus and truck rates that have been a pocketbook savings to every citizen in Georgia.

I understand my opponent is leaving the impression that he was ousted from the Public Service Commission. The facts are, I was appointed to succeed George L. Goode, who was appointed to the Law Department as Assistant Attorney General to succeed me. Mr. Goode succeeded Mr. Albert J. Woodruff, who is not running in this election.

My opponent has never had any connection with the Georgia Public Service Commission.

I feel that my previous experience on this Commission and the work I have done entitles me to consideration at your hands.

If re-elected, I shall remain, as I have been in the past, ever mindful of the interest of the public and shall do everything in my power to give the people of Georgia such further reductions as can reasonably be made.

Assuring you of my appreciation of your vote and influence on September 9th, I am,

Yours very truly,
J. J. E. ANDERSON.

Mother Seeks To Regain Custody Of Baby Given Away While Sick

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Nine-month-old James Edward Cook spent a quiet Sabbath at the Leonard Kramp home in the village of North Baltimore today, unmindful that a scant block away his mother was mustering legal force in a court fight for custody of the baby she gave away.

On Tuesday, Common Pleas Judge Amos L. Conn will hear arguments of the mother, Mrs. Mary V. Cook, that she now can support little James and wants him returned. Mrs. Kramp prepared to oppose the habeas corpus action "to the end."

"I love him; I'll not give him up to anyone," said Mrs. Kramp.

"He's mine; I can support him now," countered Mrs. Cook.

Mrs. Cook said she gave the baby to Mrs. Kramp January 3 when he was one month old, but that she had refused to sell him or permit his adoption by the Kramps.

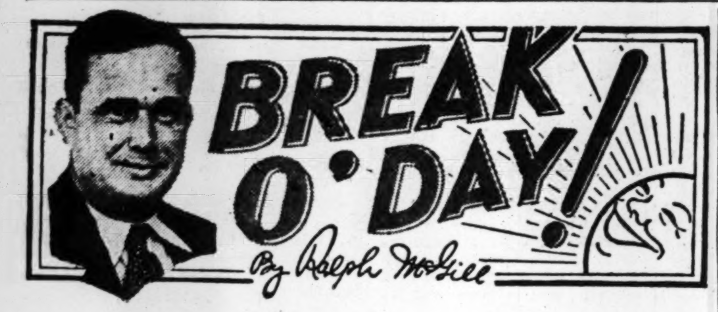

"He was sick at the time," the mother declared, "and I was working to support my jobless husband, Chloe, and our other two boys, 2 and 4 years old.

"The Kramps asked if they could buy James, but I said not. In July they asked if I would consent to an adoption. I agreed, but later I heard that they drank beer and went out at night, leaving the baby with other people—yet their home is less than a block from where I live.

"So I refused to sign adoption papers. My husband now has a job as a laborer, and with my work in a restaurant, I feel that we can support our family. The baby is mine and I asked Mrs. Kramp for him back, but she said I'd have to pay board for eight months."

Mrs. Kramp contended she had taken a weak, sickly child, nursed it to health, and come to love it.

Crackers Lose First, 8-6; Second Ended by Darkness ,4 to 4

He was telling the story—being just back from Europe.

"You wonder about it," he said. "It was curious, being there that day—"

They had been at a hotel the night before at Glenn Eagles, Scotland. And Bobby Jones had said: "I can't be this close to St. Andrews and not play there."

So the next morning they went to St. Andrews. And later that morning to the St. Andrews club. The cradle of golf is there. St. Andrews knew the old golf balls made of leather stuffed with feathers.

They'd be back after lunch, they said, refusing an invitation there.

So, they walked across a part of the course and then across the street to their hotel.

At a quarter of 2 o'clock they went out and there was a vast sea of people waiting. "I'll swear you couldn't see the ground," he said.

And so, he went on, telling the story.

Bobby Jones went in and changed his shoes and when he came out there was a great cheer that went up.

You get the picture, as he told it. There was the sun and the wind that blows across the dunes of Scotland. And the green of the course and the crowd.

"You know," said the man telling the story, "it was curious. "I saw people crying. And Bobby turned a little pale and smiled a bit. And then came on out to the tee."

He told about the photographers and the newspapermen who were there. And they took pictures.

"And then," he said, "Jack McIntyre, his old caddy, the one who had caddied for him there when he won the open in 1927 and the amateur in 1930, came up with his clubs. He had quit caddying. But when he heard Bobby was there, he came.

"It was the most unusual thing—the old fellow's face was working with emotion and tears streamed down his cheeks. He couldn't talk. He just looked at Bobby.

"And Bobby just patted his arm a few times and said, 'Hello, Jack. I'm glad to see you.' But the fellow understood. That was enough."

THEY STARTED THE MATCH.

He sat there for a moment, making marks on the tablecloth with a fork, thinking back, and went on with the story.

The crowd, some 5,000 excited Scots, followed close after the match.

"I looked around," he said, "and there were people here and there crying. Bobby Jones had come back to St. Andrews to play golf and they were crying about it.

"I saw one woman call her son.

"'Stoop down there, laddie," she said, "and have a look through their legs. 'Tis the real Bobby Jones you're seein'.'

"And this freckled little Scot looked through the legs of the gallery at the real Bobby Jones."

He went on, describing the crowd and its excitement. They followed the match, cheering when Jones played well and groaning with every putt that failed to drop. They wanted him to play well. And he did.

"I heard a woman talking to another," said the man telling the story. "She was saying, ''Tis a shame, this is,' and she tried to wedge in closer.

"So," he said, "I moved up and I said, 'I think so, too, but why do you think it is a shame?

"'Because,' she said, ''Tis a shame that a member of the club cannot come here and play a round of golf without all this crowding.'

And he smiled, thinking how the Scottish lady had been one of the most ardent of those seeking to press after Bobby Jones.

WHEN THE ROUND WAS OVER.

"When the round was over," he said, "they all but mobbed him. They wanted to touch him. They tore his clothing, pulling at him.

"Finally the police cleared a way for him and put him in the vestibule of the clubhouse. And he said there he would sign the autograph book of any of the children."

And so, for near an hour he signed the books and the bits of paper the children brought there at St. Andrews.

A lady who was there told the best chapter of the story.

"A little girl came up and she said to Bobby Jones, holding out a bit of paper: 'Please sir, may I have your autograph? I have no pencil, sir,' she said. 'My wee sister has it. Will you wait?'

"And so," said the lady, smiling," she went away and came back, leading her wee sister, who really was very wee, and they both had bits of paper. And Bobby signed them."

Later they were walking up one of the streets in St. Andrews, she and Mrs. Bobby Jones and another lady. And a small boy came asking for autographs. And the lady telling the story said she whispered to him, pointing out Mrs. Jones as the one whose autograph he really wanted.

"He smiled," she said, and said, 'I know.'

"He was just being polite, asking for them all to get the one he wanted."

THAT WAS THE STORY.

That was the story of how Bobby Jones came back to St. Andrews just before the Olympic games.

He told the newspapermen that he had come just for a round for pleasure. "I never played here before for pleasure, you know," he said. And smiled.

They had not known there, until that morning, that he was to be there. And the club had telephoned to Edinburgh and nearby cities. And in St. Andrews there were some merchants who put placards in their windows, "Bobby Jones is in town."

One of the papers there in England printed a picture of him at the finish of his swing in 1930 when he won the amateur and a picture of him at the finish of a swing the day he came back to St. Andrews, just a few weeks ago.

"There was no difference at all—except in one he wore knickers and in the other, long trousers," said the man telling the story. "The swing was identical."

More than any other athlete, I believe, Bobby Jones had the warm regard of the people—all people. I can still remember department store people, street car motormen, restaurant waiters and waitresses, shop girls, bankers, clerks, ministers—all of them excited the day Bobby Jones completed "the Grand Slam."

He was a great competitor—the greatest, perhaps—and always he was a quiet gentleman and sportsman. And everyone knew it—instinctively. And that explains, I think, the welcome at St. Andrews and why they still trudge after him at Augusta in the Masters' tournament when he isn't winning or even playing particularly good golf.

Will there be another Jones? Don't be silly!

PELICANS TRIP BARONS TWICE FOR 3D PLACE

Smokies Beat Lookouts Pair; Chicks Conquer Travelers.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—New Orleans' Pelicans moved the Birmingham Barons out of third place today, by winning both games of a double-header, 12 to 0 and 5 to 2, before a crowd of 4,500 fans.

The Pels collected 16 hits in the first game, driving Clyde Shoun to the showers in the fifth inning. Rose, Connolly and Helf got three hits apiece. Mike McCormick's home run in the fifth inning featured the second game. George Darrow, ace Baron hurler, was trying for his 21st victory, but New Orleans found him for 12 hits during the five innings he pitched.

GILLESPIE GAINS TOURNEY FINALS AT FOREST HILLS

Atlantan Defeats National Boy Champion in 5-Set Encounter.

FOREST HILLS, Sept. 6.—Billy Gillespie entered the final round of the National Interscholastic tennis tournament Sunday. Playing a smart game, he defeated Isadore Belis, national boy champion, in a terrific 5-set encounter, 7-5, 2-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Gillespie's backhand earned him many points throughout the match, as he repeatedly passed Bellis at the net for clean placements, most of the time sending the ball down the line, and just inside. From the back court, Billy usually outsteadied the New York lad. During the second and third sets, he tightened up, and began hitting his shots too short and easy. Bellis, taking advantage of this, would crack the short shots cross court and deep, pulling Billy out of position, thereby forcing him into errors.

BELLIS LEAD.

Billy, after a hard battle, took the opening set with beautiful across court drives which Bellis could not reach. Bellis, changing his tactics in the second and third sets, taking the net on many short shots Billy hit to him, volleyed nicely for many placements. With Gillespie hitting weakly instead of pounding the ball as in the first set, the slender boy champion took the next two sets, 6-2, 6-4, to lead 2-1 in sets at the rest period.

Billy, dressed in white shorts, came back after a 10-minute rest and began hitting out again, and taking the net whenever possible. He took the fourth set 6-3, using to good advantage his backhand and dropping lobs to the baseline which took a good bit out of his opponent, who was forced to race back after them in futile attempts to win the point.

GILLESPIE STEADY.

The fifth set found Billy as steady as a rock, from the baseline, and Bellis, who had often gone to the net in the fourth set, also staying on the baseline. But the Atlanta youngster was hitting the ball and sending cross-court drives over the net which Bellis could not handle and took the set 6-3 and match three sets to two.

Billy showed his mettle today in overcoming a 2-1 lead, and demonstrated his ability to play when the pressure was on him. Monday he will play Robert A. Low, of New York city, in the finals. Low, from Choate school, Wallingford, Conn., is ranked tenth in the juniors of the Eastern Association. Gillespie is going to try to bring another national tennis title to Atlanta, and get in Bitsy Grant's class.

Grant To Meet Frenchman Today.

FOREST HILLS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Johnny McDiarmid, slender young political science instructor at Princeton University, staged a lion-hearted five-set battle on the wind-swept grandstand court today to defeat Frank J. Bowden, of New York, 8-10, 8-10, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4, in the outstanding match of the national tennis singles championships.

All other seeded players who went to the courts today survived, though there wasn't a brilliant spot in the entire program. Don Budge, the American favorite from Oakland, Cal., muddled through a 6-3, 6-4, 9-7 victory over blond Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles; Frankie Parker tumbled Charlie Harris, of West Palm Beach, Fla., 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, 7-5, and Gregory Mangin, of New York, and Bernard Destremau and Yvon Petra, of France, won easy victories. Bryan Grant, who was idle, faces Pierre Pelizza, of France, in tomorrow's feature match.

It was the same in the women's tournament with the three seeded players in the lower bracket, Alice Marble, San Francisco; Gracyn Wheeler, Santa Monica, Cal., and Helen Pedersen, Hartford, Conn., all winning without a struggle.

Frankie Parker fought until dusk before winning from Harris, and he did it on his greatest rally of the tournament. Harris led, 5 games to 2, in the fourth set, but Parker came back to break service in the ninth and eleventh games to win the set, 7-5.

Today's matches completed the third round in the men's tournament and the second in the women's.

COVINGTON WINS.

COVINGTON, Ga., Sept. 6.—Mac Vickory pitched Covington Mills to a 5-2 victory over Porterdale here this afternoon. He fanned 14 Porterdale batters and allowed only three hits. Ralph Hyder and Bill Bledsoe hit best for the winners.

Lanford Calls Off Tuesday Ring Card

Doc Lanford, boxing promoter, announced last night that due to an injury sustained by Charley Loughran, who was to have fought Ben Brown in the 10-round headliner at the ball park Tuesday night, the show had been calle off. Lanford, who has staged five successful shows here this season, was unable to obtain a suitable opponent for the Atlanta boy on such short notice.

Loughran, brother of Tommy Loughran, received a nasty cut that required four stitches while sparring Saturday morning. He would lik to meet Brown, whom he beat on a decision several months ago, at an early date, he wired Lanford. A hospital report substantiating Loughran's claim accompanied the wire.

Lanford has not set a date for his next program.

Tech, Georgia Start Rough Second Week

Five Hefty Bulldog Tackles Lose Total of 27 Pounds.

By Felton Gordon.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 6.—The University of Georgia's widely heralded "hefty tackles" on the face of first week's maneuvers showed an average loss of over five pounds the man.

Trainer C. W. Jones' weighograph indicated an average of around 210 pounds for five of the main prospects. The initial conditioning processes stripped 27 pounds from the players in question.

Such behomeths as Tommy Haygood and John Davis ended the week with losses of as much as six or eight pounds.

The weight fluctuation of the five:
Roy Gatchell—193-194-192.
Tommy Haygood—220-217-219-214.
John Davis—226-221-218.
Red Milton—211-204.
Bill Badgett—229-228-227-226-227-225.

Heaviest loss of the week in a single practice was recorded by Harry Harman, guard. He was stripped of 11 pounds by Saturday's activities.

Coach Harry Mehre was well pleased with the opening day from the conditioning standpoint. The players are in excellent condition for the roughing it which is to come this week. Dependent upon the progress of the squad, a punting scrimmage is slated for either Thursday or Friday. Officially, the inaugural skirmish is set for Saturday afternoon.

The average loss of weight considering the difference between opening day's report and Saturday was less than three pounds the man. Drills were stiffest for the corresponding period than any time in recent years. Weather was pleasant.

All linemen taken into consideration netted an average drop of about four pounds.

Fundamentals Scheduled To Occupy Jackets This Week.

By Jack Troy.

The main fundamentals of football will be brought to the attention of the Georgia Tech squad this week. And next.

Line scrimmage will be plentiful. Block and tackling, prime requisites of a successful team, will be stressed.

The Jacket squad, numbering 31 varsity men and some 25 members of the Bee squad, enters the second week of work in pretty good condition. A full week of conditioning work has prepared the players for the more arduous phases of the game.

Coach William Alexander plans to hold a punting scrimmage on Wednesday and follow it up with a regular scrimmage on Saturday.

The chief battle for positions is going to be waged in the line.

ENDS NOT SETTLED.

The end positions are far from settled. Bill Jordan seems fairly assured of one terminal, but will it be Ed Jones or Jim Morgan at the other? And what of Tom Allen, Gay Thrash and George Smith?

Jones and Morgan are the more experienced. Allen, a junior, is a fine pass receiver and strong defensively. His only weak point at present centers around the taking out of a tackle. Thrash and Smith are most promising sophomores.

It may be that Jones will pair with Jordan. He seems to have a bit of an edge on Morgan at this time.

Bud Lindsey and Phil Chance are veteran tackles. But there are two enterprising sophomores, Walter Rimmer and Glenn Cushing, who will battle to edge in at one or both of the positions. One of them may win a first-string berth.

VETERAN GUARDS.

Captain Mit FitzSimons and Jack Nixon are back at the guard positions. Allen Wilcox, last of the Tyler (Texas) Wilcoxes, and Henry Bynum, sophomore guards, will offer real competition. But the odds likely are against either playing regularly. FitzSimons won an oll-southern guard post last year and Nixon was showing splendid development toward the end of the season.

Big Charley Preston will hold down the pivot position for the Jackets, with Jack Chivington probably ranking as the No. 1 reserve center.

It will be Labor Day for the world at large and the Jackets, in particular, today. They're not going to ease into the program of work mapped out.

Whataman Shires Sued for Divorce

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A suit for divorce charging cruelty was filed today against Charles Arthur (What a Man) Shires, former Chicago White Sox baseball player and one-time boxer, by Mrs. Betty Greenabaum Shires, of Chicago.

It alleges he struck her with his "fist and open hand" in November, 1932, and on August 1, 1935, when they separated. The couple was married November 10, 1930, at Los Angeles, and have a son, Charles Arthur Jr., two and a half.

Cincinnati Buys Mooty and Miller

CINCINNATI, Sept. 6—(AP)—President Powell Crosley Jr., of the Cincinnati Reds, announced Saturday purchase from Toronto of the International league, a Red farm, of Pitcher Jake Mooty and Shortstop Ed Miller. An unannounced sum in cash and Outfielder Lincoln Blakeley, now with Toronto, and First Baseman Whitey Wistert, with Nashville of the Southern association, were given for the players.

Red Sox Purchase Nick Dellesandro

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox announced Saturday night the purchase of Outfielder Dominick Dellesandro from the Syracuse club of the International league. Dellesandro will join the So next spring.

The Red Sox did not announce the price paid for the outfielder, who is batting .325.

They also announced that Ellsworth (Babe) Dahlgren, under Red Sox option at Syracuse, will join the Boston team at Chicago on its coming western tour. Dahlgren, now batting for .325, played first base for the Sox last year. His place was taken by slugging Jimmy Foxx.

GOLFERS START MATCHES TODAY AT CAPITAL CITY

Billy Ginn, Last Year's Champion, Unable To Defend His Title.

Capital City's golfers will start play today in the annual club championship tournament. One week will be given over to each round of play.

Billy Ginn, the last year's champion, is out of the city and will not defend his title, leaving the field wide open for some new club champion to be crowned.

Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech backfield coach, and Bud Bicknell, a quarter-finalist in the recent Georgia state tournament, shared medal honors with 72s. Oliver Healey was 1 stroke back of the leaders, with Dr. Fred Minnich, in third place, with a 75.

The low 32 players were grouped into the championship division and the winning and losing players will form flights of 16 each. All other players were grouped into flights of 16 each.

Handicaps will not apply in the first match of the championship division, nor in any championship flight match, but will apply in all other flights. Handicaps will apply for the defeated 16 in the championship division in all other matches.

The pairings:

Leading Foursome Finishes With 128.

Alan Yates, Jackson Robertson, Weldon Branch and A. J. Jones paced a field of a dozen foursomes in the weekly dogfite on the No. 2 East Lake course Sunday afternoon and finished with a 128.

George Rudolph, Dewey Bowen, Chess Logarmarsino and Robert Ingram finished in a tie with Donald Sargent, H. T. Dobbs Sr., H. T. Dobbs Jr. and R. Pritchard for second place, three strokes back of the leaders.

Third place was shared between C. A. Williams, C. C. Crawford, L. F. Meng and H. S. Roberts, S. P. Murray, J. W. Welch, George Suggs and W. H. Warneke and A. M. Perkerson, Curtis Kyle, P. W. Crawford and R. R. Garrison, five strokes away from the leaders.

Bogey and Dogfite Set for East Lake.

An all-day bogey and dogfite in the afternoon on the No. 2 course will be played at Eas Lake today. The bogey will be played on both courses.

Qualifying for the annual president's cup tournament also will continue today and during the remainder of the week.

A number of special events have been planned for Ansley Park, Druid Hills and Capital City courses this afternoon also.

Brown Meets Cook For Ansley Park Title.

James (Kid) Brown, Georgia's amateur champion, entered the finals of the annual Nat Kaiser Memorial trophy tournament with a 3-2 victory over Jiroud Jones, Sunday morning on the Ansley Park course. Brown and Jones finished all square at the end of 18 holes and Brown won out on the last 18 played yesterday.

Brown meets Jack Cook in the finals, a 36-hole match on Sunday, September 20.

H. L. Gilham's 73 remains in first place among the early qualifers for the annual Ansley Park Club championship tournament. The preliminary round will continue through September 13.

GUZZY WINS AGAIN.

Joe Guzzy defeated Alvin Gross yesterday, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5, 8-6, to win the Standard Club championship for the second straight year. The victory gave Guzzy two legs on the Simon Selig trophy, which will be his if he wins again next year.

Mauldin Lauded By Smokie Fans

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 6. (AP)—Marshall Maulding, slender center fielder, was awarded a silver trophy today as the most popular member of Knoxville's Southern Association baseball club.

He was chosen by fans, receiving 19,520 votes during the season. Manager Neil Caldwell was second with 19,300 votes.

Mauldin is battling with Joe Dwyer, Nashville outfielder, for league batting honors. He belongs to the Chicago White Sox. His home is in Atlanta.

LINDSEY LOSES HIS FIRST GAME TO VOLUNTEERS

Speece Routed in Opener But Wins; Hooks Hits Home Run.

SULPHUR DELL, NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 6. — Apparently the Crackers prefer to delay cinching their second straight Southern association pennant.

The champions lost and tied in a double-header here today, 8-6 and 4-4, reducing their hold on first place as a comfortable 7 1-2 games. They can place a lock and key on first place if they break even tomorrow in the Labor Day twin bill.

Old Jim Lindsey lost to the Vols for the first time since he entered the league in the opener and suffered the further disgrace of being shelled from the mound in the fifth inning. He was pounded for 10 hits, including home runs by Wasdell and Taitt in the third inning.

Byron Speece won his 22nd game of the season, holding the Crackers to six hits until the eighth. In that frame a homer by Alex Hooks came with two on to score three runs. When Hutcheson, Hill and Chatham hit safely in the ninth, Speece was jerked in favor of Ray Starr, who caused the last three hitters to pop up.

With Sharkey Eiland hurling against Thomas, Nashville went into the sixth inning of the nightcap ahead, 4-1. Singles by Hooks and Lipscomb, two infield errors and Galvin's pinch single to left shoved over three tallies to knot the count, 4-4, before Junie Barnes could come to the rescue.

Bobby Durham blanked the Vols with one hit in the last two frames. Atlanta loaded the bases after two were out in the seventh on two errors by Outlaw and a pass to Hutcheson. Hill flied to Taitt to end the scoring chance.

Joe Dwyer passed Sington for the league lead in hitting, banging out three doubles and three singles in eight trips.

Williams and West will face Hilcher and Barnes in the double bill Monday.

GROVE, FERRELL HOLD NEW YORK IN DOUBLE BILL

White Sox Lick Tribe Twice; Tie Tigers for Second Place.

Copyright, 1936, by United Press

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—In the American league yesterday the leading New York Yankees lost their first double-header of the year, 14 to 5 and 4 to 2, to the Boston Red Sox. The first game was Wes Ferrell's 18th win of the year. More than 35,000 fans turned out. Ferrell coasted to victory, allowing the Yankees 14 hits but aiding his own attack with three safeties, including a home run. Foxx's 37th circuit clout of the year was one of the Red Sox's 17 hits garnered off Broaca and Wicker. Lefty Grove exhibited some of his old-time speed as he held the Yankees to four hits in the nightcap, one of which was a home run by Tony Lazzeri. He struck out 11 men.

The Chicago White Sox climbed up into a second-place tie with the idle Detroit Tigers by downing the Cleveland Indians twice, 15 to 1 and 6 to 3. The double defeat dropped the Indians all the way from second place to fourth, only one percentage point above the Washington Senators.

Ted Lyons doled out eight hits in the opener while the White Sox slaughtered three Indian hurlers for 19 blows with Rip Radcliff setting the pace with a double and three singles. In the nightcap the Indians could make 12 hits produce only three runs, while the White Sox coupled their seven safeties and a pair of Cleveland errors for six and the victory.

The Tigers' scheduled tilt with the St. Louis Browns was rained out.

The Senators sent the Philadelphia Athletics down to defeat in both ends of a double-header, 7 to 1 and 7 to 5. Earl Whitehill scattered six hits to the A's while his teammates battered Gumpert and Lisenbee for 10 to win the first game. After the A's had come from behind to tally five times in the fifth inning of the nightcap to tie the game at 5-5, the Senators pushed over two more in the sixth to win out.

'JORDAN RISKS TITLE TONIGHT

Honey Boy Hackney, who has beaten Ben (Tarzan) Jordan in non-title matches, tonight will get a chance to assert his superiority with something worth while at stake.

Hackney and Jordan meet at the Key arena, with Jordan's light-heavyweight championship belt at stake.

A couple of years ago Hackney and Jordan staged several sensational matches at the city auditorium. In one match, both started a flying tackle at the same time and knocked each other out.

And while no such result is expected tonight, the match is sure to afford fans some of the most spectacular wrestling seen all season.

Jordan enters the match as the favorite. But Hackney's supporters have not forgotten that a scant two years ago Jordan did well to win as many matches as he lost against Hackney.

The New Jersey grappler, who is built like a Jersey bull, uses the flying scissors to advantage.

Hackney won the right to meet Jordan for the title by defeating Jack Ross, from whom Jordan won the belt, in a match last week at Key.

Ted Long, sensational Florida grappler, and Frank Remmile, of Birmingham, will meet in the semi-windup.

While Ted Taylor, Mississippi, and Chippewa Charlie, the Indian brave, open the show in a 45-minute match at 8:30 o'clock.

The Jordan-Hackney match is scheduled for one hour, best two out of three falls.

MILLICAN REMOVAL FROM RACE URGED

Sullivan Scores 'Violated Pledge' in Senatorial Campaign.

Renewing his demands that G. Everett Millican withdraw from the race for state senator from the 35th district, T. Q. Sullivan, of College Park, Clayton county candidate, declared in a statement issued yesterday that "voters are wondering what the big interests have up their sleeve that is so important to them that they want representation in the general assembly at the cost of a violated pledge."

"Under the time-honored rotation plan, which has been in effect more than 50 years, it is Clayton county's time to be represented in the state senate," said Mr. Sullivan. Knowing this, Mr. Millican undertook to legalize the entry of the Fulton county candidate by getting the senatorial executive committee he himself appointed to throw out the gentleman's agreement which was a solemn moral obligation to recognize Clayton county's right to representation.

"According to an affidavit made by T. K. Dixon, clerk of court, of Clayton county, Millican declared he would not run, and would oppose any Fulton county candidate. He entered the race in violation of this pledge. Mr. Dixon has made this charge publicly in Mr. Milican's presence, and Mr. Millican has see fit to ignore it, knowing there is no answer."

Candidate Sullivan, although a resident of Fulton county's College Park, lives just across the line in Clayton county.

ATLANTA GIRL HURT IN ST. SIMONS CRASH

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP) Miss Alice Monehan, of Atlanta, and James Ownes, of Brunswick, received serious injuries last night in an automobile accident on St. Simons Island.

A wheel apparently collapsed, caused the car to overturn. Miss Monehan received a blow on the head and severe cuts.

Miss Alice Monehan, Atlantan reported injured in an automobile accident yesterday on St. Simons Island, is not listed in the Atlanta telephone or city directories.

AAA Races Today May Be Last Here

Outlawing of Sport Forecast by Breitenstein Time Trials Start at Noon.

Atlanta's final AAA races of this season or possibly several seasons will hold attention of speed fans of Dixie today when 25 helmeted hellions will compete in an eight-event card in the fourth annual AAA Labor Day auto races at Lakewood.

Promoter Bill Breitenstein, who says he has every reason to know, predicts that during the fair Atlanta will take a backward step to outlaw hippodromed events, and that he will toss in a "swan song" card here that will leave the customers gasping.

RACING AT 2:45.

Under a revised schedule time trials are due to start at noon with the first race set to get under way at 2:45 p. m. There will be three dashes of the helmet type, with invited entrants, a five-mile sprint handicap, a 10-mile early program feature race, a final feature of 15 miles and possibly one or two added events.

Although Gardner is the standout driver in the field and is here with an avowed intention of making a clean-up to top the Southeastern States A. A. A. ratings, much interest will be taken in the debut of Red Redmond for the full program on the Lemmond-Miller, with which he won the southern race July 4.

Gordon Bracken, Pete Craig and Dan Murphy are openly predicting that they hope to outrun Redmond, even if he has a Miller. The elevation of the former Tech student to the Miller mount has caused a regular furore. Rivalry against Singleton will also be keen because of his feature race win on July 4.

SIX NEW CARS.

Another factor which is catching the fans' fancy is that there will be at least six new cars running here. Renolodo and Rossinni, Italians, have new mounts. Murphy will drive Ray Gast's Beach Special, which has never been at Lakewood. Mike Cone will be on a Green Engine Special, new to the track; Al Crisler will have a Schofield and Jim Chastion will ride a new Riley from Charlotte.

In the local shiftings, Pete Craig has gone on the Matthews Brothers' Cragar, Gordy Bracken retains the Bill Milam mount and Goff will likely drive for Charlie Scarratt. Harley Taylor will be again on the Johnny Scarratt Special and Roy Matthews on Bob Reed's Winfield. Gardner, Marion, Redmond and Renolodo will drive Millers.

The new schedule for today is as follows:

Lakewood gates open at 9:30.
Warmup period, 11 a. m.
Time trials, noon.
First race, 2:45 p. m.

In event of inclement weather Sunday, September 13, has been set for a rain date.

Ex-Tech Student

Red Redmond, former Georgia Tech student, will drive a Miller racer in today's AAA auto races at Lakewood.

Texas Stars Play Pros Tonight

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The centennial all-stars and the professional Chicago Bears were ready tonight to put the respective merits of college and professional football to the test at the Cotton Bowl here tomorrow night.

The All-Stars, studded with All-Americans and lesser lights from college gridirons of last season, were prepared to shoot the works in an effort to become the first such group to win over a professional team. Ties resulted in two previous professional-collegiate contests and the pros gained a field goal victory in a third.

Matty Bell, Leo (Dutch) Meyer, All-Star coaches, placed their hopes chiefly on Bobby Wilson, who gained All-American recognition last year at Southern Methodist, and Abe Mickal, triple-threat Louisiana State ace.

Bell, noted for his aerial circuses at Southern Methodist, promised plenty of pigskin flipping.

Bell came out with a slight advantage in a heated conference with George Halas, Bear president and coach, over the playing rules. Halas was successful, however, in three instances: Placing the goal posts on the goal lines, allowing flying blocks and flying tackles, and allowing players entering the game to talk before the first play has been run. Otherwise the pros will play under the college code.

The Bears elected William Hewitt, stellar end formerly at the University of Michigan, to captain the pros. Mickal and Bob Reynolds, tackle of the Rose Bowl champion Stanford University Cardinals, will share leadership of the All-Stars.

The probable starting lineups:

All-Stars—Ends, Geny (Vanderbilt) and Howell (Arkansas); tackles, Reynolds (Stanford) and Throckmorton (Vanderbilt); guards, Sklar (Kansas) and Stamps (Southern Methodist); center, Muller (Stanford); quarterback, Mickal (L. S. U.); halfbacks, MacAuley (Rice) and Lawrence (Texas Christian); fullback, Manton (Texas Christian).

Bears—Ends, Hewitt and Karr; tackles, Trost and Musso; guards, Carlson and Zeller; center, Miller; quarterback, Nolting; halfbacks, Manders and Masterson; fullback, Sisk.

OFFICIALS STUDY OCEAN TRADE LANES

Shipping Board Bureau Probe Government Aid of Routes.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Shipping Board Bureau officials disclosed today they are gathering comprehensive data to determine whether the government is aiding in maintaining any "non-essential" transoceanic trade routes.

Looking to operation of the new ship subsidy law, officials said, they are seeking information which will aid the new maritime commission in deciding whether the government should withdraw assistance from ship lines operating on certain routes.

Although declining to say what routes, if any, may be eliminated from the new subsidy program, officials added that facts are being gathered regarding the type and amount of cargo carried on all ocean trade lanes and what markets are served.

While the study has not yet been concluded, officials said they were convinced that service to South America is "very essential" because of its "good-will" value and other factors.

GASHOUSE GANG UNABLE TO STOP CINCINNATI REDS

TommyThompson'sPinch Homer With 2 on Beats Terrymen.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(UP)—The New York Giants lost their third straight game to the Boston Bees, 3 to 2, today but saw their National league lead increased a half-game to three as the St. Louis Cardinals were bowled over twice by the Cincinnati Reds.

It was a heart-breaker for the Giants to lose as Frank Gabler had shut the bees out for eight innings, only to have a pinch-hitter, Rupert Thompson, blast a home run with two mates aboard in the ninth. Gabler had given out only four hits up to then. The Giants landed on Lanning for 13 hits and had the winning runs on base when Bob Smith was called to the rescue and retired a pinch hitter, Bill Terry, and Gus Mancuso, to win the game for the Bees.

The Cardinals' big chance to gain on the Giants was kicked away as they lost to the Reds, 5 to 3 and 8 to 4. Babe Herman's home run with a mate on in the first of the opener sent the Reds into a two-run lead which they never relinquished. Ex-Card Bill Hallahan held his former mates to three scattered runs until the eighth, when he gave way to a pinch hitter. Three St. Louis hurlers, Johnson, Earnshaw and Heusser, were found for nine hits by Cincy batsmen.

Extra base blows were the secret of the Reds' second conquest. Cuyler's triple led to a tally in the third. Herman doubled and scored for the next one in the fourth. Campbell's double with two on in the sixth accounted for two mors and Ival Goodman's home run after Cuyler's single in the seventh sent the next brace across.

Ray Davis, who saw relief service in the first game, went the distance in the nightcap, holding the Cards to nine hits, while the Reds collected 10 off Pippen and Earnshaw.

The double defeat let the Chicago Cubs climb to within a game of second place, although they were set down, 5 to 4, by the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Cubs found Weaver and Swift for 13 hits, but could not bunch them effectively. Davis, Bryant and Root worked for the Cubs and gave up nine safeties, including triples by Suhr and Vaughan. Davis, who was reached for three runs in the first inning, was the losing pitcher, while Weaver got credit for the win.

Five errors, three of them by Junior Frey, Brooklyn Dodger shortstop, paved the way for a 7-to-5 triumph by the Philadelphia Phillies. With the score tied, 5-5, going into the last half of the eighth, Pinky Whitney doubled to score Jose Gomez with the winning run.

Tallahassee Wins Second Straight Over Cordele, 5-1

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Tallahassee Capitals made the score 2-0 in the Georgia-Florida league pennant series today by whipping the Cordele Reds, 5-1, in the second game.

Each team collected six hits, but the Capitals combined theirs with bases on balls and two errors to win the game.

Lowery, who pitched for Tallahassee, kept Cordele's hits well scattered, but his teammates pulled him out of several holes.

After a layoff tomorrow, the teams will resume play in Cordele Tuesday night.

PICARD WINS HERSHEY OPEN

HERSHEY, Pa., Sept. 6.—(UP)—Henry G. Picard, home-town pro, today won the fourth annual Hershey open tournament with a blazing 67—six under par—for a total of 287.

A gallery of 4,000, largest in Hershey open history, was thrilled by Picard's accurate putting which brought him his own country club's crown and first prize of $1,200.

Picard's card today equalled his own record of 67 for the par 73 course. Trailing by six strokes when he started today, Picard had to "burn up" the course to win.

Jimmy Hines, Garden City, L. I., also shot a 67 to become the first linksman to equal Picard's record. Hines finished eighth, having started today with a 225.

Shooting a 69, Jimmy Thomson, Chicopee, Mass., finished second, one stroke behind Picard with a 288 total to win $750.

"Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, Chicago, was third with 289, and won $550.

BUFORD, WARREN TO CLASH TODAY

BUFORD, Ga., Sept. 6.—Buford's baseball team will celebrate its return home from the National Semi-pro tournament in a game with Warren Company, bitter Atlanta rival, at 4 o'clock here tomorrow afternoon. Another game of the series will be played at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday night on the Warren field in Atlanta.

Buford recently was runner-up to Oklahoma City in the National Semi-pro tournament at Wichita, Kan., and tomorrow's game will be their first since returning home.

With Monday a holiday, one of the largest crowds of the season is expected to the holiday attraction.

Gene Nix, a southpaw, or Cleo Jeter, fast ball artist, will be Manager Jake Smith's pitching choice for the Shoemakers.

Shortly before Buford left for the tournament, a new unofficial winning streak of 35 games was set, against some of the strongest teams in Georgia and Tennessee.

Fayetteville Wins Flint First Half

FAYETTEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 6.—Fayetteville won the first half of the Flint River league with an 8-to-4 victory over Jonesboro here this afternoon. The game was postponed from early in the season due to rain.

Webb kept nine Jonesboro hits well scattered and after his mates had piled up a 5-to-0 lead in the sixth inning he was never in trouble.

SLAGTOWN NINE WINS MIDSOUTH BASEBALL TITLE

Knoxville Eliminates Dixisteel, But Loses to Birmingham, 11-0.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 6.—(AP) Birmingham won the baseball championship of the Midsouth Athletic Association here today by crushing Knoxville's entry, 11-0, behind the stellar five-hit pitching of Earl Peyton. Birmingham got 12 safeties off Fisher and Corum, the two Knoxville moundsmen.

Birmingham advanced to the finals with a 3-1 victory over the United States Pipe, another local entry, and Knoxville upset Atlanta, 5-3, in morning games.

Birmingham grabbed a 2-0 lead from Knoxville in the first and was never seriously threatened thereafter with Peyton holding the Tennessee team well in check with topnotch mound work.

Knoxville Rally Beats Dixisteel.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 6.—The highly-favored Dixisteel team, of Atlanta, with Duck McKee sitting on the bench due to a protest by Knoxville, was eliminated in the Mid-South Athletic association tournament here Sunday morning when Knoxville scored four runs in the eighth inning to win, 5 to 3.

The game was played under protest, Knoxville claiming that McKee was ineligible. McKee did not play but was in uniform on the players' bench. Simonton, who took his position in right field, made three of Atlanta's eight hits off Temple and Coker, Knoxville hurlers.

Atlanta made two runs in the first of the eighth when Dodgen walked and Simonton and Hornsby beat out hits and Shepherd flied to right, but Shoemaker walked three men, two after two were out in the last of the eighth, and a single and a double, the latter off Floyd Stapp, who replaced him, cost the Steelmen the game.

AD SMITH TAKES HIGH GUN MEDAL

By Clint Davis.

Blasting out a 50-straight to win the high gun medal at the West End Gun Club yesterday, Addison Smith displayed the best shooting that has been witnessed at the club since the new angles were in vogue.

Returning to the city for a short visit, the former titleholder proved that the lack of practice had not effected his color or marksmanship. In order to keep the entire division for the Smith family, Lyman Smith scored 47x50 to place as runner-up in the first bracket.

Division two was won by Bennett Hutchison, with a score of 42x50. Ralph Zachry was runner-up with a score of 40x50.

Quite a number of hunters tried their hand at skeet for the first time Sunday in preparing for the approaching hunting season. The best score posted by any of these beginners was a 21x25 by V. J. Brooks.

Other new shooters included C. J. Ross, R. T. Denney, Arthur Gomila, Lyman Hillard, M. J. Goodpasture, R. E. McDonell, Fred Evans, Joe Luckas, W. C. Surckert and I. L. Creel.

Club officials announced a special program for next Sunday, with hams to be awarded to the winners.

ALL-STARS FACE N. Y. GRID GIANTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—From the Detroit Lions' den at Soldier field, Chicago, where they withstood the professional assault with a 7-all tie, America's college football stars of 1935 carry on for the prestige of the alma mater at the Polo Grounds Tuesday night by battling the New York Giants.

Because of their ability to tie the national pro champions, the 32 ex-collegians were slight favorites to trip up the Giants. With one game under their belts the stars had a distinct advantage over their pro rivals, who haven't played a serious regular game since they finished behind the Lions in the regular pro campaign last fall.

S. E. C. GRID RACE MAY BE SETTLED IN EARLY GAMES

Tech vs. Kentucky, Auburn vs. Vols, Georgia vs. L. S. U., Oct. 10.

By Kenneth Gregory.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The championship suspense in the Southeastern conference may be short-lived because of the early round of intra-league contests arranged for the 1936 gridiron machines.

So heavily burdened with conference tussles is the month of October that when that sheet is removed from the calendar no less than a half dozen of the potential threats may have been eliminated from the running.

Probably no schedule in the history of the Southeastern has been so well arranged to throw light upon the championship picture as the 1936 card.

Three weeks from last Saturday the University of Mississippi and Tulane University inaugurate the conference competition at New Orleans. Tulane comes back the following Saturday to battle the favored Auburn Tigers in a contest that may have bearing on the title.

On Saturday, October 10, the schedule offers four major battles involving eight teams carrying championship hopes. Alabama and Mississippi State meet at Tuscaloosa; Auburn plays its second game against Tennessee at Knoxville; Kentucky and Georgia Tech clash at Atlanta, and Georgia starts its Southeastern campaign against Louisiana State in a night skirmish at Baton Rouge.

Tennessee meets Alabama and Louisiana State, the defending champion, plays the widely heralded Mississippi Rebels on October 17 in another pair of highlight frays.

Three important games on October 24 bring together Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt at Nashville; Auburn and Georgia at Columbus, and Florida and Kentucky at Lexington.

The last Saturday in October offers four games that could develop into combats carrying championship weight. They are Alabama and Kentucky at Lexington; Georgia and Tennessee at Athens; Louisiana State and Vanderbilt at Nashville and Mississippi State and Sewanee at Jackson, Miss.

It is extremely possible that out of the 16 intra-conference games arranged through October all but two or three teams may be counted out of the Southeastern championship. The early schedule brings together practically every combination among the major clans except one.

That single exception is the November 14 tussle at Birminham between Louisiana State and Auburn, the two elevens highly favored in pre-season predictions.

Orville Brown To Meet Roche Again Saturday

Orville Brown and Dorve Roche, who last week gave a great crowd of 5,000 fans one of the most brilliant wrestling matches ever witnessed in Atlanta, stealing the show from those two bad men, Dick Raines and Chief Chewchki, have been signed for a return match at the ball park Saturday night.

Promoter Frank Speer, in making the announcement, stated that Brown and Roche, who went the full hour last week without either scoring a fall, would fight it out in a no-time-limit, finish match this time.

Speer explained that the show was being staged on Saturday night because he was as anxious as hundreds of fans to have Brown and Roche meet again here, and that they were not available on any other date in the near future. Both boys are, of course, top-notchers and are in demand throughout the mat world.

While Orville and Dorve are primarily clean wrestlers, in and out of the ring, their match last week was not lacking in fireworks, as fans will attest. They are bitter rivals—have been for years, and given a chance to settle their feud in a finish match, fans are assured a classic performance.

EAST POINT MAN DIES OF ACCIDENT INJURIES

Newspaper Truck Overturns Near Greenville; Oscar Griffith Victim.

His skull fractured when the truck in which he was riding skidded and overturned about 7 o'clock yesterday morning on the highway near Greenville, Ga., Oscar E. Griffith, 28, of 600 East Washington street, East Point, died shortly after 7 o'clock last night at Grady hospital.

Griffith was employed to haul a truck load of Sunday newspapers to Columbus and was returning from that city when the accident occurred. The truck skidded on wet pavement, according to reports, and turned over in a ditch, fracturing Griffith's skull.

A companion, Robert L. Waldrop, 26, also of East Point, was uninjured.

Griffith was brought to Grady hospital here and died about 12 hours after being admitted. He is survived by his wife and three children, Gene, 4; Robert, 2, and Gwendolyn, four months old; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar E. Griffith Sr.; a brother, Harry L. Griffith, and four sisters, Mrs. P. G. Nash, Mrs. H. E. Taylor, Miss Betty Griffith and Miss Kathleen Griffith.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by J. Austin Dillon Company.

WASHINGTON PRIMARY WILL BE HELD TUESDAY

SEATTLE, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A multiplicity of issues and a record number of candidates confronted Washington state voters today as they considered choices to be made Tuesday on a type of primary ballot they never have used before.

Campaigns for six congressional seats hinged largely on the national issue of Roosevelt versus Landon.

For the first time the voters may skip from Democratic to Republican candidates and back, if they choose.

SAN SEBASTIAN SPLIT ON WHETHER TO FIGHT

treated from Irun were among the defenders of Trincherpe—last government stronghold before the suburbs of San Sebastian itself.

Rebel field guns, moved up from Irun, shelled government positions outside the fortress in an attempt to drive all the defenders inside.

Another Rebel advance twisted northward from La Sarte and steelhelmeted Fascist officers predicted the entire northern coast would be Rebel-controlled within the week.

A handful of government militiamen was reported still holding the gun turret atop Fort Guadalupe, the silent defense of conquered Irun. The Rebels, patrolling the terraces of the fort with Carlist (Don Carlos Monarchist) troops, were content to leave their foes there, thus surrounded, while they pushed on westward.

Clean Up Irun.

Early in the morning, the little band in the firing tower sent a single shell screaming toward Irun, but the battery remained silent thereafter.

"If we are able to drive the Reds at Trincherpe inside the fort we shall simply encircle it and go on," said one Rebel officer. "When San Sebastian is captured, we'll have plenty of time to clean up our territory."

Irun, still under a pall of smoke from smouldering ruins fired by the fleeing militiamen, bustled with activity late today as the Rebels moved up reinforcements and armored cars from Behobia.

The Insurgent military commander ordered the troops occupying the city to begin cleaning the debris from the streets.

ATLANTAN IS INJURED IN BEACH ACCIDENT

JACKSONVILLE BEACH, Fla., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Claude W. Haynie, 31, of Atlanta, received a possible skull fracture today when he was knocked from a motor-bike by an automobile.

Constable Walter Floyd said a man listed as J. F. O'Toole had been released on his own recognizance pending the outcome of Haynie's injuries.

Floyd said Haynie was riding southward along the beach and was struck from the rear by an automobile driven by O'Toole.

DISPUTE CLARIFIED BY WOMEN VOTERS

Mrs. Stevenson Says White Had No Authority of Appointment.

Mrs. Wellington Stevenson, chairman of government and its operation, of the DeKalb League of Women Voters, in a letter to E. P. White, chairman of the DeKalb county Democratic executive committee, declared she and Mrs. William O. Ozmer, president of the league, had no other motive in protesting the appointment of Vernon Frank to the Democratic committee than in seeing that the law is observed.

Mrs. Stevenson charged White had not authority to appoint Frank and said provision was made that Democratic executive committee appointments to fill resignations must be made by the committee with a majority of its members present.

Answering a charge of Frank that she and Mrs. Ozmer were "meddlesome women," Mrs. Stevenson pointed to her long membership in the DeKalb League of Women Voters, declaring she was a charter member of the organization.

'Love Begins at 20' Opens Week at Capitol

"Love Begins at 20," a light comedy filled with heavy laughs, opened yesterday at the Capitol theater for a week of side-splitting. Without a serious moment—or a dull one—this capricious comedy proved highly pleasing to first-day audiences who stopped laughing only long enough to hear the next excruciating line or see the rapidly-moving situations involving such tried entertainers as Hugh Herbert, Patricia Ellis, Warren Hull and others.

Warning: If it hurts you to laugh, stay away from the Capitol this week.

Hugh Herbert has found his art in the role of a henpecked husband. But he is funnier still when he and an equally timid companion take on an overdose of bottled dynamite, become roaring drunk and get the idea they are mighty overlords of creation.

The errant hubby playfully tweaks the nose of his boss at the lodge meeting and in a few moments finds himself both fired and arrested. But he gives a gangster time to slip some stolen bonds into the lining of his coat before being informally introduced to a couple of policemen.

Patricia Ellis and Warren Hull supply the romantic element and another chance for Hugh Herbert to get himself tangled up with circumstances.

A fast-moving stage show, "The Scanties of 1936," brings plenty laughs of its own and a number of clever acts, headlined by the Carter brothers, famous comedy team.

Enrico Leide returns to the Capitol to direct his 15-piece stage band after an absence of six weeks caused by a fractured wrist. The Capitol this week presents a thoroughly entertaining program, with pleasing short subjects backing up the main features. —C. C.

MAN BURNED SERIOUSLY.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—William A. Barber, 25, attendant in a downtown filling station, was burned seriously today in a gasoline explosion. Two other workers ripped Barber's burning clothing from his body. He was taken to Emergency hospital, where doctors said he had suffered third degree burns and had only a slight chance to recover.

CITY, NATION UNITE IN HONORING LABOR

morning at Mitchell and Whitehall streets and will be ready to move out across the city at 10:30 o'clock. William Strauss will be grand marshal of the parade, assisted by E. O. McClain and J. Sid Tiller, deputy marshals. The parade will proceed along Whitehall street to Peachtree and out Peachtree to Baker and thence to Spring street, where the marchers will disband.

At Grant park, Congressman Robert Ramspeck and A. Steve Nance, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, will deliver addresses at 4 o'clock this afternoon as a feature of the day's celebration.

Afternoon's Program.

A series of athletic events and funmaking will precede the speaking at 2:30 o'clock at Grant park. The contest will include several novel events, one being a competition of women rolling-pin hurlers.

Music at the park this afternoon will be furnished by union bands and an entertaining afternoon at the park is promised by J. A. (Gus) Harper, president of the Atlanta Federation.

Other Attractions.

Thrilling auto races will give the crowds at Lakewood park today plenty of excitement, with Chet Gardner, Milt Marion, Red Redmond and other big names of the racing world fighting it out over the treacherous oval.

The warming up and time trials will begin around 10 o'clock this morning, with the first race scheduled for 3 o'clock.

Many families and friends will take a parting shot at the great American institution of picnicking today. Barring rain, which does not appear on the weather menu for today, hundreds of Atlantans will pack into their cars and strike out for the country and a place to spread a tablecloth on the ground.

And tonight, for the first time in several years, a night parachute jump will be made at the municipal airport, with Sonny McCloud, of Tulsa, Okla., throwing himself from a plane at 10 o'clock tonight and floating to earth with lighted torches in each hand.

The jump will be made by the daredevil from an altitude of 2,500 feet, it was announced yesterday, and a spotlight will keep the plane in sight of the spectators until the jump is made.

A Labor Day message for Georgia from the southern headquarters of the American Federation was issued for this morning by George L. Googe, southern representative of the federation:

Message by Googe.

Mr. Googe's statement follows:

"Labor Day marks the fifty-fifth aniversary of the American Federation of Labor with a paid-up membership of over four million members, the highest stable peak in our history.

"The past year has seen much newspaper and public controversy over the internal policies of the American Federation of Labor, most of which has been propaganda by our enemies boring from within and those outside the federation. This propaganda has been entirely erroneous.

"There is no controversy over craft and industrial unionism. The American Federation of Labor believes in both theories of labor organizations, and advocates and supports both industrial and craft union organization. The real controversy is political, with the minority refusing to conform to the actions of the majority. Labor organizations, like governmental and political organizations, to succeed must be democratic and the minority must conform to the decisions of the majority.

Rule by Majority.

"The American Federation of Labor will insist that those who are a party to it adhere to the fundamental principles of democracy and majority rule. We have no fear or uneasiness of the future. The oppressors of labor will be badly fooled if they have hopes of capitalizing to their selfish purposes any disagreement among the members of labor, because labor will always oppose the common enemy.

"The American Federation of Labor has made tremendous gains in the southern states during the past few years. The prospects for the immediate future is much brighter than any time in the past. We will continue to organize both industrially and by trades the workers in the southland raising their economic and social standards and those workers will continue their loyalty to the banner of the A. F. of L.

Labor for Russell.

"The workers of Georgia are resentful over the oppression of the Governor of Georgia during the past few years. They have not forgotten Talmadge's European detention camp or the use of bayonets to circumvent the rights of the workers, duly elected public officials and the suspension of constitutional government. They resent Talmadge's wage policy for unskilled workers at five cents an hour for a 10-hour day and skilled workers at 10 cents an hour for a 10-hour day during his administration of federal relief work projects.

"Labor looks forward to the overwhelming re-election of President Roosevelt and Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. Labor is deeply concerned over the gubernatorial race in Georgia and is almost unanimously supporting the candidacy of Speaker E. D. Rivers. His program has the approval of the workers of Georgia, while Charlie Redwine would only continue the policy of Talmadge, Stalin, Mussolini and Hitler in Georgia. We are deeply concerned over the candidacy of Judge Blanton Fortson and are appealing to the friends of the workers and President Roosevelt not to indirectly aid Talmadgeism by voting for Fortson, which simply takes one anti-Redwine vote away from the opposition to the house of Talmadge.

"On this Labor's Day, with our future at stake, I appeal to the workers of Georgia and their friends to support the candidates that are favorable to labor, and particularly Senator Richard B. Russell, our proven friend, and Speaker Rivers, who has assured the workers as governor of Georgia he will co-ordinate the state government's labor policy with the federal government's labor policy.

LABOR'S ANNUAL "DAY" FINDS UNIONS AT WAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Mobilized for a bitter internal war, organized labor will pause tomorrow to tell the country its problems and how it thinks they can best be solved.

Only unforeseen peace moves can stop the war the American Federation of Labor declared yesterday on John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and the 10 unions affiliated with its Committee for Industrial Organization.

The issue is industrial unionism. Lewis and his associates, speaking for upward of 1,000,000 organized workers, maintain that only through enrollment of all the workers in each big industry into one big union can the labor movement keep pace with industrial development. Working independently of the federation, their committee set out to effect this policy.

"Insurrection" Charged.

They tackled the steel industry first and this move constituted "insurrection" in the federation, controlled by a faction which thinks highly skilled workers, as a rule, should belong to the union of their craft, no matter where they work.

The federation's executive council told the Lewis group to abandon the committee and its organization campaign upon penalty of suspension.

The Lewis unions defied the order. William Green, A. F. of L. president, said yesterday that they had "withdrawn" from the federation, and that the federation would proceed to try to bring all workers in all industries into A. F. of L. unions.

This was interpreted by labor men to mean the federation eventually would try to destroy the Lewis unions. Green would not deny it. Lewis said his group would continue its established craft unions.

Fight Outstanding Issue.

This internal fight overshadowed all other issues before organized labor tonight, and was generally expected to come in for much discussion in Labor Day speeches the country over.

The program included a talk by Green at Knoxville, Tenn., tonight. Frank Morrison, federation secretary, is to speak at Lancaster, Pa., tomorrow afternoon. Lewis is to make a radio speech here tomorrow night.

Other topics of vital interest to labor will not go unmentioned, however.

In his Labor Day message, Green listed social security and the attitude of the courts toward workers' rights legislation as of primary importance.

"It would be well if our Labor Day celebration included plans for development of a fully rounded social security program in every state efficiently administered with labor's co-operation," he said.

"Labor should take the initiative in the legislative program and then must be ready to follow closely administrative policies and procedure."

Employment, Organization.

Unemployment and freedom to organize also were listed in the message as important problems.

The connection between labor's problems and the political campaign also was much discussed in both labor and political circles.

Governor Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee was slated for a Labor Day speech in Wichita, Kan.; George L. Berry, president of labor's Non-Partisan League, pledged to support President Roosevelt for re-election, was to talk in Baltimore.

Mr. Roosevelt last night sent a Labor Day message to American workers in which he said a national objective was the achievement of "a national economy whose factors are so finely balanced that the worker is always sure of a job which will guarantee a living wage."

POLL IS PROTESTED BY BACON OFFICIAL

Georgian American Tabulation Is Termed 'Altogether False.'

ALMA, Ga., Sept. 6.—A vigorous protest against the method used by the Atlanta Georgian-American in its political poll of the state on the senate and gubernatorial races was voiced here today by G. W. McClellan, clerk of the board of commissioners of roads and revenues of Bacon county, who declared the tabulation for the county is "altogether false."

"The Georgian-American tabulation as to Bacon county is altogether false," Mr. McClellan said. "Our county is overwhelmingly for Russell and Rivers."

In its tabulation today, the Georgian-American gave Bacon county's two unit votes to Talmadge in the senate race and to Redwine for governor in its "poll of public sentiment."

The tabulation was incorrect in both instances, McClellan said, the real public sentiment of the section being greatly in favor of Russell and Rivers, who, he asserts, will carry the county easily.

W. B. HARRISON
Candidate for Re-Election as Comptroller General

W. B. HARRISON, candidate for re-election as Comptroller General, asks your support in the Democratic primary to be held on September 9. In the fall of 1934 he was overwhelmingly elected Comptroller General. In that primary, he carried 140 counties; his then opponent carried 18 counties and one county was tied. His term of office, following this election, began in January, 1935. He served the people of Georgia as their Comptroller General and Insurance Commissioner until February 24, 1936, at which time he was suspended from office because he refused to violate his oath of office by countersigning a warrant drawn for 1936 funds which are not legally appropriated. He served in office less than fourteen months of the two-year term for which he was elected. He was put out of office without a hearing. He has refrained from entering any court action, and now submits his cause to the people of Georgia with the utmost confidence that they will give him a fair deal.

He is seeking a return to the office on the basis of his record of efficiency, economy of operation, and conscientious service in the interest of the people.

RICH'S

Gray-Shingled Cottage Is Mountain Home of Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong

By Sally Forth.

A TINY gray-shingled cottage nestling amid the wooded area of Tate Mountain estates is occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Armstrong, whose names have been recently added to the long list of Atlantans maintaining summer homes. When the popular Tech professor and his lovely wife cast about for a vacation cottage they spied the aforementioned log cabin, and with an artistic eye, they realized the vast possibilities of the place after a bit of remodeling. They have been busily engaged in their task all summer and it is now complete, even to a vegetable garden.

That a thing of beauty is a joy forever is clearly exemplified in the case of the Armstrong home. The professor has interested himself in the exterior, including the lawns and gardens. The lawns are rolling and have responded so much to the treatment that today the house looks as though it had been set down on green velvet. The garden, surrounded by its green iron and wire fence, has brought forth cucumbers, watermelons, tomatoes and lima beans that would take first prize in any vegetable show.

The 100-year-old chimney provided the inspiration for Mrs. Armstrong to build around, when she centered her interest upon decorating the interior of the house herself. White wicker furniture in bright yellow upholstering with gay yellow curtains at the low windows make this room a happy place to while away the hours, as the warm glow of a log fire burns in the old-fashioned fireplace. It is especially comfortable these cool evenings as mountain breezes add a zest to the oncoming autumnal weather.

Two bedrooms adjoin the living room, one done in old-rose chintz, and the other, occupied by the lovely daughter of the household, pretty Marjorie Armstrong, is an ideal setting for her youth and beauty. The walls of stained oak with colorful old antique French nautical chintz with all-white accessories, even to the white ivy bowl hanging in the low windows.

The green dining porch is furnished with rustic wooden tables and chairs, and overlooks the mountains which rise in their majestic glory as far as the eye can see. The kitchen is done in red, the floor is gray, and cool breezes blow through the red and white curtains. The eaves drop low over the kitchen door and a trumpet vine, which nearly covers the roof, is in full bloom and flaunts its red and yellow flowers upon the scene to add to the beauty of the mountain home of Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong.

MARTHA GORDY'S wedding this summer in Orlando, Fla., assembled popular Atlanta sub-debs as bridesmaids. Pretty Rachel Burton was a bridesmaid, but she was taken for the bride as she stood in the station waiting for the Atlanta train at 2 o'clock in the morning.

"All of the girls, dressed in their bridesmaid gowns, came down to see me off," Rachel explained. "Billy Schroder stepped up on the platform with me, and one of the girls threw me her bouquet."

Amidst the yelling and laughing, rice began to rain upon the young couple, who looked for all the world like a pair of happy newlyweds. Then the train pulled in, stopping in Orlando several minutes, and the conductor and porter stood on the platform near Rachel and Billy, grinning broadly.

"The most embarrassing moment came when I got on the train," Rachel laughed. "By that time all the commotion had awakened the people, and I went through the car to my berth, everybody stuck their heads out of the curtains. And I guess I really did look like a 'blushing bride,' too."

Roswell Rites Are of Interest.

ROSWELL, Ga., Sept. 5.—Interest centers in the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Dunn, of Tunnel Hill, Tenn., of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Martha Hettie, to James Clarence Edwards, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Summerville, Ga., which took place on September 3, in the presence of friends in the study of Rev. J. W. Segars, pastor of the Roswell M. E. church, in Roswell.

The bride was lovely in a fall ensemble of brown tri-color sheer with matching accessories. Her bouquet was sweetheart roses and valley lilies. She is a descendant on her maternal side of the Harlan family, of Kentucky and Pennsylvania, and the Easleys, of Tennessee and South Carolina on her paternal side. She is a direct descendant of John Henry, brother of Patrick Henry, a pioneer of Virginia. Mrs. Edwards is the only sister of Miss Jewell Dunn, of Dalton. She is a graduate of Young Harris College and LaGrange College. She studied at the University of Georgia and Tulane University. She is employed as welfare worker in Forsyth county.

Mr. Edwards is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Edwards, of Ringgold, and is a graduate of McCallie school and the University of Tennessee. He is a member of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity and Alpha Leta agricultural fraternity. On his paternal side he is a descendant of the Lansford and Park families, of Alabama and north Georgia, and on his paternal side, the Edwards of east Tennessee. Mr. Edwards is the brother of Professor and Mrs. Lin Sherrill, of the University of Louisiana, Baton Rouge, La. Since his graduation he has been affiliated with the Tennessee Valley Authority and the federal farm program, after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Edwards left for North Carolina.

Miss Sargent Weds John H. McMichael

L. D. Sargent, of Decatur, announces the marriage of his sister, Miss Chloe Sargent, to John H. McMichael, of Decatur, the ceremony taking place on September 3 at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carr in Decatur. The bride was attired in a navy blue crepe ensemble trimmed with brown mink fur and her hat was of navy blue felt. She carried a bouquet of valley lilies and white roses.

Palms, foliage plants and baskets of pink and white roses were arranged in the rooms where the guests assembled for the ceremony and the reception which followed. A three-tiered wedding cake graced the dining room table. Mrs. Harry Carr was in charge of the music.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sargent, of Decatur, and the groom is the son of Mrs. W. D. McMichael and the late Mr. McMichael, of Decatur. The bride's only sister is Mrs. N. H. White, of Decatur. Mr. McMichael is a brother of J. W. McMichael, of Decatur, and Mesdames J. J. Bauknight, P. L. Giddish, J. M. Frazier, L. Loyd and Miss Ruby McMichael, all of Atlanta, and Mrs. G. W. Wiggins, of Decatur. Mr. and Mrs. McMichael will reside on the Lawrenceville road near Decatur.

Barbara Bell Patterns

1925-B

A PAIR OF PANTIES AND A BRAS.

These two little tailored undergarments assume the responsibility of giving a smooth, sleek appearance whether your dress is georgette, satin or wool. The lapped-over section of the "uplift" gives a modified curve to the bust, and instead of troublesome fastings at the back, it can be slipped over the head and adjusted easily and quickly. The clever pantie requires only the side and leg seams, darts at the waistline, a placket at one side and the lower edge bound or hemmed.

Satin is the pet material for de luxe lingerie, it's wearable, washes well, and never bulges. Crepe de chine and taffeta are also popular. Try tea rose, nude, pale blue, white or even black.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1925-B is available for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 1 3-4 yards of 39-inch material.

Send for the fall Barbara Bell pattern book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the 100 Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Interesting and exclusive fashions for little children and difficult junior age; slenderizing, well-cut patterns for the mature figure, afternoon dresses for the most particular young women and matrons and other patterns for special occasions are all to be found in the Barbara Bell pattern book. HOW MUCH DOES UNCLE SAM OWE?

The history of the public debt of the United States government, from colonial days down to date presents a picture of the ups and downs of our country under the stress and strain of war, peace, economic disturbances, and industrial development. The question of how large our public debt can grow with safety, of why and how it has grown, or how soon it can be reduced and the budget balanced—all these questions will be debated back and forth in this election campaign. Our Service Bureau at Washington has ready for you a factual bulletin, without partisan bias of any kind, showing the history of the growth of the public debt—exactly when and how it has fluctuated, and how it stands today. Send for your copy of this bulletin and get the facts on the public debt.

Jewish Alliance Plans Reunion

The Jewish Educational Alliance has ended its ninth season at Camp Civitania, in Austell, Ga. The season was noteworthy because there was no illness during the two weeks and everyone except those already overweight gained weight. The swimming classes were the most popular and successful, with 75 per cent of the campers learning how to swim.

There will be a reunion of campers on September 13 at 3:30 o'clock in the Alliance building, 318 Capitol avenue, S. E. Invitations have been sent to campers residing in Nashville, Tenn., Charleston, S. C., and near-by towns in Georgia. There will be a program and a final good-night circle until next year.

Talcum Powder and Soap That Are Certainly "The Tops"

By MIGNON.

(The Mignon who writes this column does not sell, indorse, or manufacture any cosmetics.)

There are few people, from babies to debutantes, to grown women, to men, who can do without talcum powder. No matter what cologne or toilet water you use after a bath, you feel more refreshed if you use powder at the finish.

I can tell you of a talcum that is not loaded with fragrance but is very fine, has an extremely clean smell and you need not be afraid of the quality because it is put out by people who stress just that.

Talcums are not on the whole expensive and this is no exception. The same company makes a soap that has more of a fragrance and is also endowed with this nice clean odor that makes it a perfect bath soap. It is not new but so many good things aren't. You can safely, and I must say, very inexpensively, get this combination and then extend to me your gratitude. I don't tell you about things I haven't tried and you will like these.

If you want to know where you can purchase any article mentioned in this column phone Mignon at The Constitution. Please do not write unless you live outside the city, in which case enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Miss Cunningham And Mr. Cayce Feted Prior to Marriage

Miss Mary Elizabeth Cunningham, whose marriage to Eldred Cayce, of Columbia, S. C., and Nashville, Tenn., will be solemnized on Saturday at the Decatur Presbyterian church, is being honored at a delightful series of prenuptial parties.

Mrs. Elbert Akin will compliment Miss Cunningham at a bridge-tea tomorrow afternoon at her home in Decatur, inviting a group of close friends of the bride-elect for the occasion.

Miss Cunningham and Mr. Cayce will be honored on Thursday evening at a bridge party to be given by Miss Lellito Stipe at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Preceding the wedding rehearsal on Friday, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Cunningham will entertain with a buffet supper at their home on South Candler street in Decatur, and after the wedding on Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Anderson will honor the bridal couple with a reception at their home on Peachtree road.

A number of other parties will compliment the popular couple, the dates and nature of these affairs to be announced later.

W. J. MILLS DIES AT COLLEGE PARK

Former Executive of Southern Ruralist Found Dead in Yard.

W. J. (Uncle Billy) Mills, 69, former secretary and treasurer of the Southern Ruralist and for 20 years associated with the Atlanta National Bank, died suddenly yesterday in the back yard of his residence at 222 East Rugby avenue, College Park.

Mr. Mills suffered an attack of pneumonia in the spring, but was believed to have recovered from the effects of his illness. He again became ill about a week ago. He was believed to be improved yesterday morning and went into the yard. When he did not return, his wife began a search and discovered the body in the yard. He was pronounced dead by a College Park physician.

A native of London, England, Mr. Mills was a naturalized American and had been a resident of College Park 30 years. He was a member of the College Park Masonic lodge, of which he was a past grand master.

The body was removed to the mortuary of A. C. Hemperley & Sons for an inquest which will be conducted today. Funeral services have not yet been completed.

Friendly Counsel

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution. Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

What does a person do when so bored with life that she would gladly die if there were somebody to kill her, or kill herself if she had the nerve? I live in a small town. My parents are divorced and I stammer so badly that I run myself crazy trying to get out what I have to say. I am not ugly but my stammering is ruining my life and my parents say they cannot afford to send me to a school to be cured. We live with my grandparents and it is not like having your own home. A shack would be better than living in somebody's house and feeling that every bite you eat is seen by your stingy grandmother. All she ever says to my complaints is "Just wait, your time will come." But how will it come? Now Miss Chatfield, don't tell me I am not old enough to understand life. I have heard that old story and I am sick of it. I understand this much: this is no way to raise a girl.

ALICE H.

ANSWER:

Dear child, you are suffering because the parents who brought you here didn't consider you when it suited their selfish pleasure to separate. I will grant you there is mighty little of your cloud's silver lining turned toward you, but you can come out of the gloom, if you put your mind to it. Here are some suggestions:

There is a famous stammering school which works miracles with its pupils. The treatment is so simple that you can try a part of it at home, being your own teacher. Don't speak a word for ten days or two weeks but use a pad and pencil and then when you begin to talk, speak very slowly, one word at a time, with pauses between. This will enable you to overcome the nervous frenzy which your stammering is causing. Maybe when your mother sees the improvement she will have a heart and get up the money to send you away.

Perhaps a shack would be better than living with your grandparents, but there is an army of roving young people who haven't even a shack, not a place to lay their heads or food to satisfy hunger. You are better off than these. The next time your grandmother looks at you as though she begrudged you the meal, remember these hungry ones.

Your time will come and you must be ready for it. Instead of sitting by bored and longing to die, get yourself some good books and read. You will find out that everybody has it tough sometime in life, whether they be people in history or in fiction. The disappointments and the hardships don't matter much because they pass. The important thing is what they do to your disposition and your character. Now buck up, show your selfish parents that you can take it, show them that in spite of the raw deal they have handed you, you can come out on top.

THE RETURN OF JOAN

BY JOSEPH McCORD

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Having lost her job in the city, Joan Kendall returns after several years to her parents who own Layland Cottage near Waples Beach. One of the guests is Deeds McCune, taking his vacation just then because of eyes strained while working under strong lights on models used in window displays. He abies at being called an artist. From Joan he learns that pretty Claire Lindsay and her wealthy mother are annual visitors at Layland. Gene Gaston is Agnes Lindsay's son by her first marriage. Elderly Dr. Sloan Elledge is a "nerve" case; he lost his wife and only child in a sea disaster. His brother John, also a physician, devotes his time to Sloan. Joan says she hadn't seen Gene for a long time until her recent return. Deeds finds himself wondering what Joan's "detached" manner indicates; he hopes it isn't some man. When Gene gives her a lift in his car to a hairdresser's at the beach, Deeds' original dislike of the suave young man increases. Deeds walks to Waples, finds Joan and on their return she raids the ice box. After eating apple pie encrusted with sugar and cinnamon he offers her his handkerchief, saying, "Wipe your mouth. . . . It looks . . ." Her eyes halt him but for the first time she calls him Mac. Deeds' seat at the table is shifted. He finds himself beside Claire who doesn't give him a chance to refuse an invitation to go bathing with him in the morning. That night as it rains and he sits on the porch, he hears Mrs. Kendall say to her husband Jere, "You let Joan be." NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT VII.

"We were speaking of the Elledge savant. Does he barge into the . . . home picture? With your father, I mean."

"That's what I was coming to. Yes, he does. I have the feeling that there's something between . . . those two."

"Sure of that?" Deeds was thinking of John Elledge's one reference to Jere Kendall. "Rather impossible." That was the way the doctor described their host.

"That's what worries me," Joan admitted frankly. "They have very little to do with each other. But, somehow, I feel . . . it's there."

"Nothing definite to hang it on?"

"Not a thing. Stupid, isn't it?"

"I'm not so sure.'

"Well, here we are. Thank you for listening . . . it helped.'

"Thank me! Don't be silly! If you only knew. . . ."

"Wait until you see. The pie may be all gone." Joan laughed as she led the way to the back door.

Salina was in the kitchen.

"'Lo, Miss Joan! What you all want heah?"

"Sh . . . h! Mr. McCune and I have had a long walk and we're hungry. Is there any of that apple pie left? Mr. McCune says you make the best pie he ever tasted."

"Go on!" Salina's thick lips stretched in a pleased grin. "You ain't been on no long walk. You been up to the beach, sittin' with you head under one of them 'lectric contrapshuns. I seen one once. You looks a sight."

"Did you ever try one?" Joan laughed.

"Who? Me?" Salina's fat body shook with mirth. "No, ma'am! Cain' hitch no 'lectricity to mah wool. They is about half one of 'em pies in the box. He'p yourself . . . not nuff to go the table. Wait. . . ."

She waddled to the refrigerator, returning with a pie tin in her hand. She laid it on the table. Deeds approached and looked lovingly at the pastry.

"Salina," he said reverently. "I'm tempted to think that you're the reincarnation of my favorite grandmother. She made apple pies like that. Not too thick . . . not too juicy. Lots of cinnamon and with granulated sugar sprinkled on the top crust. Perfect."

"Look heah, Mist' Cune. I been makin' pies fo' you was born. An' I didn't need your grandma, or anybody else's, to tell me a apple pie ain' fit to eat less you puts in a plenty of cinnament. You go on an' eat all you wants."

"I don't believe you know wha' you're saying, Salina."

"Don't you think it! I knows it so well I'm goin' out 'fore Miss Marthy comes in here an' ketches me feedin' folks 'tween meals."

"Wait a minute," Joan suggested as the cook left, "and I'll get you a plate and fork."

"No!" Deeds caught at her arm. "Don't! That pie is of exactly the consistency to be eaten as pie was intended to be 'et.' It's a sacred rite . . . wait. I'll initiate you."

Before Joan could protest, he caught her up and deposited her lightly upon the kitchen table. He sat down beside her and picked up the pie pan.

"It simply has to be eaten with the fingers. There's no other way. Here you are." He lifted a piece and held it out. Joan accepted it with a smile and they ate in silence.

"One more piece left," Deeds informed her.

"You eat it. I'm full."

"No," he said firmly. "It's halvers . . . the pie of peace. My knife's clean." He drew his penknife from his pocket and bisected the remaining segment. "I insist."

"I'll never be able to eat tonight," she sighed.

"Never mind. This is a pretty wonderful occasion."

The pie eaten, Deeds drew a folded handkerchief from the breast pocket of his coat and held it out.

"Wipe your mouth. It's all over sugar. Looks . . ." Something in J in's brown eyes checked him. He caught his breath sharply, tried to cover up with a laugh. It was curiously shaky

"Hi, Joan . . ." His heart was in his eyes.

"Hello . . . Mac."

Joan's low hesitating "Mac" . . . the fleeting glance from her brown eyes that accompanied it. . . .

It changed the entire world for Deeds McCune.

Joan had excused herself at once and disappeared, a matter that met with Deeds' approval. He wasn't quite sure what had happened, but it was something that needed careful thinking over. And in the solitude of his own quarters. "You'd better get this straight, kid," he reminded himself grimly, once his door was shut. He shed his coat, dropped into the armchair rocker and lit a cigaret mechanically.

He was conscious of a vast contentment above everything else, but it made him uneasy. He wasn't quite ready to admit that he had fallen in love with Joan, but . . . she was sweet. It didn't make sense, but maybe he did love her. In that case, he'd better go slow. She had accepted him as a friend . . . no getting away from that. But that might be all. Her little confidence in regard to her father still lingered pleasantly. And yet that might have been inspired by worry . . . fear, even.

Deeds' jaw tightened a little at that. He almost wished that fat guy would prove unpleasant in some way. If he ever made himself objectionable to Joan . . . but that was childish. And there was Gene Gaston. Deeds almost had forgotten him. Where did he fit in? If at all. Joan had said nothing about her drive with him to Waples. Had she avoided any mention of it purposely . . . or did she consider it too trivial? And yet. . . .

Something strange about it all.

Deeds was at some pains to remind himself that he had come to the shore to rest his eyes. He had other things to do than indulge in a romance with the first pretty girl he met . . . one he never had seen before and, probably, never would see again after this vacation was ended. Yet Joan was different from any other girl. . . .

Sweet.

He still was lingering under the spell of his new-found happiness when the soft note of the chimes put an end to his dreaming. Hastily he arrayed himself in a clean shirt and spent several minutes in adjusting his tie before it satisfied.

"You're a fool," he told his reflection dutifully.

Deeds would not have been surprised to discover his old place at the table awaiting him. It would have been in order to have Joan directly opposite, so that they might exchange an occasional and amicable glance . . . assure each other that the new understanding still was in effect.

However, the colorless Miss Anderson was in the coveted place. And Joan. She merely raised her eyes from her plate and gave him a brief nod as he entered the room. He stalked gloomily to his chair and seated himself, to receive a drawled greeting from Claire.

"Oh, hello!"

"Hello."

Deeds glanced across the table as he said it and encountered Gene's eyes. Gaston nodded and smiled, but there was something inscrutible . . . mocking almost . . . in his expression. It stirred Deeds' former resentment to its former intensity, but Claire demanded his attention.

"Did you know that you had a narrow escape this afternoon, Mr. McCune?"

"From what?"

"Going swimming with me. I tried to find you. I understand that you're clever . . . in the water. I'm not . . . too much afraid, I guess."

"That was no escape," he lied gallantly. "That was a real misfortune."

"Very pretty. If you really mean that . . . it's a date. I'll be looking for you in the morning. About 10. Will that suit?"

"Oh, yes . . . sure."

Deeds poniarded a crisp piece of bluefish with a savage thrust of his fork, as Jere Kendall proffered the platter. There was nothing appetizing about food tonight . . . it suggested bait. And he was experiencing all the unpleasant sensations of having been hooked. He hadn't realized until just now that he had been counting on a swim with Joan after breakfast. He'd feel like a fool sure if she were to suggest it and he had to explain he'd promised to go in with this blond. He hoped Joan had heard her . . . then she'd understand that he couldn't have done anything but accept.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

The 7 o'clock caller put the hostess in a quandary.

Some people have a knack for dropping in to shy hello just as you're ready to have dinner. It might be very nice if you were still living on the farm, where all you had to do when some one dropped in was to go out and slaughter another chicken. But when you've got just two chops for two people, pot luck is hardly luck any more.

Personally we'd like to see the modern hostess develop a more flexible nature. It wouldn't hurt to put the chops in the icebox and serve up an omelet. But most modern hostesses don't think of that. And anyhow, sometimes they don't even have eggs.

In that case there are only two ways to handle the 7 o'clock caller. One is to sit him out. And the other is to tell him the truth. We can't see why it would hurt anyone's feelings if you said to him, "Sorry, old top, but I have only two chops tonight, so I can't ask you to stay. But how about eating with us tomorrow night?" If that procedure makes you feel like a cad, then turn off the fires on your stove and sit the caller out. It's the only possible way of keeping the chops in the family. JEAN.

QUEER FLYING ANIMALS.
I—Flying Lizards.

Nature gave birds the power of flight, but most other kinds of animals must be content with walking, climbing, running, jumping, or swimming. There are some animals, however, which can sail through the air even though they have no feathered wings.

A "Flying Lizard."

Take the lizards, for example. Some members of the family can run across rocks rather swiftly, but we think of lizards in general as slow-moving. In Borneo and in the Philippine islands, however, there are lizards which can speed through the air. Sometimes they are called "flying dragons." They live in trees, and have green bodies which match the leaves. Their "wings" are strips of brownish skin which stretch along each side, from leg to leg. When they leap, they spread their limbs and sail through the air, making flights up to 90 feet.

Long ages ago, there were flying lizards of a different sort, which have the scientific name of "pterodactyls." They lived when dinosaurs were roaming the earth. Skeletons of many of those old-time flying lizards have been found. Some were no larger than robins or hawks, but others had wings which spread, from tip to tip, 10 feet or more. Certain giant members of the tribe had wing-spreads of from 20 to 22 feet.

I may never forget my first sight of a flying lizard's imprint, the marks of the body and wings left on a great piece of stone. The animal must have fallen in a bed of mud at the time it died. The stone slab is now to be seen in the British museum in London.

Imprints left by those olden flying lizards show that their wings were smooth, without hair or feathers. The largest had a wing-spread almost twice as great as the albatross, the largest flying animal of the present day.

Some flying lizards had long tails, but others were short-tailed. All had thin and light bones. It is figured that even giant members of the family did not weigh more than 25 pounds.

The skull of a flying lizard shows large sockets for the eyes. For each wing we see a strange bony form, a kind of arm with five "finger bones." Four of the finger bones are rather short, but the fifth is of great length, and formed the strong edge of the wing. The scientific name, "pterodactyl," means "finger wing," and was given in honor of that long, slender bone.

It is believed that by flapping their wings, the olden flying lizards could make good flights, but probably of a jerky kind, perhaps something like the flight of a bat. Three bones at the bend of each wing were hardly more than claws, and probably were of value in clinging to trees or other objects.

60,000 NEEDY TEXANS ENJOY SECURITY AIDS

Review Shows State Is Receiving All But Three of Benefits of Acts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Importance of the social security act to citizens of Texas was revealed here in a statement issued recently by John G. Winant, chairman of the Social Security Board. Texans are denied participation in only three of the ten benefits and public services created by the act, due to absence or inadequacy of state laws.

Benefits and services which the state is now enjoying are as follows:

Benefits and services which the state is now enjoying are as follows: Assistance to the needy aged; maternal and child health services; services for crippled children; child welfare service; vocational rehabilitation; public health service and federal old-age pensions (beginning next year).

Benefits in which the state is not participating are: Unemployment insurance; aid to the needy blind and aid to dependent children in their own homes.

Benefits to Texas.

Importance in dollars and cents of the benefits to Texas is shown by the annual review of the board. For the months of August and July alone, according to the review, Texas received $1,181,250 from the board of old-age assistance, and $184,610 from the children's bureau of the Labor Department.

Although the state did not qualify for federal aid for old-age assistance until several months ago, grants thus far made by the Social Security Board, matched by funds provided by the state, have already made possible aid to about 60,000 needy aged persons.

The federal old-age pension system in which Texas will participate does not become operative until January 1, 1942, but contributory features begin December 31, 1936. Under this law, at the age of 65, but not before January 1, 1942, eligible workers who retire from employment will receive a benefit in monthly payments continuing until their death.

Range of Benefits.

Pay will vary from $15 to $85 a month. Funds will be raised by an income tax on employes (deducted by the employer from wages) and a pay roll tax on employers, beginning at 1 per cent in 1937 and rising by 0.5 per cent each three years until 1949.

A state failing to match the federal maximum of $15 will receive from the federal government only an amount equal to the state contribution. States, however, may contribute more than the federal maximum.

Requirements for a state to participate in the old-age pension plan are: that the plan is in operation in all parts of the state and is mandatory upon counties if administered by them; that there is financial participation by the state as well as by counties; that any person whose application for aid is refused has an opportunity for a fair hearing before the state agency; that residence, citizenship and age requirements do not exceed those allowed by the federal law; that the plan provides efficient methods of administration, and that it is administered or supervised by a single state agency.

Federal Subsidy.

In the unemployment insurance system of the social security act there is provided a federal subsidy for administration of state laws and a federal excise tax on pay rolls. A provision calls for a credit against the tax up to 90 per cent of the employer's payment into a state fund. The levy will be 1 per cent for 1936, 2 per cent for 1937 and 3 per cent for years thereafter.

Texas also is benefiting under provisions of the act, which call for extension of public health and for vocational rehabilitation.

Forty-five per cent of the industrial population is protected by state unemployment insurance laws in 15 states and the District of Columbia, according to Chairman Winant.

Texas' Situation.

Of the three benefits for which Texas is not qualified, Chairman Winant's review said:

"If Texas were to present to the Social Security Board plans for assistance to the needy blind and to dependent children, which conformed to the minimum requirements of the social security act, it would be eligible to receive from the federal government one-half of its expenditure for aid to the blind and one-third in expenditures for aid to dependent children.

"Furthermore, if Texas were to enact an unemployment compensation law which conformed to the social security act, the Social Security Board would make grants to the state to cover all proper costs of administering this law, and the employers of the state would then be able to deduct from the federal tax on employers of eight or more workers to the extent of 90 per cent of that tax the amount of their contributions to the state unemployment compensation fund."

FLORIDA DEMOCRATS WILL HEAR NOMINEES

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Democrats will gather here Wednesday to hear Fred P. Cone, nominee for governor; Claude Pepper and C. O. Andrews, nominees for the United States senate, and Representative J. Mark Wilcox, candidate for re-election, speak on a program at Bayfront park.

The nominees in the "Democratic state committee caravan" will come here following a stop at Jacksonville for a Labor Day rally tomorrow.

Committeemen and committeewomen from the fourth congressional district have been requested to send delegations here for the program.

INCREASING ANXIETY FELT FOR ILL SURGEON

LEEDS, England, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Physicians expressed increasing anxiety today over the condition of Lord Moynihan, of Leeds, who became critically ill yesterday.

The famous surgeon, whose wife died last Monday, was unconscious. His son and two daughters were summoned to his bedside Saturday.

Lord Moynihan is 70 years old.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

THE RULE OF EIGHT.

The defensive honor tricks control the first two top leads or rounds and possibly the third lead of each of the four suits. Since each suit is worth two plus to two and a half defensive honor tricks the deck contains about eight + + + + honor tricks, that is, between eight and nine honor tricks. As a rule, the materialization of the ninth trick will depend on a finesse. Hence there are about eight and a half honor tricks which for simplicity's sake we shall call eight. That gives us the simple basis for one of the most valuable rules in bridge—the rule of eight.

The total of defensive honor tricks that will be won at any bid (trump or no trump) after each deal is about eight out of the 13 tricks.

Aces will win four tricks and the lower honors will win slightly less or more than four additional tricks. It does not matter how the honor values will combine the final result, as a rule, will average around eight and a half honor tricks. Theoretically, it is possible to set up a hand that will show a count even of 10 defensive honor tricks. But it is sufficient for any one to deal out a few hands and count the total of honor tricks made after the play to notice that its number always varies between eight and nine.

Since the number of defensive honor tricks is constant the more honor tricks there are in one hand the less there remain for the others, and vice versa. It is like four poker players starting a freeze-out game, each with an equal number of chips.

Today's Hand.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: In a recent game I sat West, playing with a partner who is usually a conservative player; in fact, all four players usually play a conservative game. In making the five club bid I received a great deal of criticism by both North and South, criticism in which my own partner later joined. Their criticism was that I decidedly overbid my hand, that under the Culbertson system such a bid should never have been made.

"Will you kindly check on the bidding and discuss this hand in one of your coming articles?

"Thanking you in advance for your kind criticism and help, I am

"Yours very truly, A. H. P."

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	2 clubs	2 hearts	5 clubs
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

For purely strategical bids such as West's neither the Culbertson nor any other system can lay down hard and fast rules. All that can be done is to point out the proper general course of procedure. Therefore, West's critics were quite wrong in their contention that he overbid according to the Culbertson system. I strongly approve his boldness as quite necessary to the circumstances.

It is North's double of five clubs that I think should be criticized. Five hearts would have been much the better bid, and against normal defense might very well have been fulfilled. East hardly could have guessed he should have opened spades or have shifted to spades after cashing two club tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: My partner opened the bidding with one no trump. There were two passes and fourth hand bid two spades. My partner doubled. Was this a takeout or a penalty double?

Answer: A penalty double.

BODY IS DISCOVERED AT NEGRO BAPTIZING

OCALA, Fla., Sept. 6.—(UP)—A body, tentatively identified as that of H. E. Broom, 35, believed to be of New Port Richey, Fla., was found in a small lake near here today.

Officers said there were no marks of violence on the body and believed Broom died accidentally. They were investigating the possibility of suicide.

The body was discovered by negroes who had planned to hold a baptismal service at the lake.

SERVICES TOMORROW FOR JACK J. SULLIVAN

Funeral services for Jack J. Sullivan, pioneer Atlantan and one of the founders of the Sullivan-Crichton Business College, will be held at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the graveside in Oakland cemetery. Dr. William V. Gardner will officiate.

Mr. Sullivan died Saturday at a private hospital after an illness of several months. He had been retired from active business for the last 25 years.

CLEARING SKIES, COOL LABOR DAY FORECAST

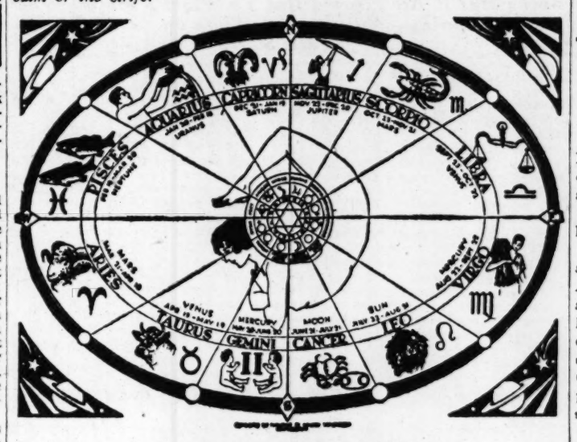

Following a cloudy morning the sun is expected to break through shortly before noon today for a clear afternoon during which the mercury will rise to approximately 78 degrees. The lowest temperature early this morning was reported as 65 degrees.

Yesterday's temperature extremes were 66 and 72 degrees, officials declared at the Candler field weather station.

"Let Your Stars Guide You"

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON, Foremost American Astrologer.

"Like the winds of the sea are the waves of fate: As we voyage along through life: 'Tis the set of the sail that decides its goal: And not the calm or the strife."

"WHO'S WHO IN THE ZODIAC."

MRS. FREDERICK FRY.

July 24 marks the natal day of Mrs. Frederick Fry, of Newark, N. J., the former Jaquelin Moore, of Atlanta. This brings her under the cusp of Cancer-Leo, whose governing planets are Moon and the Sun. Cancer is Zodiacal sign representing love of home, conservatism, tenacity, dignity. Leo is the sign of idealism, love, friendliness, intuition. The Cancer influence gives her a love of home and the things of home. The Leo influence gives her progressive idealism, a desire to uphold old standards, and serves as a most helpful influence.

Bernice Denton Pierson.

The Venus-Jupiter position in this chart gives her a natural tendency towards musical expression. This is evidenced by the fact that as Jaquelin Moore, of Atlanta, she was known as one of the city's most accomplished harpists. The planetary positions are all favorable to a successful musical career. Her chart endows her with unusual individuality, the ability to merit and receive high honors.

The Sun's house position gives health, vitality, success, pride and ambition. The Mars-Saturn position gives perserverence, tact and courage. The house position of Saturn shows that she has iniative and that she accepts and lives up to life's responsibilities.

The Sun-Neptune position favors long voyages, accompanied by personal success.

You can get your complete astrological forecast through The Constitution, compiled by Bernice Denton Pierson, one of America's best-known astrologers. Mrs. Pierson does not profess the ability to tell fortunes, to foretell the future or to solve personal problems, but she can give you a complete and accurate rendition of the position of the Sun and planets at the time of your birth, carefully worked out, according to the strict rules of astrology. All you have to do is to fill in the coupon below, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, together with 10 cents in coin to cover the mailing cost. You will then receive through the mail certain pertinent facts which deal astrologically with the Sun at the time of your birth, called a sun-chart, and with this sun-chart, a series of numbers which will enable you to identify the planetary interpretations, which will be published in The Constitution each day, dealing with the influence of a given planet on the day of your birth, according to the rules of astrology. When you have checked each of your numbers your forecast will be complete.

Mrs. Bernice Denton Pierson, Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Please prepare astrological forecast, according to the rules of astrology, of the birth date submitted below and return to the name and address given. I enclose:

1. Self-addressed, stamped envelope.
2. Ten cents in coin to cover mailing cost.

Birthday ..... Year Mo. Date of Mo.

Name .....

Street Address .....

City and State .....

You may obtain as many astrological forecasts as you wish for your family and friends. There is nothing to do except send in the birth date, address and 10 cents in coin to cover the cost of mailing, in accordance with the coupon.

Below are planetary indications, according to the rules of astrology, one of which may apply to your forecast. Every day these interesting interpretations will be published, descriptive of the influence of the planets at the time of your birth. Your astrological forecast includes a sun-chart and planetary interpretations, designated by numbers on your sun-chart. Watch carefully day by day for your numbers.

Number 508—You are intuitive and receptive and have great recuperative powers. You should develop your natural mediumistic gifts. You will be greatly benefited thereby. Plan to contact neighbors, friends and relatives at this time. You will likely benefit therefrom.

Number 312.—The indications are that your greatest handicap is a tendency to worry and fear over things that do not exist. Practice patience and self-control, especially at this time. It would be well to try to counteract your tendency to over-sensitiveness and not to scatter your forces. Practice concentration. The tendency is that you will profit through contracts and agreements. Be careful what you sign. Legal action is not always favorable to you.

Number 810—You have many gifts and talents from which to choose your vocation. Among these are medicine, teaching, literature and art. You have high ambitions and the tendency and ability to work hard. By applying yourself to the vocation shown, there is no reason why you should not attain recognition and possibly fame. You are thorough and conscientious in all that you do and competent to handle any position with which you may be entrusted. You have excellent organizing and managerial ability. This is one of your best periods.

Number 412—Your greatest limitation is probably that you try to help others too much. Do not try to be a helper to all. Give more time and attention to your personal problems and things will work out all right.

NEGRO IS LYNCHED IN DALTON SECTION

Youth, 21, Held for Attempted Attack on White Woman.

DALTON, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—A mob lynched a 21-year-old negro accused of an attempted attack on a white woman near here early today after hustling the prisoner away from the Whitfield county jail in this north Georgia community.

Sheriff J. T. Bryan said the crowd of about 150 men stormed the jail at 1:30 p. m., forced Jailer John Pitt to hand over his keys at the point of pistols and seized the prisoner, booked as A. L. McCamy.

The sheriff found the body on a roadside four hours later beneath a tree from which the negro had been hanged. Bryan said the negro recently completed a chain gang sentence for an attempted attack on a 10-year-old girl.

The prisoner was arrested Friday night when he was trailed by bloodhounds from a residence here.

"The woman screamed when the negro touched her and he broke and ran from the house," Bryan said. "Two men who met him as he ran down the street recognized him. We got the bloodhounds and caught him in a short time.

"I planned to question him today but they got him first," the sheriff said, adding the negro had made no statement concerning the reported attack attempt.

A coroner's inquest was called for late today.

McDONOUGH MINISTER CALLED TO BRUNSWICK

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The First Presbyterian church extended a call today to the Rev. Edward Russell, of McDonough, to become pastor of the church.

The minister is a son of Chief Justice Richard B. Russell, of the Georgia supreme court, and a brother of United States Senator Richard B. Russell Jr.

If the call is accepted Mr. Russell will succeed the late Thomas W. Simpson, who held the pastorate many years and was one time moderator of the synod of Georgia.

NAVY BOARD CHAIRMAN TO RETIRE FROM DUTY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Secretary Swanson announced today that Rear Admiral Frank B. Upham, chairman of the navy's general board, will retire from active duty October 1 after 45 years of service.

Upham, who celebrated his 64th birthday today, has held flag commands in the United States fleet, served as chief of the Bureau of Navigation and for two years was commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet.

G. S. C. W. OPENING SET.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Officials today expected a record enrollment for the Georgia State College for Women this fall. A special train leaving Macon at 5 p. m. will bring more than 500 freshmen to the campus on September 17. For four days they will be given a series of entertainments, introduced to the various college activities, the use of the library and have their schedules for the year approved.

SAVANNAH EXPORTS GAIN.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Customs house figures showed today Savannah's exports of approximately $4,051,830 during August were more than double the exports of any previous month this year.

PRISON UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

ALAMO, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—A modern $6,000 prison camp is being erected by Wheeler county authorities with the assistance of the Works Progress Administration.

SPALDING TAXES REDUCED.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Spalding county taxpayers will save an estimated $17,000 through a 2.45 mills tax reduction voted by the county commissioners, Tax Collector Grover Padgett estimated.

In 1935 the tax rate was 16.70 mills and the 1936 rate will be 14.25 mills.

LIONS TO GET CHARTER.

BAXLEY, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Baxley Lions Club will receive its charter next Friday night from Edward Murrah, district governor, of Columbus. H. A. Stallings, of Waycross, immediate past district governor, is also on the program.

SCHOOLS SUBSTITUTED.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Pending construction of a new Dawson Street Grammar school to replace one destroyed by fire, pupils will be housed in improvised classrooms at the Calumet Mill building, the Dixie Community Center, and the Hill Street school. Classes will begin tomorrow.

FIRE DESTROYS GINNERY.

GLENNVILLE, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—An early morning fire destroyed the Tootle-Beasley ginnery and 50 bales of cotton here at an estimated loss of $13,000.

SHOP PAY ROLL INCREASED.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Restoration of a portion of the freight car department of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad shops to a 48-hour basis brought an increase in the shop pay roll.

WATERMELONS SHIPPED.

MARSHALLVILLE, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Several cars of late watermelons left the Marshallville section during the past week. The melons averaged about 40 pounds and brought good prices.

DELEGATES CONVENE FOR POWER PARLEY

Third World Conference Will Attract Utility Experts of 60 Nations.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Power experts from 60 nations gathered here today to take stock of the available sources of power for running the world's industries, heating its homes and lighting its cities.

Surveying power and heat sources as old as Holland's windmills and Asia's charcoal stoves, and as new as Germany's coal-made gasoline and Dr. Charles G. Abbot's invention for capturing the sun's heat, some 3,000 delegates to the Third World Power Conference will seek guides to the proper adjustment of these varied resources in modern life.

Around them, as they arrived, were symbols of the problems they met to discuss—models of new dams, new inventions, new surveys, which may bring great changes in the world's methods of getting heat, light and power.

In the downtown hotel headquarters of the conference, delegates viewed a 12-foot oil well in operation, tested their eyes on an "optometrist robot" (which tells you how much reading light you need), and examined a rubber-balloon full of helium (1916 price, $5,000; price today, 1 1-2 cents).

Brilliantly-lighted maps showed the network of telephone lines which serve Americans (with flashing radio lines extending to ships at sea) and the vast extent of the government's power projects.

Centers of interest were coal and oil, two rapidly-wasting stores of natural fuel which will be subjects of the opening sessions tomorrow.

Discussing uneasiness in many lands, delegates wondered, too, what message Secretary of State Hull would bring when he officially opens the conference tomorrow night.

Reports showing that "in all parts of the world public control over the production and distribution of coal has been tightened," formed the basis of one Monday session.

Another Monday session will discuss the rationing of oil supply in many nations, and the problems arising from a heavy world demand for petroleum products.

NEW DEAL IS BIG ISSUE IN COLORADO TUESDAY

DENVER, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Democratic party leaders today predicted a record vote in the Colorado primary election Tuesday.

Governor Ed C. Johnson and former Governor William E. Sweet, opponents for the Democratic senatorial nomination, both will end speaking tours at Pueblo.

Although both publicly lauded the Roosevelt administration, fealty to the party and the New Deal remained the major issue between them.

Republicans, their nominees for senator and governor unopposed, relied on brisk congressional races in three of the four Colorado districts to attract more voters than the 112,000 with which they set their party record in 1932. Townsend old-age pension plan adherents are involved in the three congressional primaries.

Raymond L. Sauter, Sterling attorney, is the Republican senatorial candidate.

SUSPECTED SON-IN-LAW IN 'PRETTY BAD SHAPE'

NORWALK, Conn., Sept. 6.—(AP) Don Burdick, 36, New York broker charged with "intent to murder" his 72-year-old father-in-law, Harry E. Byram, retired railroad executive, was closely guarded tonight at the Norwalk General Hospital, with bail for his release set at $100,000.

Prosecutor Earl H. Jagoe, of West Port, reported the polo-playing broker was in "pretty bad shape" as a result of a fractured skull suffered in an automobile accident which occurred more than 12 hours after his father-in-law was shot in the head Friday morning in his mansion in Greens Farms, a fashionable section of Westport.

Because of Burdick's condition, Jagoe said, it will be impossible for state police to question him for "several days."

Byram, retired president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific railroad, is also a patient at the Norwalk hospital, where his condition today was reported as "good."

Bunkie, La., recommended condemnation of property offered by C. Gremillion on northwest corner of Walnut and Magnolia streets.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK CITY, Friday—Last evening was a real joy, for four of my children dined with me and we sat and talked on many questions. It always amuses me to get them together and to hear the one from Texas advocate his particular mode of existence.

The others, who are settled, or contemplating different interests, look upon anything at variance with their occupations, present or future, as quite out of the running. Every now and then as an objective listener, I have to remind them that every human being has personal preferences and is therefore entitled to try out whatever seems agreeable to him.

A very nice letter came to me yesterday and took me to task for having once said, "that parents could hardly expect to retain much direction over their children's thinking after they had reached the age when they began to think for themselves." Of course, my correspondent feels that home influences are, and should be, paramount and authoritative in the life of any child, not only until they are grown but after they have reached years of maturity.

This is undoubtedly so, but to cover the entire subject would take pages and not a column. In a few words, I think what I was trying to convey that after the early years, when a parent encompasses the whole of a child's world, the youngsters are apt to be greatly influenced by what their contemporaries and outside contacts are saying.

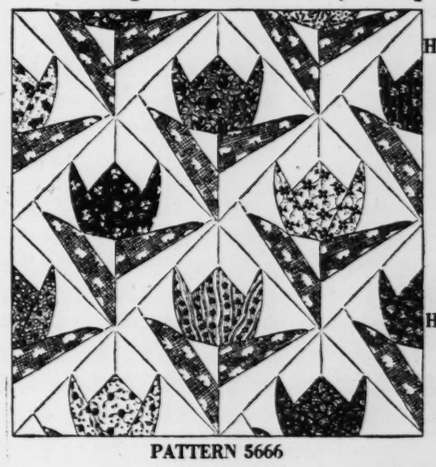

The atmosphere and the example they have at home, however, are, I think, always the greatest influence in forming their characters and mode of thought. Far more important than anything which could be said is this intangible home influence.

With this letter fresh in my thoughts, the talk which raged around me last night was very interesting. Probably not one of the children present expressed exactly the ideas of their parents, and they would hotly resent the suggestion that they were influenced by anything that had been said to them during their growing years. And yet, willy nilly, I am sure that the atmosphere in which they lived their early lives will always have some effect upon them.

The unwilling victim spent another morning at the dentist's and lost two more wisdom teeth. I have never been able to discover what real wisdom these bits of bony structure bring us, they certainly are a nuisance to have removed. The dentist said he was an exemplary patient which is food for one's pride, even though it may not add to one's comfort.

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

YOUR FALL FIGURE PROGRAM.

Ten pounds of overweight may be lovely if your structure warrants curves. Twenty pounds, however, is definitely out of place on any figure and 40 pounds excess registers a health liability.

IDA JEAN KAIN

See your doctor as a preliminary step in your fall figure program. Health and normal weight are the basis for figure beauty, and individuals are not easily typed for loveliness. Doctors—not fashion dictators—should chart your reducing course and estimate your perfect weight and measurements.

The amount of weight to lose and the rate of loss are fixed by your health and structure. You cannot afford to be reckless with even a small amount of overweight. A rapid undirected loss of a mere 10-pound excess may detract from your appearance and you may trade buoyant health for weariness Better to keep the 10 pounds. Clipping off 20 pounds of overweight too hastily may dangerously delete your vitality. One-fourth pound a week may be fast enough for you, and two pounds a week is the maximum for any reducer.

Now, as to method of weight reduction: If you are only 10 pounds overweight, diet is the principle part of your program, with exercise secondary.

A scientific reducing plan consists in the adjustment of calorie intake to energy expenditure and to structure. For example, it is safe for the short girl of around five feet to reduce on 1,000 calories per day. Such a restricted diet, however, is unsafe for the large-frame woman, who can lose steadily on 1,400 to 1,500 calories per day. Twelve hundred calories per day is the reducing calorie mean, and is adequate for the average reducer. While the daily menu approaches 1,200 per day, you may add or subtract calories to individualize your diet.

Recontouring is accomplished through exercise. You must select the corrective exercise needed by your figure, but here again your doctor's advice is necessary. Heart muscles which have been infiltrated with fat preclude any vigorous exercise except under supervision.

If your doctor approves of exercise, start easily to recondition your muscles and exercises every day. To be effective, the program must be moderate at the beginning and consistent to the end. Don't make the mistake of trying to crowd all your exercise into one day a week.

In tomorrow's article a fruit regime will be suggested to start you off successfully on your fall figure program.

Send for the leaflets embodying the introductory material, which include "Dodging the Calories," "Height-Age-Weight Chart for Women," "Calorie Chart" and "Pointers-to-Slimness."

I'll be seeing you . . . lighter!

WEEKLY PAY ROLLS SHOW GAINS--PERKINS

Labor Secretary Cites Employment Increase in Labor Report.

By FRANCES PERKINS, Secretary of Labor.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(UP) The United States Department of Labor is charged under the law creating it "to foster, promote and develop the welfare of the wage earners of the United States, to improve their working conditions and to advance their opportunities for profitable employment."

In this connection I can report to the nation's wage earners on the 49th anniversary of Labor Day that employment and weekly pay rolls in private industry have greatly increased since a year ago and that significant gains have been made in the field of labor legislation, through the Walsh-Healey government contracts act designed to prevent government business from going to sweatshops, the Costello workmen's compensation law, the act regulating interference with picketing, and the merchant marine act.

Approximately 1,000,000 men and women have been added to the ranks of workers in private industry since a year ago and the amount of money in pay envelopes has been increased nearly $42,000,000 in weekly wages. Nearly 5,500,000 more men and women are engaged today in regular industrial employment than at the low point of the depression in March, 1933, and 3,463,000 others are working on useful emergency jobs provided by the government.

Building construction and the durable goods industries have registered healthy improvement in the last year. The value of permits for residential building shows a gain of 182 per cent with a 38 per cent rise for new nonresidential buildings and an increase of more than 30 per cent for additions, alterations and repairs. Employment in the durable goods industries is 14.8 per cent higher now than it was a year ago and weekly pay rolls have increased by 32.1 per cent. These industries, which are the worst to suffer in a depression and the slowest to recover, give every indication of continuing to rise through the increased purchasing power of wage earners and farmers and the increased profits of industry and investors.

The Civilian Conservation camps and the National Youth Administration have done much in the past year to help young Americans through a depression which was not of their making and about which they could do nothing. More than half a million enrolled workers are in the camps today and an equal number of young people are working on projects of benefit to their communities as well as themselves or are being permitted to remain in school through the help of the National Youth Administration.

The nation's wage earners, staunch supporters of the social security program, did much by their interest and co-operation during the past year to bring about participation by the states in this great and humane program. All 48 states, the territories of Alaska and Hawaii and the District of Columbia are now co-operating with the social security board in one or more parts of its program which is in the interest of the American public at large.

CHARGES BY FOES DENIED BY TILLER

Received No Pay for Board of Welfare or Techwood Work, He Asserts.

J. Sid Tiller, statistical clerk in the office of John A. Boykin, solicitor general, yesterday denied charges of political opponents that he was on the pay roll of several organizations in addition to his position with the solicitor general's office.

"I have been for some time chairman of the board of welfare of Fulton county and was actively identified with the establishment of Techwood Homes in Atlanta," said Mr. Tiller, "but I receive no remuneration for either work and I have never received remuneration for either work."

The board of welfare of Fulton county receives and distributes the appropriations of the county and the city to the various charitable organizations operating with city and county aid.

"I consider the chairmanship of the welfare board as a part of my civic obligations," said Mr. Tiller. "My only association with Techwood Homes was as a citizen anxious to see everything possible done for the elimination of city slums. I worked for the establishment of the project, but my only pay was the feeling that I had aided my city and community."

MASEFIELD TO ATTEND HARVARD CELEBRATION

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 6.—(UP)—John Masefield, poet laureate of England, will arrive in New York next week-end from his homeland en route here to participate in Harvard University's tercentenary celebration, it was announced tonight. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Masefield.

As the first poet laureate of England to take an active part in an American celebration, Masefield will deliver an "Ode to Harvard" September 18, when the college will confer honorary degrees upon 62 of the world's leading scholars. More than 15,000 are expected to attend the ceremony.

Masefield received an honorary LL. D. from Harvard in 1918.

CAR KNOCKED 60 FEET, THREE PERSONS HURT

Others Are Injured in Sunday Accidents in and Near Atlanta.

An auto crash last night at McDonough boulevard and Lakewood avenue, in which one car was said by police to have been knocked 60 feet after being struck broadside, sent three residents of McDonough, Ga., to Grady hospital for treatment of cuts andb ruises.

According to police, a car driven by Joe S. Taylor, 19, of McDonough, was struck broadside at the intersection by a car driven by Miss Mary Bruce, 22, of 188 Howard street, S. E. Taylor's car, officers said, came to rest in the yard of a near-by residence. Taylor and two other occupants of his car, Joel Bankston, 18, and Monroe Upchurch, 24, of McDonough, were cut and bruised, Bankston receiving severe lacerations about the head.

Miss Bruce escaped injury, as did three other occupants of her car. Cases of reckless driving were made against both drivers.

Frank Henderson, 33, of 792 Marietta street, admitted to Grady hospital early yesterday morning with a possible fracture of the skull after driving into a parked automobile on Marietta street near Latimer, was reported in serious condition last night.

Henderson said he had been working late and felt drowsy while driving home shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday morning. He said the parked car was without lights and he struck it without seeing it.

An automobile accident shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning, on the Bankhead highway near the Chattahoochee river, sent two persons to Grady hospital for treatment of lacerations, with two other occupants of the car escaping injury.

W. H. Snow, of East St. Louis, Ill., the driver of the car, said lights of an oncoming car blinded him, causing him to strike a pole. Other occupants of the car were Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Glover and Melvin Brock, of Knoxville, Tenn. Snow and Brock received lacerations about the head.

$63,017 IS ALLOTTED FOR AID TO STUDENTS

State NYA Administrator Announces Additional Grant.

Appropriation of an additional $63,017 for the assistance of Georgia high school and college students from families affected by the drouth was announced yesterday by D. B. Lasseter, state director of the National Youth Administration, following receipt of a telegram from Richard R. Brown, deputy executive director of the NYA, Washington.

The additional funds were appropriated, Lasseter said, as a result of the consultation on Georgia's drouth needs held here August 15 by state educators and attended by Mr. Brown. At that time the educators passed a resolution seeking additional aid.

"The new funds allocated are for the first three months of the coming school terms," Lasseter said, "and are in addition to the appropriations already made.

"Of the funds allocated, $28,163 will be applied to aiding high school students, and is in addition to the $80,466 already appropriated. College students will receive $34,854 of the new funds in addition to the $99,583 already appropriated."

Lasseter announced he expected to have the new funds in the hands of the various college and high school officials by the end of the week.

The funds, he pointed out, are distributed by school authorities on the basis of needs of the individual families. Determination of the funds received by each institution is arrived at by administrators in Washington on the basis of recommendations from the Georgia offices.

SELF-RULE DEMANDED BY METHODIST YOUTH

BEREA, Ky., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Methodist youth, in national conference at Berea College here, demanded self-determination of its own program, a hand in government of the Methodist Episcopal church, and complete freedom of expression.

The National Youth Council, an organization in the northern Methodist church, studied a report calling for control of its own budget and contribution of half the budget by the church's board of education; for youth representation at all meetings of the board and its agencies affecting the program, personnel and policy of the youth organization, and freedom to publish material the council "feels necessary to interpret and develop the program."

Louisiana, Mississippi Governors Will Vie in Sail Boat Race Today

Leche Has It All Figured Out To Win No Matter What Happens—Will Appoint White an Admiral on His Staff.

BILOXI, Miss., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The country's two nautical governors, Hugh White, of Mississippi, and Richard Leche, of Louisiana, were taking things easy today awaiting the race tomorrow afternoon in which the two will pit their skill using two 21-foot sailboats each carrying a crew of five.

The race is believed to be the first one in which governors of the United States have ever sailed boats. Many visitors are on the coast for the event.

"I've got it all figured out that Louisiana can't lose," Governor Leche stated this afternoon. "I'll either win the race or appoint Governor White an admiral on my staff and I'll win anyway," the Louisiana chief executive said as he returned from a skeet shoot.

"Neither Governor White or myself can sail a boat, but we'll each have a crew of good skippers, which should result in a real race," he said.

"The race will be my first time on a sailboat, but it will not be my last. After I win tomorrow's race the others will be easy. I've already picked a spot in the governor's home for the trophy," Governor White said.

The Chinook, the Louisiana boat, is the favorite to win over the Tradewind, according to seasoned gulf skippers.

The Louisiana governor was attired in a yachting costume and Mississippi's governor wore the commodore's hat recently given him by Commodore F. C. Goodman, of the Biloxi Yacht Club, when an honorary commodoreship was conferred on him.

Elsie Janis, Famed Stage Actress, To Auction Properties for Charity

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Elsie Janis, famed stage actress, listed "everything for sale" today as she looked forward to the charity auction of her properties Monday that will launch her new career of "living to make others happy."

Two months ago the one-time "sweetheart of the A. E. F.," who applied her stage stalents to entertaining doughboys in the trenches, announced her resolve "to do something, something swell that would give me a reason for living."

Miss Janis planned to sell her "wordly possessions" and use the proceeds for charity.

Only a few mementoes, a picture here and a stage souvenir there, were reserved.

"This auction is going to be a blessing or it isn't," said Miss Janis, now 47. "My entire being is wrapped up in this event and I want to keep it on a high level. I'm playing honest with everyone."

Even the manor house, where Miss Janis has lived for years, is not barred from the sale. She said she hoped to dispose of that to historical societies of the state. It was built by Frederick Philipse in 1682.

It is there that Miss Janis will greet prospective buyers Monday, tell them what she has in mind, and then listen as the auctioneer puts beds, chairs, tables, highboys, lowboys, souvenirs and all the rest on the block.

Her books she has autographed: "Elsie Janis, 1936. But the geratest of these is charity."

Miss Janis' husband, Gilbert Wilson, has been helping her make arrangements for the auction. He is 31 years old and appeared last season in musical comedy in New York. Miss Janis is a native of Ohio and made her first stage appearance in Columbus in 1897. She starred in numerous stage and screen productions here and in Europe.

The actress' plans include visits to government hospitals to entertain disabled veterans.

"This is a divine inspiration," Miss Janis said when she announced her resolve.

PRAISE FOR BROWN IS WON BY SPEECH

Address in Crawfordville Is Warmly Commended by Hearers.

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga., Sept. 6. Residents of this city and county expressed considerable satisfaction over the week-end in the speech delivered here at court last week by Congressman Paul Brown, of the tenth district, in which the congressman outlined the motives behind the various bills which have been introduced and enacted in the national congress.

The clear-cut analyses by the congressman of the scope of the various emergency and relief bills today had caused much favorable comment by the residents, who feel they now have a clearer understanding of governmental problems.

"Some of the laws enacted would not have been passed as general laws," said Congressman Brown, "but in cases of emergency, with the great masses of the people crying for bread, speedy action was necessary."

The congressman said in his opinion the bank bill guaranteeing bank deposits and the securities exchange act alone were enough to justify the New Deal.

Mr. Brown praised the work of President Roosevelt in the highest terms and said the President was the greatest humanitarian of all times.

"The uppermost thought in the mind of the President is to see that everyone has the necessities of life," he declared.

PARIS' NIGHT LIFE SHOWN TWO FLIERS

Maurice Chevalier Takes Richman and Merrill Through City.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A combination of bad ocean weather and Maurice Chevalier's invitation to show them the night life of Paris kept Harry Richman and Dick Merrill, the American trans-Atlantic speed fliers, in France tonight.

Richman, "agony baritone" from Broadway's night clubs, and Merrill, his pilot, flew to Le Bourget from England this noon, intending to return tonight to prepare for the westward lap of their projected round trip journey between New York and England.

However, they changed their minds and decided to leave Le Bourget for London "early in the morning—if we can get up in time."

Merrill and Richman, after an afternoon automobile trip to Versailles, accompanied Chevalier to a Socialist demonstration and Luna park celebration on the anniversary of the third republic.

Thousands of Socialists, listening to speeches by Premier Leon Blum and waching the antics of Josephine Baker and other music hall stars, applauded them.

Then the fliers, with Chevalier, started a tour of the night clubs.

NEGRO IS DETAINED IN MUIR SLAYING

Suspect Found Wandering Near Scene of Crime; Held for Questioning.

LA JOLLA, Cal., Sept. 6.—(AP)—A negro from Kansas City, who wears his vests backwards and a bright bandanna under his cap, was held for questioning today in the mysterious slaying of Ruth Muir.

The negro, Silas Henry Reed, 22, was taken in custody when officers found him wandering in the brush near La Jolla.

Police Chief George Sears said Reed had been arrested on vagrancy charges in San Diego Thursday and had been ordered to leave that city.

He was arrested here after a retired naval officer whose name Chief Sears would not reveal told police he had seen "a large man with protruding lips" near Lovers' Cove last Monday night, the same evening that the 48-year-old Y. W. C. A. secretary from Riverside was murdered. The naval officer did not say, however, that the man he saw was a negro, said Chief Sears.

Also in custody was Genaro Robles, 36, a dishwasher at a local hotel, who was being questioned further today on his whereabouts the night of the killing.

'Cure the Ills of Modern Capitalism To Combat Communism'--Coughlin

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin asserted today that present-day populations are "crucified between the two thieves of Communism and modern capitalism."

Addressing a mass meeting of Illinois members of the National Union for Social Justice he said that Communism "still blames Christ" for exploitation, depressions, and crime, that modern capitalism has "exploited populations" with "want in the midst of plenty" resulting.

To combat Communism, he called for a cure of the ills of "modern capitalism," emphasizing that he saw as a need the giving to labor of increased compensation in proportion to the increased productivity due to the increased efficiency of the machines which workmen operate.

He described as "the first ulcer that grows on the body of modern capitalism," a "pay-while-you-work-ism" policy instead of "pay for what you produce."

When the Roosevelt administration was inaugurated he said "every bank door was closed because they didn't have the money to pay their depositors," the RFC advanced the banks $2,000,000,000, he said, to pay their depositors and Mr. Roosevelt acquired a controlling interest in the banks.

Then he said, the President asked that the banks lend the government $18,000,000,000. The banks, he continued, wrote the President a "rubber check" for that amount and received government bonds in return against which they issued money.

"There's a racket," said the priest, "worse than a racket, because these bankers created that $18,000,000,000 with a fountain pen and a piece of foolscap. Wouldn't it be swell, ladies and gentlemen, if you could make money by practicing penmanship."

The "private issuance and coinage of money," he said, is the "second evil of modern capitalism."

Of recent reports that the Vatican had restricted his activities, he said:

"Don't let them deceive you by false propaganda originating from Rome or anywhere else, that the Vatican has cracked down on Bishop Gallagher or Father Coughlin. That's a lie. If they had cracked down, I wouldn't be here today."

"Bishop Gallagher said only yesterday, 'That's a pack of infernal lies.'

"I challenge the press to headline that as they've headlined the lies."

AERIAL CORPS TO CHECK FARM CROPS FOR AAA

Georgia Is Included Among States Contracting Air Photographic Charts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—AAA officials disclosed today that photographic maps made from airplanes are being used to check on farmers sharing the $450,000,000 benefits under the soil-conservation plan.

Aerial surveys, a development of the World War, are actually being made in 64 counties in the middle west and south while previously made maps are being utilized in almost as many more, officials said.

The experience of army engineers in cutting costs of map making by use of airplanes was said to have led to the experiments.

Claude R. Wickard, assistant administrator in the north-central region, where contracts have been let for photographing 50 counties said he expected these costs to average lower than the former hand measurement of farms.

Wickard said some ground work must supplant the air photographs in order to check upon the actual crops planted in the fields revealed by the photographs.

"All of the aerial surveys were ordered by the farmers themselves through the county committees," Wickard said. "The expenses come out of the money being distributed."

The air maps will be of value to numerous federal and state agencies, Wickard said, and can be used several years.

He said 17 counties in Missouri, 11 in Illinois, 12 in Indiana, eight in Iowa and two in Ohio were "being shot" this fall.

Contracts also have been let for air maps of five counties in both Arkansas and Alabama and one each in Mississippi, South Carolina and Georgia in the southern AAA region.

Previous aerial maps of Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Connecticut and a few other states also are being utilized. These were made by private and public agencies.

The southern region reported it will obtain air photographs of 43,360 square miles of farms at a total cost of $107,942, although contracts for new surveys averaged about $4.32 a square mile.

Counties in which contracts have been let for AAA air photographs this year, included: Mississippi, Madison; Arkansas, Mississippi, Crittenden, Faulkner, Lonoke and Jefferson; Alabama, Hale, Dallas, Lee, Pike and Houston; South Carolina, Anderson; Georgia, Toombs, and in Maryland, Kent.

AUTOMOBILE CRASHES FATAL TO 138 PERSONS

Safety Council Predicts 300 More Will Be Killed by Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

An estimated 21,000,000 automobiles took to the highways for the Labor Day week-end and early Sunday night 138 persons had died in highway crashes.

The National Safety Council, which estimated the total motor turnout, predicted 300 persons will have died in other crashes by Tuesday morning.

The council said more workers take advantage of Labor Day than any other holiday, and predicted that the extended week-end would bring to a total of 20,000 the number of highway fatalities recorded so far this year.

Among the week's developments in the automobile field were:

A recommendation that all references to top speeds of vehicles be eliminated from advertising by the Automobile Manufacturers' Association to its members.

More stringent driving laws, including provisions for the at least temporary arrest of drivers in all fatalities involving apparent recklessness, went into effect in New York state.

The week-end auto deaths by states: Alabama, 7; Arkansas, 1; Arizona, 3; California, 4; Connecticut, 4; Florida, 2; Georgia, 3; Illinois, 7; Indiana, 2; Iowa, 4; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 5; Louisiana, 1; Maine, 1; Maryland, 1; Massachusetts, 5; Michigan, 18; Minnesota, 1; Mississippi, 1; Missouri, 3; Nebraska, 2; New Hampshire, 1; New Jersey, 2; New York, 7; North Carolina, 2; Ohio, 8; Oklahoma, 8; Oregon, 2; Pennsylvania, 6; South Carolina, 3; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 4; Virginia, 5; Washington, 3; Wisconsin, 6; Wyoming, 3.

BABY EATS 'CANDIES,' DIES IN CONVULSIONS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(UP) Jimmie Shaffer, 26 months old, found a box of pills in his father's coat while playing in their apartment today.

Thinking the pills, 40 of them, were candy, Jimmie swallowed the entire contents of the box. Within a few minutes his tiny body was wracked with convulsions.

The infant's father, J. Park Shaffer, saw the empty box and realized what happened. He took the boy to a near-by hospital, where he died. Physicians said the pills contained a strychnine preparation which Shaffer needed for an anemic condition. They contained enough of the deadly poison to kill five men.

CONCERN IS EXPRESSED IN PALESTINE STRIFE

Secretary Hull Requested by Senator George, Others to Make Representations.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Zionist organization of America today made public messages from 30 senators and representatives expressing concern over recent disorders in Palestine.

The organization said 17 senators had sent a joint telegram to Secretary of State Hull asking him to make representations to Great Britain regarding the Arab-Jewish strife.

William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, speaker of the house of representatives, was quoted as expressing "hope and confidence" that Great Britain would carry out "its pledge to observe the mandate guaranteeing the establishment of the Jewish national homes in Palestine and the protection of Jewish interests there."

The telegram to Secretary Hull, the organization said, was signed by Senators William E. Borah, of Idaho; William G. McAdoo, of California; Arthur Capper, of Kansas; W. Warren Barbour, of New Jersey; Frederick Van Nuys, of Indiana; Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia; Augustine Lonergan, of Connecticut; David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts; Morris Sheppard, of Texas; Charles McNary, of Oregon; James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania; Sherman Minto, of Indiana; Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland; William H. King, of Utah; Walter F. George, of Georgia; Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi, and Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri.

VIOLENCE INTENSIFIED BY ARABS IN PALESTINE

JERUSALEM, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Violence and disorder were intensified tonight in Palestine at the beginning of the 21st week of the Arab general strike protesting Jewish immigration and landowning.

Palcor Agency reported the 79th Jewish victim died as the result of wounds received September 1 when the bus he was driving was smashed in a mine explosion set by Arabs.

The government announced two Arabs were wounded when a band surrounded a military patrol near Gaza and was repulsed under heavy gunfire.

ELECTION CERTAIN, RIVERS' AIDS AVER

Statement Asserts Opposition Has 'Completely Broken Down.'

E. D. Rivers' headquarters last night issued a statement declaring the election of the speaker as Governor an "absolute certainty" and accepted as fact all over the state.

The statement follows:

"The absolute certainty of E. D. Rivers' election as Governor of Georgia is now an accepted fact all over the state. In the last few days assurances of support have poured into headquarters in tremendous numbers. From the very beginning of this campaign Ed Rivers has met with enthusiastic reception wherever he has appeared. His message and platform have been accorded universal approval. Rivers is the only candidate who offers the people a progressive and humanitarian program.

"The opposition has completely broken down. The Rivers campaign has developed into a mighty stampede. There is no way to stop E. D. Rivers' victory march to the governorship. Rivers will be elected without a run-over. He will make Georgia a good Governor and will co-operate 100 per cent with the national democratic administration.

"To the countless friends over Georgia, we say that a great victory for good government is about to be achieved."
